DELAY

Is Impelling Cause For Germany's Suggestion of National Parley

WHILE SHIPS ARE SUNK

Unlawfully This Country Cannot Take Part In Discussion, Say Officials

Washington, Feb. 10.—It is understood that Germany has addressed a note to the United States suggesting a discussion by the two governments to prevent war.

PROPOSES NO MODIFICATION OF SUBMARINE WARFARE.

Washington, Feb. 10.—While Germany has taken steps to open a discussion with the United States as to means of preserving peace, it is understood that Berlin has not proposed a modification of the ruthless submarine war, and officials here feel that they cannot enter the discussion while vessels continue to be destroyed unlawfully.

The new move is understood to be predicted on Germany's willingness to discuss the safeguarding of American ships and American lives on the seas.

The feeling in some quarters is that it is merely designed for delay in order to postpone further American action until the starvation blockade against England either succeeds or fails.

There is no evidence that the president is contemplating any other course than vigorous preparation of the nation for the eventuality warned against in his address to congress. The manner in which the new German proposal was received officially left the impression that there is little possibility of favorable response here. It is believed it is calculated to have an effect on pacificsts and pro-German elements in this country which may embarass officials. While information is lacking, it is considered certain the German communication was forwarded by the government of Switzerland.

VILLA VICTOR IN A CLASH YESTERDAY

Almost Annihilates Troops of Guzman Garrison—Campaign In Chihuahua

Juarez, Mexico, Feb. 10.—Villa won the first clash in the new campaign for possession of northern Chihuahua when Salzar's command yesterday almost annihilated the Guzman garrison of defacto troops. The first report of the defeat at Guzman was received through Villa sources, and was confirmed tonight by officials of the Carranza garrison here. Reinforcements were asked from the local garrison, but none are yet sent out. Distribution of a Villa proclamation warning foreigners and Mexicans from traveling on trains to Chihuahua City caused much excitement. One train leaving here yesterday it is reported was stopped by Villa.

JAIL SENTENCE MIGHT CONDEMN INNES WOMAN TO AN EARLY DEATH

Atlanta, Feb. 10.—That Mrs. Ida Mae Innes, who goes on trial Monday in the criminal court for larceny in connection with the disappearance and supposed murder of the Nelms sisters, will be sent from the courtroom to the consumptive ward of a sanitarium and not to a prison cell is freely predicted by court officials who are familiar with the case.

Mrs. Innes is said to be so weak and ill that she will scarcely be able to appear in court, and her attorneys anticipate little trouble in convincing the jury that a jail sentence and conviction would be equivalent to a death sentence.

Whether she will be convicted and sentence suspended, or whether she will not be tried at all and simply sent to the Battle Hill sanitarium, which is a public institution, is the subject of speculation.

Governor Fleet Hugh Dorsey is connected with the prosecution as assistant counsel, and it is said that that state has gathered a mass of new evidence against Mrs. Innes in addition to the evidence on which her husband was convicted.

Mrs. Nelms, mother of the two girls who disappeared, is bitter and relentless in her attitude and will be present in court to urge conviction and the carrying out of the sentence despite the prisoner's illness.

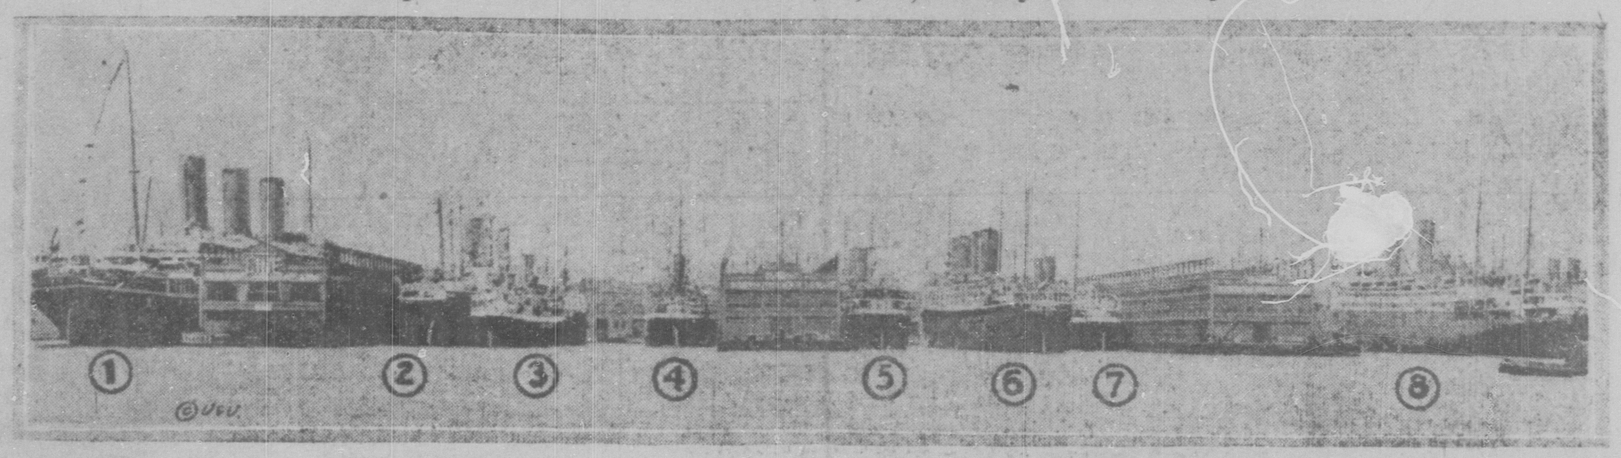
German Ships In Hudson River Worth $96,000,000 May Be Seized By Uncle Sam



From left to right:—No. 1, Vaterland, $30,000,000; No. 2, Bohemia, $3,000,000; No. 3, Nassovia, $1,000,000; No. 4, Barbarossa, $6,000,000; No. 5, Grosser Kurfurst, $7,000,000; No. 6, Friederich der Grosse, $6,000,000; No. 7, Kaiser Wilhelm II, $12,000,000; No. 8, George Washington, $13,000,000; No. 9, Prinz Joachin, $2,000,000; No. 10, Prinz Eitel Friedrich, $2,000,000; No. 11, Koenig Wilhelm II, $4,000,000; No. 12, Hamburg, $6,000,000; No. 13, Allemania, $2,000,000. Total, $96,000,000.

Shipping experts familiar with the value of steamers since the European war began believe the value of the German and Austrian steamers interned in New York harbor is no less than $140,000,000. Those in the Hudson River, at Hoboken, N. J., and 135th street, New York City, which are shown in these photographs, are worth $96,000,000. If Germany and the United States go to war these vessels will likely be seized by Uncle Sam. The Vaterland, which is among them, is the largest vessel afloat, unless the Germans have built other and greater vessels since the war began.

NOTHING OF IMPORTANCE ON ANY FRONT

Four Steamers Was Friday's Crop of Submarine Reaping

Associated Press, Feb. 10.—No important military activities on any fronts have been reported, today.

German artillery halted two French attacks.

Artillery activity and airplane raids behind the lines are reported at several points on the French and Belgian fronts.

Four steamers, aggregating thirteen thousand, five hundred and thirty tons, constituted the German submarine harvest for Saturday.

Three of these, the Mantola, Lolling and Bechtree were British, the fourth a Norwegian steamer, Solbakkan.

This is an increase of three thousand tons over the amount destroyed Friday.

The total number of vessels destroyed in the new period of U boat operations, from February first to the ninth, is said to have been eighty nine, of which twenty one were of neutral nations.

During the same period more than eleven hundred vessels arrived and sailed from the United Kingdom unharmed.

MORE LOSSES REPORTED.

Later reports indicate the loss of three more vessels, the Japanese Prince, British, and the Allavors and Havgard, Norwegian, bringing the day's total loss in tonnage to twenty-two thousand.

The Japanese Prince sailed from Newport News and had on board twenty white American muleteers, according to the British vice consul.

CUBA MENACED BY SERIOUS REVOLUTION

Havana, Feb. 10.—Havana was stirred today by reports of a revolutionary movement. Secretary of the Interior Havia, tonight notified the civil and military authorities that a plot was discovered to overthrow the government, involving civil and military officials, and rumors that high army officers were arrested caused much excitement. Three subordinate officers are known to have been arrested.

WILL INQUIRE INTO H. C. L.

President Directs Two Branches of the Government To Investigate

Washington, Feb. 10.—At the direction of President Wilson, the Federal Trade Commission and the department of agriculture will begin an immediate investigation into the causes of advancing food prices, with special reference to alleged violations of the anti-trust laws. An emergency appropriation has been asked from congress.

The trade commission made public, today, the president's request for an inquiry.

After calling attention to the failure of production to keep pace with the demand, the president said:

"It is obvious that there will be no incentive to enlarge production without an unobstructed and economical system of distribution. Unjustifiable price fluctuations deter adequate production.

"It is of the highest public concern to ascertain the truth or the falsity of the allegations that the course of trade in important food products is controlled by artificial and illegal means."

CHICAGO'S BIG SIX DAY GRIND

Chicago, Feb. 10.—At midnight tomorrow night there will be started on the girdle of pine planks that constitute the ten-lap track in the Dexter park pavilion a dozen seasoned bicycle riders, who, in a ride for glory and gold, will travel at their utmost speed for the greater part of each day until next Saturday night. The men represent twelve teams of two riders each that have entered in Chicago's third annual six-day race.

The teams include many of the present day stars. Among them are McNamara and Verri, Madden and Clark, Cameron and Kaiser, Wiley and Carman, Mitten and Spencer, Linhart and De Baetes, Magin and Cory, Drobach and Piercey, and Hanley and Lawrence.

For the first time in the history of six-day races a series of afternoon sprints under the Berlin system will be staged during the week. One hour of sprinting, with a sprint every five miles, will be imperative every afternoon. Two hours of the same noise-making competition will be put on at night, so that the riders will be forced to do their level best at least three hours out of every twenty-four.

LIQUOR SHIPMENT FIGHT.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 10.—The local express office through which liquor shipments are received was closed today under the "public nuisance" clause of the prohibition law through a temporary injunction granted on petition of the solicitor general. The hearing for permanent injunction is set for next Tuesday.

FLETCHER LEAVES.

MUST PROVIDE PROTECTION

Or American Ships Will Make No Attempt To Cross the Ocean

New York, Feb. 10.—Unless the United States government provides either convoys, or guns and gunners to protect ships, the American line, owning the St. Louis and the St. Paul, will not send its steamers across the Atlantic, it was announced, today, by P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine.

The decision was reached after the failure of efforts to provide the company's own defensive armament.

President Franklin said, the government "seems disinclined to furnish protection."

SAYS GERARD TO GET AWAY FROM BERLIN

Washington, Feb. 10.—Germany's delay in permitting Ambassador Gerard to leave the country is deeply resented here, especially in view of the fact that steps were taken to arrange all possible conveniences for the homeward trip of German officials in the United States, knowledge of which officials here are confident Germany has had from the start. A dispatch from American Minister Stovall, in Switzerland, today, said he was informed Gerard would leave Berlin tonight, arriving in Zurich tomorrow. No word has been received from the Spanish ambassador at Berlin since he took over American interests.

WEDDING UNITES PROMINENT FAMILIES

Boston, Feb. 10.—Two families that have long held prominent places in the social and political life of the nation were joined in the wedding here today of Miss Helen Howard Draper and Walbridge S. Taft. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Albert Draper of this city. She is a niece of the late Governor Draper of Massachusetts and the late Gen. William F. Draper, ambassador to Italy under the McKinley administration. Her mother, before her marriage, was Miss Jessie Preston, a member of a prominent southern family.

Mr. Taft, the bridegroom, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Waters Taft of New York and a nephew of former President William H. Taft. He is engaged in the practice of law in New York and during the last election he ran for congress as the progressive and republican candidate in the sixteenth district.

AMERICANS ARE WELL TREATED

On Leaving Germany, But Germans Are Angry At Wilson and Gerard

London, Feb. 10.—A Utrecht dispatch to the Express describes the meeting of an American there with friends, just from Berlin.

The arrivals said that they were showered with compliments and attentions on their departure.

The Germans did not exhibit anger towards the Americans, but were extremely angry at President Wilson, whom some even charged with being bought by England.

Ambassador Gerard is charged by the Germans with being Wilson's or Lloyd George's servant, and it is said that he fooled the Germans in a recent speech, made at the Berlin Chamber of Commerce banquet.

MOUNTAIN COLLEGE WILL CELEBRATE

Cumberland Gap Tenn. Feb. 10.—A three-day celebration was ushered in at Lincoln Memorial University today to commemorate the birthday of Abraham Lincoln and the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the university.

In the number and prominence of its participants the celebration promises to be one of the most notable of its kind ever held in this country.

Public leaders, governors, senators, educators, clergymen and captains of industry and finance are gathering to take part in the exercises.

A wide range of subjects embracing the life of Lincoln and his views on social and political questions as they would apply to the problems of the present day will be discussed in papers and addresses.

During the celebration a Lincoln National Patriotic League will be organized, which will have for it subject the dissemination of the fundamental principles of Americanism among colleges, chautauquas, churches, schools and industries.

INDOOR TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

The championships are expected to continue during several days of next week and will be followed by the customary consolation tournament.

Half a loaf is better than none, but a whole lie sometimes makes less trouble than a half truth.

NATIONAL LEPROSARIUM.

Washington, Feb. 10.—President Wilson signed, today, the act establishing a national leprosarium and appropriating a quarter of a million dollars therefor.

UNIVERSAL MILITARY SERVICE

Committee Reports Favorably Bill To Create Great Citizen Reserve Force

Washington, Feb. 10.—The senate military committee reported, favorably today, the bill creating a military and naval citizen reserve force, based on universal military service.

Action at this session of congress is unlikely, but the bill brings to a definite head the universal service discussion of the last few months and offers a specific plan about which public sentiment can crystalize.

The bill requires six months training, without pay, for all youths during the nineteenth year.

Exceptions are confined to members of the regular army and navy, the physically unfit, those who are the sole support of dependent relatives and those whose religion forbids them to carry arms.

It is estimated that the bill will provide training for a half million boys, annually, and will create a reserve of three million at the end of nineteen years.

WE ARE ON THE VERGE OF WAR

Says Lansing Addressing Amherst Alumni At Banquet — Last Night

Washington, Feb. 10.—Secretary Lansing, speaking at an Amherst alumni banquet, tonight, said that the country is undeniably on the verge of war, but that "there is still hope that we may be spared the terrible calamity of being forced into conflict."

Secretary Lansing lamented the spread of materialism as a menace to the national character, but expressed the conviction that the American people still at heart are patriotic and loyal.

EDISON'S 70TH BIRTHDAY

New York, Feb. 10.—Thomas A. Edison, whose marvelous inventions have smoothed the road of life for millions of his fellow-beings and at the same time have won for him a conspicuous niche in the hall of fame, will reach his seventieth milestone tomorrow and great preparations are afoot for a suitable celebration of the occasion. Already the great inventor is being flocked with messages of greeting from every nook and corner of the United States and from foreign countries as well. Mr. Edison has given a solemn promise to stay away from his laboratory and workshop on his birthday and to pass the anniversary in company with relatives and intimate friends who have gathered at his home for the occasion. In the evening the 1500 or more employes of the Edison plant at West Orange are to join in a banquet and entertainment in honor of their chief.

BRYAN

Says He Will Live Up To A Patriot's Duty If War Comes

HE IS HOME IN MIAMI

Arrived Yesterday To Spend Remainder of Season—An Interview On Treaties

Hon. William Jennings Bryan, former secretary of state, arrived yesterday afternoon to remain throughout the remainder of the season, and immediately went to his home in the southern part of the city, where he was seen by a Herald reporter.

Mr. Bryan was in his usual mood, and looked even younger than on previous occasions, and, in mounting to the second story of the residence he sprang upward two steps at a time.

He was grave only when discussing the possibilities of a war between the United States and Germany and then spoke as follows:

Peace Treaty Plan.

"If any one wonders at my earnest and persistent opposition to a declaration of war, let him remember that, after laboring for eight years to bring before the world a peace plan providing for the investigation of all disputes by an international tribunal before resorting to war—a year's time being allowed for investigation and report—I was made happy by President Wilson's cordial endorsement of the plan.

"By his authority I called all foreign representatives to the state department on the 26th of April, 1913 and laid this plan before them, and then began negotiation with each of the individual nations. Within two years from that date, treaties had been concluded with thirty nations, including Great Britain, France, Italy and Russia—thirty nations exercising authority over one billion three hundred millions of people, or three-fourths of the population of the globe. Besides these Germany, Austria and Belgium formally endorsed the plan, although treaties have not yet been concluded with these nations.

"These treaties were ratified by the United States senate, the vote being unanimous after the ratification of the third treaty.

"As this treaty plan, offered to all the world—and the offer has never been withdrawn—gives us an honorable means of adjusting all disputes with all nations, it surely affords an honorable means of adjusting a dispute arising of unintended injuries done by a nation which has endorsed the plan, although no treaty has yet been negotiated.

"Is it unreasonable or unpatriotic to urge, as a means of preventing war, the employment of a plan used by the president, and approved by the senate, the United States and nearly all the rest of the civilized world?

"Is it unreasonable or unpatriotic to urge that the people, having endorsed these treaties at the polls, should be consulted by a referendum vote, before congress repudiates the peace treaty plan by a declaration of war?

"The president still hopes for peace and I pray, as earnestly as he, that Germany may do nothing to further aggravate the situation.

"Because it is the duty of the patriot to support his government with all his heart in time of war, he has a right in time of peace to try to prevent war.

"I shall live up to a patriot's duty if war comes—until that time I shall do what I can to save my country from its horrors."

ATLANTA GERMANS ARE ALL LOYAL

Atlanta, Feb. 10.—So long as the United States continued on friendly diplomatic relations with Germany, the German-Americans of Atlanta were naturally in sympathy with the German side of the war, but now that diplomatic relations have been severed and there is danger of the United States being precipitated into war against Germany at any moment their sympathy and loyalty is all for the land of their adoption.

By way of supporting the loyal professions of the German-American colony, Frank E. Radensleben, an Atlanta lawyer and prominent member of the German-American society, has issued a statement urging all unnaturalized Germans to take out their papers at once and offering his legal services free of charge. Not only may Germans avail themselves of his office but British and French and other foreigners.

WITH ANGLERS LANDING THE BIG FELLOWS

Eight Foot Shark One Of the Best Catches Yesterday—Boats All Busy

By W. S. Thomas

A party of anglers consisting of Colonel and Mrs. A. P. Green, and their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Green, of Mexico City, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gray, of Columbia, Mo., and Mrs. Charles Van Antwerp, of this city, chartered Captain Otto's boat for a day's fishing on the reef yesterday, and returned to the Elser pier with a large eight foot shark that attracted much attention last night.

The shark, which was of a rare variety and a pretty specimen, was caught by Mr. Green, who had hard work in bringing it to the boat. Aside from that, the party caught some other fish and had a most delightful time.

F. A. Michael and party, of Troy, N. Y., were out on Captain Riley's boat Nemo yesterday and returned to the Royal Palm dock with two barracuda, four grouper, one muttonfish and two mackerel.

The charterboat Helena IV, Captain Manson, was out in search of sailfish with E. A. Bryan yesterday. Mr. Bryan failed to see any of these fish in the vicinity of the gulf stream.

Colonel William T. Durbin and Mrs. Durbin, of Anderson, Ind., who are stopping at the Royal Palm, chartered the Snap Shot yesterday for a sail on the bay. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Coleman, Mrs. Harry C. Gilbert, and C. C. Shirley, of Indianapolis.

C. D. Velie, Ezra Elliott, J. B. Gilfillan and J. O. P. Wheelwright, of Minneapolis, Minn., left yesterday on board Captain Layton's yacht Buffalo for a two week's cruise among the Florida keys.

G. E. Conkey, G. E. Conkey, Jr., and W. A. Armstrong left on board Captain James Thompson's yacht Yuma yesterday for a few day's cruise among the keys in search of big fish.

Colonel R. M. Thompson had as his guests on board the houseboat Everglades, yesterday, Colonel Henry Watterson and Commodore W. J. Matheson.

M. S. Kimmerer, of New York city, returned from a week's cruise on the yacht Record, Captain Austin, yesterday.

Fishing from the charterboat Angler, Captain Crossett,, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Barrett and Ned Barrett, of La Grange, Ill.; Mrs. W. C. Shallcross and Thomas Shallcross, of Detroit, Mich., caught seventeen large fish consisting of a very large barracuda, some grouper and mackerel yesterday. Both Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Shallcross divided honors as to big fish. Ned Barrett also caught one of the large barracuda. The catch was the best that was brought in at the Royal Palm dock yesterday.

A. Salsma of Detroit, Mich., O. A. Patzeld, of Denver, Col., and Herbert West, of Baltimore, Md., were out on Captain John's boat Inwood Friday and returned to the Elser pier with a nice catch of kingfish.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl A. Dolge, of Westport, Conn., and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Somers, of Atlantic City, N. J., were out on the charterboat Alice, Captain Deming, yesterday and returned to the Elser pier with a big catch of fish that were taken on the reef. Mrs. Dolge caught a barracuda that weighed sixteen and one-half pounds.

AUTOMOBILE HITS AND DRAGS WOMAN ON ELEVENTH ST.

The police were unable last night to give any particulars as to the identity of a young woman who was struck by an automobile at Eleventh street and avenue C, although the driver of the car made a report of the accident.

The only report that could be found at headquarters, last night was: "Didey struck a girl with his car."

Inquiry at the police station as to the identity of the young woman was in vain.

There were many rumors on the street, yesterday and last night that the automobile, which was described as a Saxon, struck and dragged a young woman several feet.

At the city hospital it was stated no young woman had been brought there for treatment.

WOULD HAVE ISLANDS NUMEROUS IN BAY

Dr. G. A. Harman of Lancaster, Ohio, who with his family is spending the season here, stated to a Herald representative yesterday that he is very much interested in any movement looking to establishing islands in Biscayne Bay and thereby deepening the water.

"The bay is a sort of obstruction in its present condition," he said, "for so much of it is not navigable by any kind of craft. It ought to be a harbor 25 feet deep- with no shallow places, and the more artifical islands built in the bay the better it will be."

Dr. Harman stated that he was born in Ohio within two miles of the birthplace of Carl G. Fisher, and that fact alone has caused him to look with special admiration on the improvements made in the past few years across the bay.

"If I were a young man," he added, "I would get busy and help in this work. It is a great opportunity for a few millionaires, for the money is what moves big development projects like those which I see on every hand here."

GOVERNOR HARRIS STILL CONSIDERING AN EXTRA SESSION

Atlanta, Feb. 10.—That Governor Nat E. Harris has not abandoned the idea of calling an extra session of the legislature for action on bone dry liquor bills, as erroneously reported, but has been occupied almost entirely for ten days with the Western & Atlantic railroad lease and other important matters and is just now going into an extra session matter, is the information given out today in the executive office.

Governor Harris has received a large number of letters from citizens in all parts of the state urging him to call the extra session, and he will now read these letters and carefully consider them. Also, he will undertake to make a further canvass of sentiment. He is especially anxious to be informed as to the situation in the rural sections of the state, where farming interests are vitally concerned with the labor problem.

It has been represented to the governor that negroes are getting large quantities of liquor and on this account farm labor is practically as unreliable today as it was before the present laws went into effect on May 1, 1916. If this is the situation, and if the farmers will experience difficulty in making their crops on account of this condition of affairs, then the governor will be strongly persuaded in favor of issuing the call.

It is stated in the governor's office that he will not announce his decision for three or four weeks.

CHILE AND ARGENTINE CELEBRATE INDEPENDENCE

Santiago Chile Feb. 10.—In all the principal cities and towns of Chile fetes and exercises have been held this week to mark the centennial anniversary of the nation's independence. On Monday the observance is to culminate in a great celebration in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of the Battle of Chasabuco. This battle was fought in the pass of the Andes mountains from which the encounter takes its name and the victory of the allied Chilean and Argentina forces under command of Gen. Jose de San Martin and Gen. Bernardo O'Higgins opened the way for the patriots to Santiago and enabled them to drive the army of Spain back into Peru.

DESPONDENT MAN IN ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE SWALLOWED POISON

Declaring in a letter that "life is too much trouble for a fisherman,' a man who is said to be Joseph Melle attempted suicide on the steps of the Bank of Bay Biscayne yesterday afternoon. It was only due to the fact that he took too much strychinne to cause death that he is expected to recover in the city hospital, to which institution he was rushed after being discovered by the police.

Roundsman Harvey Starling was told that a man was sick on the steps of the bank, and, going there to investigate, the officer found a note which told of the intention of the suicide. The man was then rushed to the hospital where it was discovered that he had taken a small bottle of the poison.

Melle is said to have been employed on one of the dredges in the bay.

THE WAR
February 11, 1915.

"War Budget" introduced in Canadian parliament, providing for raising of $30,000,000 by special taxes and increase of tariff.

Washington through Secretary Bryan sent celebrated "strict accountability" note, warning the German imperial government that it would be held to account for the sinking of United States vessels and the loss of American lives.

HENDERSON TENT MEETING.

At the meeting in the tent on Eleventh street last night Mrs. Henderson discoursed on the power of a virtuous woman. By way of contrast she depicted the condition of the fallen woman. "A good woman, "she said, " is the best influence in the world, and a bad woman is the worst. Woman touches the limit both ways—she rises higher and falls lower than man. The most degraded human being on earth today is woman—the purest character on earth is woman. She leaves a blessing or a blighting curse on everything she touches."

The meeting last night was in many respects the best that has been held since the evangelists arrived here.

They report success in several instances where help has been tendered unfortunate persons needing it in Miami. Among these is a crippled boy who only yesterday got into communication with relatives in another state who will take care of him.

Armenian-Syrian Relief Fund Raised in Miami by Energetic Young Ladies

The results of yesterday's Tag Day for the Armenian-Syrian Relief were announced late last night. Seven hundred and twelve dollars and nine cents was the sum collected by the enthusiastic and energetic young ladies at their various stations yesterday and this encouraging sum will be sent directly to headquarters.

Graham, Miss Alice Hill and Miss Virginia Hoit, Mrs. George Stembler, Miss Albert Hinton, Mrs. Samuel Barco, Mrs. Byron Lassiter, Mrs. Walter Kackley, Mrs. Wintersmith, Mrs. D. S. Carrington, Mrs. J. I. Conklin, Miss Estelle Edwards, Mrs. R. C. Hunt, Mrs. A. H. Bouldin.

As to individual amounts taken in the largest was contained in the can numbered 54 which contained the sum of forty dollars. Other high numbers were No. 75 with twenty eight dollars, No. 52 with twenty seven and No. 17 with twenty five.

Mrs. Wintersmith and her group of girls, who were stationed at the Hotel Royal Palm took in one hundred and nine dollars and thirty cents. Miss Hill and Miss Hoit's group made seventy six dollars while Mrs. J. W. Godman's group made seventy five dollars. But the work of every individual no matter where stationed was a matter of much congratulation by the committee which spent many hours last night opening and counting the contents of the cans.

The committee for Armenian relief, first presided over by Sen. F. M. Hudson and later made up of women only for the carrying on of Tag Day were chairman, Mrs. R. R. Reimert, Mrs. T. V. Moore, Mrs. J. D. McKenney and Mrs. Fraser Knight.

ENTERTAINMENT BY CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT MIAMI MUSICAL CLUB

The children department of the Miami Musical Club gave a most delightful entertainment yesterday morning in the Woman's Club auditorium. The feature of the morning's work was the teaching of the minuet to eight little girls and boys by Miss Lenore Henderson.

Music was provided by Maurine Pepper, Eugene Ullendorf, Fannette Wharton and Stanley Danziger.

Several very charming aesthetic dances were given during the program. Miss Angela Ward, who is especially accomplished, was charming in a Greek dance. Miss Jacqueline Valentine in Spanish costume danced effectively with a tambourine.

A special vocal number was given by Rosina Caselli of Ft. Lauderdale, while the large audience was particularly delighted with the recitation by tiny little Jeanette Comstock, whose loss of composure was all the more adorable.

FLORIDA FEDERATION OF MUSICAL CLUBS

Next Saturday the convention of the Florida Federation of Musical Clubs will open in Miami with the much advertised contest for young artists.

This contest, which is one of the first held in Florida, is a most unusual and admirable occurrence. It is not for amateurs but for the purpose of providing young artists with audiences. The contestants will be screened from the judges so that their judgment may be absolutely impartial. The winner in this contest will be admitted to the contest for five states, and the winner of that will be presented at the Biennial Convention of the National Federation which meets this year in Birmingham. The contestant does not have to be a member of the musical clubs.

In the evening of that Saturday the Woman's Club will give a reception to the musicians and their guests at the Woman's Club auditorium.

On Sunday at three thirty they will be entertained by Mrs. Robert Hinkel at her beautiful home on Belle Isle.

On Monday at ten o'clock the convention itself will open and it will be concluded with a recital at eight o'clock the same evening.

Fell, chief of the London County council tramways, and his charming wife, during their recent visit to this city will be pleased to learn that the White Star steamer Baltic, the safe arrival of which in England, was announced in yesterday's Herald, carried Mr. and Mrs. Fell as passengers.

In parting with friends here, Mr. and Mrs. Fell expressed themselves as delighted with this, the most charming city visited in their very extensive travels.

Bazaar of Trinity Guild Produced Thousand Dollars

One thousand dollars in gross receipts is the sum that the members of Trinity Guild are today rejoicing in as the results of the three days' bazaar in the Fair building, so successfully terminated by them last night.

On Wednesday, at the next Guild meeting, the final reports of the net profits will be made, but the Guild members have reason to begin their rejoicing long before.

The Guild wish to express their appreciation to Mr. F. M. Rodgers for the use of his truck and to the great assistance rendered by Mr. R. G. Sulzner.

As to the individual reports, the always popular "Lady of the Thousand Pockets" turned in seventy dollars as her share of the work. St. Margarets Guild owes much to the activities of Mrs. Sulzner for the success of the bazaar.

The officers of the Guild, headed by Mrs. Cheatham as president, who also had charge of the supper, are:

President—Mrs. Tom Cheatham.

Vice-president—Miss Anna Fetting.

Second vice-president—Mrs. F. G. Magill.

Secretary—Mrs. Harry Church.

Treasurer—Mrs. B. C. Lighter.

But, to quote one of the officers, it was the combined zeal and enthusiastic work of every member which alone made the bazaar possible.

HAZELE BURGESS TELLS A LAZY MAN STORY

At a gathering of her friends the other night Hazele Burgess was called on to sing a song, tell a story, or else get the booby prize, and she agreed to try. So she started like all little girls do by saying:

"When I was a young girl my father was in a way obligated to look after a young man, the son of an old friend of his. He secured him position after position but to none of them did he stick longer than a few days and invariably returned with the same complaint, that it was more than he could do.

"Finally father came into the management of a western sheep ranch, and after looking it over decided that at last he had found a position for Williams, for that was the young man's name, and when he came home he sent him to the overseer of the ranch with a letter stating that William was to have a position, but under no consideration was he to work except between the hours of twelve and one in the day when the shepherds were at dinner. All went well for two weeks when lo and behold William came home and father said:

" 'What is the matter now William?

"And William replied:

" 'Work's too hard and I was afraid the sheep might bite me.' " And Miss Burgess did not get the booby prize.

ROYAL PALM GRILL PARTIES

An unusually large number of jolly grill parties marked the Saturday night dance at the Royal Palm. The regular dance in the ball room was crowded with dancers and the lobby with interested onlookers particularly for the charming fancy dancing of M. and Mme. Roberto.

By half past ten, with the close of the upstairs dance and the beginning of the music of the grill orchestra, the procession of brilliantly gowned women and their escorts moved down to the grill with trip down the stairs as only an interval in the dance itself which was resumed with much less smoothness but with greater hilarity on the tiled grill floor.

One of the largest of the grill parties was given by Mr. Walter Morrow in honor of Miss Bess Burdine and her guests, Miss Elsie Alexander and Miss Marion Dunsan. In addition to his honor guests Mr. Morrow gathered about his gayly decorated table the Misses Jane Tatum, Hazel Davis, Agnes Egger, Kathleen Kennedy and Miss Henkel and the Messrs. Wright, Joe Reilly, Robert Reimert, Beal Siler, Edward Haynes, Facio Dunham and Mr. Henkel.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Locke Highleyman entertained also at supper to conclude the dinner dance given by them at their home which has been noted elsewhere here.

Mrs. Kilgour Miller was hostess to a large and very gay party of thirty four.

Of the others entertaining in the grill Mr. and Mrs. Wintersmith had eight guests, Mr. Bentz six, Mr. Eddy ten, Mr. Warwick ten, Mr. Shapely six, Mr. Hiems six, Mr. Vars six, Mr. Nettleton four, Mr. Lee four, Mr. Palmer six, Mr. Ashbrooke six, Mr. Olive six, Mr. Karney six and Mr. Percival eight. Others reserving tables were Mr. Greaves, Mr. Wilder, Mr. Hainlin, Mr. Darling, and Mr. McCarthy.

MR. LAMBERT C. ROOK WEDS MISS EMMA MARIE LUMMUS

In the presence of the immediate friends of the family, a home wedding of interest was celebrated at "Salubrity," at Miami Beach, the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Newton Lummus, last evening.

Miss Emma Marie Lummus, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lummus, was the happy bride and Lambert C. Rook, formerly of Chicago the equally happy and prideful groom.

The ceremony was performed in the parlors of the home, the Rev Dr. Hazlett, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, reading the beautiful words of the Episcopal marriage service whch united the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Rook took the evening train for St. Augustine, Jacksonville and Orlando, on a short wedding

HORSES WITH FIGHTING MEN AT THE FRONT

Casualties Small Compared With the Large Number of Equine Participants

WOUNDED MANY TIMES

And Return To the Service As Soon As They Are Physically Able

With the British Armies in France, Feb. 10.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—It would be difficult to find a more pampered lot of beings than the war-horses. In the stress of battle they suffer with the men, but the number of equine "casualties" among the hundreds of thousands of horses employed is really very small.

There are veterans among the horses who have been three or four times wounded, there are even those who have suffered nervous breakdowns from the shattering shock of shells. If they were men in khaki they would have gold stripes of honor upon their sleeves, but the faithful old horses go back to the front time and time again asking nothing in the way of rank or distinction.

What they get instead is the very best of food and plenty of it, the kindest of care and the keenest appreciation of the services they render. Visitors to the battle zone invariably express amazement at the appearance and condition of the horses. Just now they are snug and warm under the self-protection of their long winter coats. They are fat and strong muscled. They plod and splash contentedly through the mud in twos, threes, fours or twelves, dragging guns and heavy wagons behind them with never the necessity of a harsh word or a whiplash from their drivers. The men come to love the horses. Officers who have been here from the beginning and there are still a few left, say that in all that time they have never seen an act of cruelty toward horse or mule.

One reason for the splendid appearance of the horses at the front is the fact that the moment one begins to show signs of over-fatigue or debilitation, he is taken out of service and sent back to a hospital to recuperate. Occasionally, too, the horses come down with mud blisters upon their backs, with an injured foot that may not have been noticed in time, or with some of the diseases that equine flesh is heir to. It is a great tribute to the veterinary services, however, that most of the old contagious diseases that used to decimate the ranks of horses in war time, have been effectually stamped out and no longer give concern. Glanders, for instance, once a dread scourge, is now a thing of the past. None of the horses in France is infected. Occasionaly a case comes with a new shipment from abroad, but it is quickly eliminated.

At the end of two years of the South African war fully 90 per cent of the horses had been affected by the mange. During two years and a half of the present war, with the number of horses engaged multiplied by thousands, less than two per cent have been affected. The mules have been even less involved. As a matter of fact the mules are so tough and hardy they seldom enter into the veterinary statistics.

The hospitals provided for them by the army must very nearly approach the horse's idea of heaven. It is a joy to go into one of the convalescent "wards", especially at meal times. Sometimes the convalescents stand almost nose to nose, and if the horse across the way gets his hay first, there is a terrible hullabaloo. A particularly ravenous patient now and then will not only eat his portion of hay but the rope net that surrounds it. A few nights ago one had such a healthly appetite he tried to eat the blanket off his nearest neighbor.

All the horses in hospital are fed four times a day. The more debilitated ones are fed five and six times. When they are particularly run down and in danger of being mistaken for sort of bone-yard hat-racks, the patients get nothing but cooked foods, and they fairly revel in them. They have tonics, too, and it is remarkable to see the improvement in their condition that a few weeks work. The diet for "debilities" consists of oatmeal gruel, linseed gruel, boiled turnips, and scalded oats. Later they get crushed oats and chopped hay, and almost before they know it are in the convalescent ward.

The operating rooms with their big beds spread upon the concrete floors are as cheery and immaculate as if intended for human beings. For all except the most minor operations an anaesthetic is administered.

"The horses take the chloroform remarkably well," said the officer commanding one of the hospitals to the correspondent of The Associated Press. "I don't think we have lost but one patient in the last six months," he added.

"Patient" seems a most appropriate designation for the horses. They are very pictures of patience until they reach the stage of convalescence. Each patient has a little aluminum tag and a hospital chart which tells his age, color, where he came from, what he shall have to eat and drink and take, when he shall have a nice hot bath and various notations as to his condition and behavior. There is a personal touch about the treatment of the horses which in itself bespeaks the esteem in which they are held. Walking about the wards, the "O. C." had a kind word or two for his patients. It seemed a particularly human thing to do. And he patted most of them and called many by name.

"This old charger," he said of one, "is a great favorite in the hospital. He has been one of the bravest of the brave, has lost an eye in battle, and so we call him Nelson. I am going to send to Paris and get him a good glass eye before he goes back to the front, so none of the other horses will have a chance to 'swank' it over him. It won't really be a glass eye, because they are made of a composition not so fragile. The horses do not mind the artificial eyes at all and they look awfully well in them."

So thorough is the work of the veterinary service that if a patient develops a contagious disease all the horses in the unit from which he came are called in for disinfection and examination. So successful is the work that 82 per cent of all sick cases and "casualties" are returned to active service.

"If we were dealing with human beings," said the officer commanding, "we could run the percentage up to the nineties. But unfortunately in dealing with the horses we have at times to weigh their cases in the scales of pounds, shillings and pence. In other words, we have to decide whether it will pay to save the animal. Is he too old to be of much service when he is cured, or will the course of treatment be so long and expensive as to outweigh the value of future usefulness? In striving for war efficiency and the highest potentiality of horse power all these things must be considered. It is the old, old story again of the survival of the fittest. Tehre is no other way."

Some idea of the number of American horses "doing their bit" in the war can be gained from the fact that 10 per cent of all admitted to hospital come from the United States.

Germans Taking Out the Hyphen At Naturalization Bureau in New York City

From the day after the kaiser's note was received here Germans who had not taken out their citizenship papers flocked to the naturalization bureau in New York City to swear they would become American citizens. Several widows and unmarried women appeared, and were as anxious as the men to take the oath of allegiance to Uncle Sam.

Fetching Little Parasols For Palm Beach or Any Southern Resort

They don't seem quite as big as parasols used to be; their handles are just a bit shorter and they swing carelessly from a loop; their colors are quite a bit brighter and of course their shape is Japanese—These are the parasols for southern resort wear.

There are the gay little ones with ribs of bamboo and hand-embroidered designs on the silk—these came all the way from Japan.

Then pongee is used so much, clever little affairs made of pongee with huge dots, or plain with colored linings.

A pink one, whose loveliness fairly takes your breath away, is of a pale pink with delicately tinted chiffon shirred on.

Pure white taffeta ones with the white enameled handle and a beautiful tassel of chenille would look lovely with that afternoon gown.

All colors and sizes and shapes, and the prices are $3 to $17.50.

And children's parasols at 75c to $3.

LAWYERS ON PETERS' LEVY ARE RETICENT

"BEAUTIFUL SCENERY"

Says Special City Attorney, Gazing Out of His Window—Mr. Pine's Views

For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain Bret Harte's Heathen Chinee had nothing on Miami lawyers, as a reporter for the Herald learned yesterday afternoon when he started out to unravel the deep mystery of the third angle to the Bay Park situation.

First, the reporter approached Fred Pine of Cason and Pine, attorneys for Thomas J. Peters, plaintiff in a suit against the Florida East Coast Railway company, and asked Mr. Pine for a statement relative to the whys and wherefores of the levy against that particular bit of railway property known as Bay Park.

Mr. Pine at once assumed a look that was childlike and bland, leaned back in his chair, produced a box of perfectos and asked his caller to have one.

After applying a match to the end of his cigar and blowing a cloud of smoke toward the ceiling, Mr. Pine denied that there had been an understanding between his firm and anyone regarding the Bay Front Park tract.

Commodus Sleeves.

The childlike and bland appearance gave way to the look of a man wearing wide sleeves, who has something in them besides his arms.

"You see, it is like this," the attorney began.

"Yes, I see," returned the other in an off hand kind of way, as if Mr. Pine had called attention to the delightful nature of the weather, or remarked concerning the flowers that bloom in the spring time.

By this time Mr. Pine wore a broad grin, but nevertheless he talked, and talked for publication, after being duly warned that he would be quoted verbatim.

"The object of the execution is merely to collect Mr. Peters' sixty-four thousand dollars," Mr. Pine began.

Mr. Pine gave the other a look of perfect understanding, but said softly:

"I am talking for publication, you know."

Continuing he said:

"Mr. Peters realizes that the railway company will refrain from paying the judgment as long as it can legally do so, as it has refrained from doing so for the past six years. So we decided to bring the question to a head and to collect the money by execution, or force the railway company to appeal the case.

"But even if Mr. Peters collects the entire amount of the judgment and costs, he will still be loser by sixty to eighty thousand dollars on his tomato crop of 1911, owing to the negligence of the railway company.

"The fact that Mr. Peters levied on the terminal dock and riparian rights doesn't embarass the city in any way regarding the ownership of the property. If the city wants to contest this levy it can, under the law, file what is known as a third party claim and immediately enter into possession and keep possession until the question of ownership is decided by a jury in the circuit court.

"If the city doesn't file a third party claim and the railway company permits the sale of the property, it would probably be a good buy at sixty-four thousand dollars."

Mr. Cason's view of the situation was that the railway company will not have to "fish or cut bait." He denied that there was any motive involved other than a desire to collect his client's judgment from the railway.

"Fine View" Says Judge Rose.

Former City Attorney A. J. Rose's office was the next place visited but beyond a perfect view of the bay, including the terminal dock, Bay Park, the ship channel, and the enjoyment of a delightful breeze from the northeast, the visit was profitless.

Mr. Rose was quite affable and shook hands cordially. Then the object of the visit was stated.

"Not a word," said Mr. Rose, and his expression was not at all childlike or bland, but somewhat sphinxlike. "I have nothing whatever to say."

"Beautiful view, out of this window," he added, pointing toward the bay.

"Yes," was the reply. "One can see the Bay Park with ease."

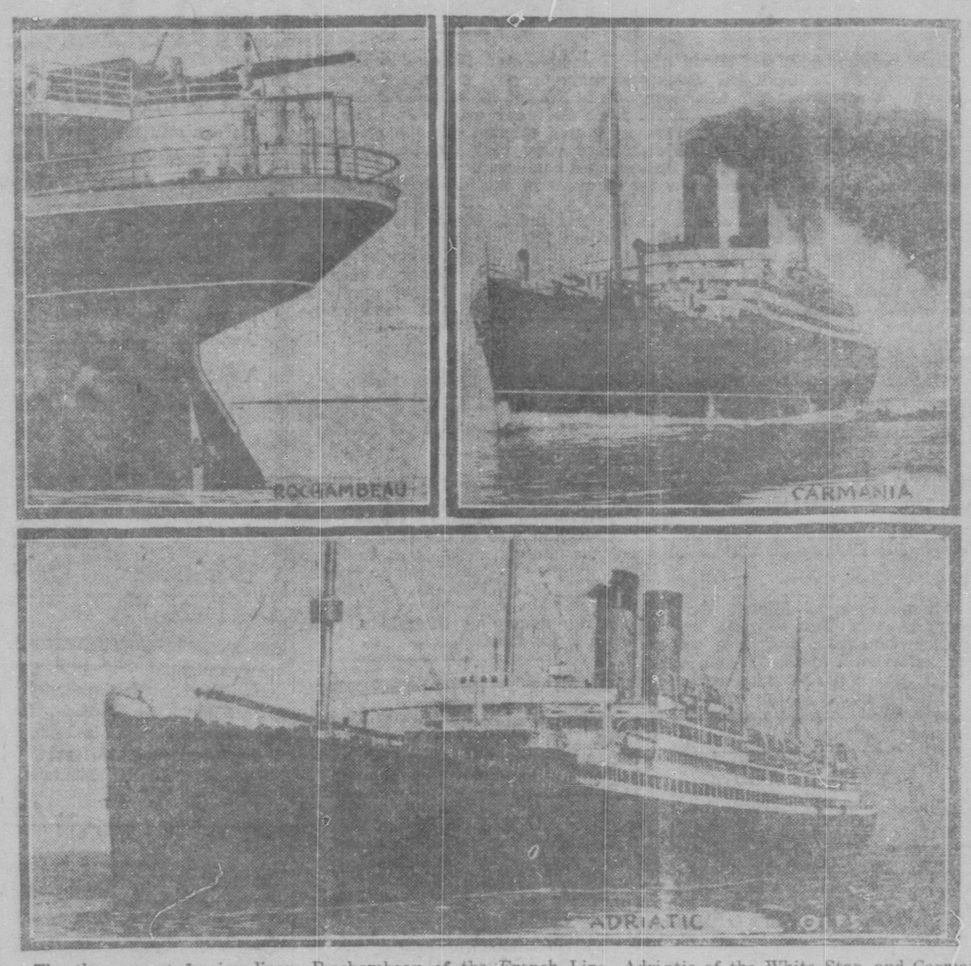
"Really, I have nothing to say, I'm sorry, but I have nothing to say," Mr. Rose returned.

Will Decide in Courts.

When requested for a statement concerning the railway company's side of the three cornered situation Crate D. Bowen, of Shutts, Smith and Bowen, declared he had nothing to say for publication, as he preferred to decide the issue in the courts rather than through the columns of the press.

"When the time comes, we will do whatever seems best," he added.

Foreign Liners Sailing Into War Zone Despite German Threat



The three great foreign liners Rochambeau of the French Line, Adriatic of the White Star, and Carmania of the Cunard Line—sailed away from New York after the German threat of a ruthless submarine war. Each vessel carried a number of passengers. The Rochambeau carried American passengers and had her gun showing plainly at her stern as she sailed from New York harbor. The British boats also carried guns.

MISS GERTRUDE OKELL'S VALENTINE PARTY

From the innumerable red hearts that decorated the rooms, the red ribbon streamers that accented the table decorations and especially with the huge red paper mob caps presented to each guest on her arrival, the valentine party given yesterday afternoon by Miss Gertrude Okell to a jolly gathering of young guests was a most brilliantly colored and unusually planned affair.

The red mob caps of the guests filled the rooms with their color during the playing of the original games and contests which made the afternoon hilarious. Prize winners were the Misses Adeline Wolf, Geraldine North and Genevieve Cormack.

Later, from the charming decorated table a two course luncheon was served in which the red of many more hearts played a valiant part in decorating.

DADE AERIE GAVE A SMOKER AND DANCE

The smoker and dance given by the members of Dade Aerie No. 1556 Friday evening proved a very enjoyable affair to the members, their wives and lady friends who were present. Prior to the dance an adjournment was made to the lodge room where three ladies and three little girls were the recipients of a memento for the valuable services they rendered in making the Christmas celebration such a success, when some 1,500 presents were distributed among the little boys and girls of Miami to aid in their holiday enjoyment. The following ladies each received a handsome gold locket and chain emblematic of the order, Mrs. A. L. Perry, Mrs. W. W. Becker, Mrs. W. Risk, while the little girls Misses Virginia Peck, Modest and Josephine Bushard were each presented with a two and half dollar gold piece. Mr. W. E. Groesch, a visiting brother, was the orator of the evening during the presentations, after which music and dancing, with light refreshments followed up to a late hour.

VALENTINE SEASON WAS INDICATED BY MRS. THOMAS' PARTY

One of the first heart decorated parties of the valentine season was that given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. E. T. Thomas for her mother, Mrs. M. S. Thomas, of Jacksonville.

Valentine contests of all kinds and of much jollity were enjoyed and the senior Mrs. Thomas added much to the pleasure of the guests with her inimitably rendered darky stories.

The refreshments were decorated with hearts and the favors were candy boxes with cupid covers.

Mrs. Thomas' guests were Mrs. Edward Rorem of Minneapolis, Miss Caroline Arnold of Montana, Mrs. H. Berge of Minneapolis, Mrs. Wood of Connecticut, Mrs. E. C. Welch of Westfield, N. Y., Mrs. C. A. PLAY FOR SUFFRAGE DAY AT THE WOMAN'S CLUB

On February the twenty-seventh, which will be Suffrage Day for the Woman's Club, the extremely clever little one act play, "How the Vote Was Won," will be given. The play, while quite brief, has a delightful plot and very witty lines as well as being not at all the average parlor drama but a clever bit of characterization. It presents one of the old anti-suffrage arguments worked out to its very humorous reductio ad absurdam which supplies the humor of the plot.

The cast will be as follows:

Ethel—Mrs. Hicks Allen.
Horace—Mrs. Hull.
Gerald Williams—Mrs. Okell.
Winifred—Mrs. Conklin.
Cousin Maudie Stark—Mary Agnes Pope.
Cousin Mollie—Mrs. A. J. Meyers.
Aunt Lizzie—Mrs. A. J. Smith.
Mme. Christine—Mrs. S. Bobo Dean.
Sister Agatha—Mrs. G. R. Davis.
Servant—Mrs. Whitman.

Service and Economy Are Closely Linked in This Store

It would matter little how low our prices were if our customers could not feel at ease when they enter our doors—if they could not feel that they were being served with the utmost courtesy and in a satisfactory manner.

And, too, it would matter little how pleasing and satisfying our service was to our customers, unless they were satisfied that they were securing full value for the amount expended we could not hope to secure their patronage—and this would be no more than right.

The fact that our business is increasing is evidence that service and economy are closely linked in this store.

Shakespeare Said:

"Apparel Oft Proclaims a Man."

This Applies with Double Force to a Woman

And this was never more true than during the present time. Whether or no the American public is to be censured or commended for this state of affairs, it is nevertheless true that a well dressed woman is given preference in most every walk of life, providing, of course, she compares in a fair degree with the average woman.

The women's apparel at this store is selected with the purpose in mind of providing women with correct apparel and yet bring this apparel within reasonable cost. More and more women realize the truth of the above statement insofar as the apparel of a woman is concerned as well as the advantages of making purchases at this store.

SECOND DAY IN TRIAL OF FRANK RICE

Hugh Alderman, Also Indicted For Murder, Was On the Witness Stand

STORY OF THE SHERIFF

Lee County Judge Tells of Affidavit By Defendant Concerning Robbery

The second day of the trial of Frank Rice for the murder of Charles E. Williams, one of the members of the sheriff's posse who was killed at Everglade tank early on the morning of September 17 last, was marked with an energetic legal battle between the attorneys for the state and defense over the admission of certain testimony yesterday.

Soon after court convened yesterday morning the jury was excused on account of objections made by Judge Worley, of counsel for the accused man, and there was some delay in the proceedings. The jury was for a while excluded from the courtroom.

Hugh Alderman, who is also under indictment for murder, was a witness before the court yesterday, but his evidence was of little importance inasmuch as the defendant,s counsel kept it from the jury and ably prevented the introduction of anything that might injure the case against the accused.

Sheriff Hardie Testifies.

Former Sheriff Dan Hardie was a witness and told of the incidents leading up to the shooting. He also told of the organization of the posse for the purpose of capturing the Homestead bank bandits(who on the afternoon of September 15 held up the officials of the bank at the point of a gun and robbed the institution of about $6,000 in cash and securities and escaped with the booty.

The sheriff went in search of the men and finding a boat loaded with provisions in a creek a short distance from Everglade tank, which he felt sure belonged to the men, organized a posse to watch that locality for the purpose of capturing them.

Mr. Hardie told of the watch that had been maintained for the bandits and corroborated the previous witness with regard to the stranger who came up and asked the members of the posse for a cigarette. He also told of his visit to Lee county where he brought Hugh Alderman back to Miami and placed him in the county jail. He later went to Fort Myers and brought Frank Rice, the accused, back to Dade county where he has since been incarcerated in the county jail awaiting trial.

Lee County Judge.

Former Judge Summer, of Lee county, was a witness for the state and testified as to taking a sworn statement from Frank Rice shortly after the fatal shooting of Leland Rice and also the wounding of the prisoner. When this testimony was received Judge Worley asked the witness whether he knew of Rice's condition at the time and he answered that he knew he was wounded.

The evident intention of the state's attorneys was to connect Rice with the bank robbery for the testimony of Judge Summer was with regard to a certain affidavit that Rice made concerning plans made for the bank robbery.

The legal battle between Judge Worley and Mr. Penney and District Attorney Gramling and Assistant Prosecutor Judge R. B. Gautier was listened to with much interest by the large number who thronged the courtroom during the day.

Man Who Shot Rice.

T. F. Hirsch the man who shot Rice at Chokoloskee about October 1, was placed on the witness stand during the afternoon and told of the shooting. The witness testified that Rice was brought to the fishing boat in a launch by Max Johnson, a relative of the accused, and that he jumped on board the boat and made a motion as if to grasp the fisherman, who drew Leland Rice's revolver, which he had secured, and fired at him, the bullet taking effect in Rice's body.

One of the jurymen asked the witness what prompted him to shoot Rice, but Judge Worley objected to this question and there was legal argument in which the counsel for both sides took part. Judge Worley stated that it was his desire to have the jury secure all of the evidence but he asked that the questions from the jury be directed to the court. The objection was finally withdrawn by the defendant's counsel and the reply of the witness was to the effect that Rice was coming at him in a threatening manner. Assistant Prosecutor Gautier stated that it was the duty of the states attorney to assist the jury in every way.

The attorneys for the accused told the court that an important witness was missing, and an adjournment was taken until Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

Among the other witnesses who testified yesterday afternoon were C. W. Sears and H. R. Pridgen, J. B. Thomas, R. D. Nites, Charles R. Ferguson and W. H. Morris.

Lincoln in 1865

One of the Few Statues of Lincoln as a Young Man Shown at the World's Fair at St. Louis

Statue of Lincoln at Long Beach, Cal., Erected Last Summer

PERHAPS no man in American history has connected with his name and career more stories and incidents of the time in which he lived and the experiences of the frontier where he spent most of his life than Abraham Lincoln. The characteristics of the man were unique and his wonderful insight into human nature combined with a faculty of illustrating by quaint metaphor, apt and terse expressions, and by appropriate stories or humor, makes his career the most interesting as well as the most instructive of all our great men.

Fond Of Children.

It is a well-known fact that Lincoln wore a beard because a little girl wrote to him telling him that she thought a beard would be more becoming to him than a smooth face. All during the war when the wives of soldiers brought their children with them when asking favors they were always given his closest attention. He was an indulgent father, seemingly unwilling to cross his children in anything. He loved to take his boys and their little friends to the old magic lantern shows, and had he lived in the present age he would undoubtedly have been a patron of the "movies."

His youngest child, "Tad," seems to have been the favorite, and many stories are told of the father's special interest in this boy as well as his tact in handling his wife. Mrs. Lincoln is said to have been the possessor of a temper that was far from mild, and the President was used to "giving in" for the sake of peace. The following little incident occurred just after Lincoln's election. Little Tad came running into the room where his parents were sitting.

"Oh, Father," he exclaimed, "now that you are elected we will all be President, won't we?"

"No, son," replied Mr. Lincoln looking at his wife, "only me and your mother!"

Fine Story-teller Himself.

Lincoln himself was regarded as a fine story-teller, and during his law practice he turned many a jury in favor of his client by the aid of a story which illustrated the point he wished to make. He was shrewd in his cross-examinations, as shown in the case where he was defending a man charged with murder. One of the witnesses testified that he had seen the crime committed by the light of the moon. Lincoln drew the man out and had him tell and retell the story. Finally, when the case was ready for the jury he produced the almanac and proved that there was no moon on the night of the murder. The man was promptly acquitted.

Always Charitable.

In his law practice he was charitable and defended many poor people, never receiving a penny for his work, although he was a poor man himself. Once when his wife urged him to sue a client for his fee he declined, saying that he knew if the man had the money he would pay, and then added that he knew his duty toward his fellowman.

Gets Out Of Critical Situations.

He was an adept in getting out of a critical situation, especially when he found his opponent in temper, and in these cases his dry humor served him well. A keen student of human nature, he knew how to handle people to the best advantage and how to avert a clash. On one occasion a Governor of a State called to see him because a man he had recommended for a certain office had not been appointed. He remained a long time in the President's office and finally emerged smiling although he failed in his mission.

"How did you manage that?" asked one of the President's friends who knew the irate visitor.

"Oh!" said Mr. Lincoln, "I just ploughed around him, and it took me three hours to do it and I expected every minute he would find it out."

At another time Senator Fessenden came from the Capitol in a terrible rage because Mr. Lincoln had made certain promises in matters of patronage, which he considered unjust to himself and he reproached the President in intemperate language. Mr. Lincoln made no explanation or reply until the fury of the words had been spent, then he said in a droll way:

"You are an Episcopalian, aren't you, Fessenden?"

"Yes, sir, I belong to that Church," replied the astonished Senator.

"I thought so! You Episcopalians all swear alike. Seward is an Episcopalian; Stanton is a Presbyterian—you ought to hear him swear!" Then he proceeded to describe the different kinds of swearing and analyzed each one until the Senator's anger died away and he was able to discuss the matter in a rational manner.

He was continually pestered by people who asked troublesome questions or desired to tell him long stories of their troubles, and when an officer of low volunteer rank persisted in telling and retelling his troubles to the President on a summer afternoon when that official was careworn, he finally turned from the man, and looking out upon the broad Potomac said in a peremptory tone that ended the interview: "Now, my man, go away, go away. I cannot meddle in your case. I could as easily bale out the Potomac River with a teaspoon as attend to all the details of the Army!"

Women Callers Too Much.

Women callers were among his greatest worries, and on one occasion a handsome and attractively gowned young woman called to see him in reference to a relative who was in prison suffering great injustice. After listening to her for a little while he concluded, as he afterward explained, that he was too soft to deal with her and sent her to the War Department with a sealed envelope containing a card upon which he had written:

"This woman, dear Stanton, is smarter than she looks to be."

Another woman came to the White House one morning on an unusual errand which the President suspected was a pretext but he took her at her word and gave her a letter to the head of the Quartermaster's Department. It read as follows:

"My Dear Sir:

"The lady—bearer of this—says she has two sons who want to work. Set them at it if possible. Wanting to work is so rare a merit that it should be encouraged.

"A. LINCOLN."

His sarcasm over reports of army officers that he did not believe is shown by the answer he gave to a man who begged Mr. Lincoln to tell him how many Rebels were in the field.

"Twelve hundred thousand, according to the best authority," he replied.

"Good heavens!" said the man.

"Yes, sir, twelve hundred thousand—no doubt of it. You see, all of our generals when they get whipped say the enemy outnumbered them from three or five to one, and I must believe them. We have four hundred thousand men in the field, and three times four makes twelve. Don't you see it?"

Kindness During War.

Lincoln's kindness knew no bounds during the dark days of the Civil War when relatives came to see him in reference to the men who were fighting and he frequently threw orders to the winds when he found worthy cases where mercy had to be tempered with justice, much to the disgust of the War Department. One day an old man came to him with the sad story of the conviction of his son for an unpardonable crime. He was the only son and he had been sentenced to death.

"I am sorry, but I can do nothing for you," said the President. "See this telegram I received from General Butler yesterday:

"'President Lincoln, I pray you not to interfere with the court-martial of the army. You will destroy all discipline among our soldiers.

"'B. F. BUTLER.'"

The President looked at the old man so bowed with grief for a few minutes. Then he said:

"Butler or no Butler, this boy must not die," and writing a few words on a slip of paper he handed it to the old man. It read:

"Job Smith is not to be shot until further orders from me.

"ABRAHAM LINCOLN."

"Why," said the old man sadly, "I thought it was a pardon. You may order him to be shot next week!"

"My old friend," replied the President, "if your son never dies 'till orders come from me to shoot him, he will live to be a great deal older than Methuselah."

A young bride came to see the President one day in reference to her husband who was about to be shot for not returning to his regiment at the end of a furlough during which time he had married. During the honeymoon his regiment was moved, and not knowing this he gave himself only time enough to reach their former station and found himself too late to join them at the next camp. He was accredited as a deserter. The President listened to her story and sent her to the War Department. Here she was met with a curt refusal and rebuked for troubling the President. With her hopes at a low ebb she turned to leave and met the President coming up the steps. She was weeping and the President, recognizing her at once, asked her if she had failed to see the Secretary. Through her tears she explained her treatment and again begged the President's aid, protesting that her husband would never again fail in his duty.

"Make yourself no further trouble," said the President, patting her on the shoulder. The order was issued. The young husband gave his life for his country at Gettysburg a year later.

The President frequently visited the military camps and questioned the men, especially the prisoners. His love of justice was proverbial and on several occasions he saved men from being shot as deserters after an investigation of their cases and turned them into far better soldiers than they had been before.

One might tell hundreds of stories illustrating the splendid character of this man who served his country so well, but in the short space of a newspaper article space will permit only a few—yet enough to show the kindly nature and love of justice of this rare statesman who went down to his death just as a bright day was dawning over a reunited country—the land he loved so well.

FROM THE EDUCATOR'S NOTE BOOK

Manufacturers, educators, labor leaders and noted economists from all parts of the union will meet in Indianapolis, on February 21-24, to attend the tenth annual convention of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education. The chief interest of the gathering centers around the state-wide survey which Indiana has been carrying on for the past year, and which will go down in history as the first state to make a complete vocational survey for the purpose of increasing the productive efficiency of its commonwealth. In city, town and rural district, unusual questions have been asked about the training that workers can get on their jobs; about the extent and uses of apprenticeship, about part-time courses and evening schools; to what extent the industries may give special training which they do not provide and to what extent the schools can be a factor in providing that training. The answering of these questions will show Indiana the kind of vocational education the state needs and how it best can be given.

Prof. Frank W. Taussig, head of the department of economics at Harvard University, who has accepted the invitation of President Wilson to become a member of the National Tariff Commission and to serve as its chairman, is a native of St. Louis, and represents the older type of German-American, so numerous in that city, a type which had a striking record during the Civil war as advocates of and fighters for national unity. Sent to Harvard, he graduated with his bent for economics thoroughly developed. Supplementary study fitted him for an instructor's post on the topic at Harvard, and in 1886 he became a professor of economics at the university. The "Tariff History of the United States," published in 1888, at once established his standing, and later books on wages and capital, the principles of economics and inventors and moneymakers have but added to his reputation at home and abroad. Prof Taussig has been granted leave of absence for a year and a half from Harvard to devote his time wholly to the commission, and takes up his new duties at Washintgon this week.

The governors of Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee, the three states whose borders meet at Cumberland Gap, Tenn., will deliver addresses of welcome to the notable men and women who are expected to attend the memorial celebration at Lincoln Memorial University, February 10, 11 and 12. The exercises will commemorate not only the birthday of Lincoln but also the 20th anniversary of the founding of the university by Geo. O. C. Howard of Vermont. A wide range of subjects embracing the life of Lincoln and his views on social and political questions as they would apply to the problems of the present day will be discussed, and during the celebration a Lincoln National Patriotic League will be organized, having for its object the dissemination of the fundamental principles of Americanism among colleges, chautauquas, churches, schools and industries. Among the educators who have accepted the invitation of Rev. Dr. John Wesley Hill, the newly elected chancellor of the university, to be present at the ceremonies are the presidents of Roanoke College, Wesleyan University, Georgetown University, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, University of Kentucky, University of South Carolina, Carthage College and Moore's Hill College; also several public leaders, governors, senators and captains of industry and finance.

Most interesting tales are told of the school conducted at Bolpur, India, by Sir Rabindranath Ragore, the great Hindu poet and winner of the Nobel prize in literature, who recently competed a tour of lectures in the United States. The poet's American tour was for the special purpose of getting funds for his school, which is a semi-philanthropic enterprise, and it was very lucrative, great audiences having invariably greeted the distinguished visitor from the east. Sir Rabindranath may be a dreamer out of the east, but according to all accounts, the boys under his tuition have no time to dream in bed before school hours. They begin their day at half past four in the morning. But as the school is out of doors they may climb in trees to study if they choose, there is no marching in at the tap of a bell and staying imprisoned for several hours. There is never any closer confinement than that of a porch; classrooms with hard benches and rules and quiet and silence are unknown, and every boy is put on his honor as a gentleman. With all this, visitors to this remarkable school have had to admit that the pupils were practically and splendidly at work intellectually, and that remarkable results are being produced. The school is now famous in two hemispheres, and European and American educators visit it in greater and greater numbers to study the wonderful methods of the poet-philosopher.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR IN FEBRUARY

The January issue of "The Dixie Endeavor" told graphically of the "Florida navy" field work done along the rivers of southeastern Florida.

For the writer of these Christian Endeavor notes there is a kindly "know how it goes" feeling for the hero of next Sunday's meeting, Zacheus, who was "little of stature." But there are beautiful lessons of encouragement for large folks, also; indeed it is a subject of many helpful heart features, and comes well right after "Decision Sunday."

Much space this week is to be devoted to bright glimpses of the work done for our organization by Mr. Fagg. We would like to say "Go, thou, and do likewise" to multitudes of Christian workers who are too busy in other divisions of service, they say, to devote much thought to ours. This is what Mr. Fagg wrote us: "I had the privilege of attending the meeting of the Fernandina C. E. Society Sunday night, and they had a union service of all the churches under the auspices of the Presbyterian C. E. Society. We had a wonderfully fine crowd and a very attentive audience. My speech was "The Fruits of Christian Endeavor." I hope that the service was of help and an inspiration to the Endeavorers and the people of that community.

Next Sunday I go to Mt. Dora to present the silver trophy for the third successive time. Tonight I take part in the mock trial at the First Christian church in Jacksonville, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Union, and on Friday night I take the same part in the mock trial at Live Oak under the auspices of the C. E. Society there. You will see that I am giving some thought and time to Christian Endeavor and the promotion of its great work."

We are hoping that Christian Endeavor Week was a great success all over the state. "Christian Progress," state union organ of workers in the great Illinois Union, said: "Whatever else you do during Christian Endeavor week, observe Sunday, Feb. 4th, as Decision Day." This is advice we heartily believe in, and would like to know how it was carried out in Florida. Here in Interlachen a helpful talk by our honored visitor, State Treasurer G. A. Cavanagh, from Palatka, was something we will not soon forget.

From Springfield suburb workers in Jacksonville has come to our office a beautifully framed photograph showing the All-South Convention delegates on the state capitol grounds with, of course, the Florida delegation, "to the front." This is a gift for happy memories in coming years.

Ex-State Treasurer Herman B. Baker, from Georgia, who located some weeks ago on the banks of the Homosassa river, concluded not to stay there. He has promised to let us know where the next move would be to, and we surely hope it will not be out of this state, where earnest C. E. workers are so needed.

All Honor to Florida, Modern Phoenix

(An Appreciation)

The ancients who made undying impression on the world's history firmly patterned their lives after the Phoenix, which lived a definite period, then burst into flame, rising re-born and greater from its own ashes.

All honor to Florida, Phoenix of the modern world! Valiant is the spirit of the Land of Flowers! A drooping orange tree, a blackened strawberry vine, arouse hardly a moment's attention, except to stimulate to renewed effort, to greater accomplishment.

And part of this great accomplishment is to vision the mighty Hereford coming over the horizon, to hear the clatter of the caterpillar tractor turning over the earth so it may produce money, to utilize the remarkable soil and climate of this wonder-State in producing abundant corn, cattle and hogs—daily necessities of the human race—safe profit-makers year in and year out.

Every land-owner in Florida can raise this trinity of thrift, if only in limited fashion. The great profits, of course, are in large operations along these lines, effecting economies through combined capital, experience, management and vastness. Corporations capitalized at half a million dollars or more are raising corn, cattle and hogs in Florida on a huge and profitable scale for hungry markets; their securities bear participation in the profits, in addition to a stipulated minimum net dividend. Our booklet tells the facts, and opportunity is offered to examine the properties—food-factories that have no seasons, strikes or shut-downs, working unendingly to produce dividends. Write for this booklet.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Suffrage Week Among the Newspapers.

Plans for the gigantic, many-in-one special suffrage edition of newspapers are maturing rapidly under the direction of the National American Woman Suffrage association. Thanks to the interest and good will of editors and newspaper proprietors, there will be enough papers in line to plaster the country west to the Rockies and south to the gulf with a huge suffrage sheet. The week chosen for this demonstration is February 19-26, though some papers will not have their special editions until during the first week of March. Four pages of suffrage features have been prepared by the "National" for the use of plate-using papers and various special features are at the command of the large dailies that are to give special space during February. Among the latter as now listed are the Baltimore American, the Detroit Journal, the Providence, R. I., Journal, the Providence, R. I., Times, the St. Paul Daily News, the Minneapolis Daily News, the Duluth Herald etc. Oklahoma newspapers are pledging special support in view of the imminence of suffrage as a campaign issue in that state. North Dakota suffragists find editors very hospitable to the idea of the special editions because of the great suffrage victory just won in that state (presidential suffrage.) Georgia suffragists report a fine prospect for the plan in that state. South Carolina is interested. So is Nebraska. So is Rhode Island. It would seem from present indications that every section of the country will be covered.

Attention, Democrats!

Figures put out by anti-suffrage official sources show that in the last presidential election women voters rallied to the support of Mr. Hughes by only 37 per cent of their whole electoral college vote, while men's votes supported Mr. Hughes to the extent of 48 per cent of their electoral college vote. Think of that, democrats, who hesitate to open wide the gates to women's votes! 63 per cent of the total woman vote was for Wilson. The anti-suffragists themselves concede it.

President Wilson Congratulates North Dakota.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National American Woman Suffrage association, has received the following letter from President Wilson:

"My dear Mrs. Catt: May I not express to you and your organization, as well as to the women of North Dakota, my congratulations upon the passage by the legislature of that state of a bill granting to the women of the state the right to vote for presidential electors and for municipal officers? As you know, I have a very real interest in the extension of the suffrage to the women, and I feel that every step in this direction should be applauded.

Cordially and sincerely yours,

(Signed)—Woodrow Wilson.

Mrs. Catt says that the president's letter "will exert a profound influence in all the states where bills for presidential suffrage are pending."

Under the provisions of the North Dakota presidential suffrage bill, North Dakota women can vote for presidential electors, county surveyors, county constables, and for all officers of cities, villages, and towns (except police magistrates and city justices of the peace), and for the township clerk, overseer of highways, assessor, treasurer and constables. That is to say, North Dakota women can vote for all officers that are not created by the state constitution.

Eleven Women Legislators.

Figures in the hands of the National American Woman Suffrage association show that there are eleven women at desks in the lower house of five different states, in 1917: Washington has one, Mrs. Ina P. Williams, (R); Montana has two, Mrs. Maggie Smith Hathaway, (D), and Mrs. Emma A. Ingalls, (R); Arizona has three, Mrs. Rosa McKay, (D); Mrs. George B. Marsh, (D), and Mrs. Pauline O'Neill, (D); Utah has four, Mrs. Elizabeth T. Hayward, (D), Mrs. Grace Stratton-Airey, (D); Mrs. Daisy C. Allen, (D), Mrs. Alma Greewood, (D); Oregon has one, Mrs. Alexander Thompson, (D). It will be seen that nine of the eleven are democrats and two republicans. No senators were elected in any state.

And Montana Won!

Three states contested for the right to claim the first woman congressman. The woman who ran for United States congress were Mrs. Frances C. Axtell, progressive, of Washington; Dr. Eva Harding, (D), of Kansas, and Miss Jeannette Rankin, (R), of Montana. Only Miss Rankin was elected.

FINANCIAL NEWS

Furnished The Herald Daily By Clement D. Cates & Co., Jacksonville and Miami

New York, Feb. 10.—Summary: United States Steel unfilled tonnage figures due at noon. President, following cabinet meeting, decides to go before congress only after naval forces have been called upon to protect American lives and property. Gerard's departure from Berlin scheduled for today may be postponed until February 13, same day Bernstorff leaves here. Two American freighters leave New York today for the war zone with no guns, no contraband, believed to be test cases. The New York Sun says official and diplomatic circles in Washington hear Germany is determined to force complete rupture with United States. National Biscuit declared regularly quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on common and preferred stock. Preferred payable February 24, common April 14. Average price 20 industrials 90.70, off .24; 20 active rails 96.81, up .06.

Cotton: Rains were general east of the Mississippi river yesterday, while generally fair weather prevailed over western states. The indications are for generally fair weather today and Sunday east of Mississippi river except for unsettled conditions and probably rain in the east gulf states.

New York Cotton Exchange weekly statistics, visible supply all kinds 5,478,199 against 5,985,278 last year and 7,111,340 in 1915. American visible 4,225,159 against 4,506,278 and 5,786,540.

Takings for the season of American to date 8,428,291, against 7,842,686 and 6,812,658 year before.

Hog receipts: 21,000, against holiday last year; left over 6,900; market opened steady. Cattle and sheep weak.

Harris, Winthrop: Narrow trading market with everybody proceeding cautiously pending further developments.

S. B. Chapin—Present situation is by far too complicated for the maintenance of any important advance.

Stock Market Opinions—Thomson & McKinnon: Our advices to liquidate holdings with a view to replacing when real bargains are offered.

Logan & Bryan: Judged by the usual standards, securities at prevailing level present, in many instances, great attractions for permanent investment.

S. B. Chapin & Co.: The belief now prevails that we will be eventually drawn into war and best policy would be to continue a readjustment of speculative commitments.

Stock Letter: It is the investment market more than the speculative market that is suffering. Good bonds as well as investment stocks are hard to sell. This in turn affects other securities and causes an unwillingness to buy which limits the market. Until we know whether it is war this state of affairs will continue.

New York, Feb. 10.—Stocks: The technical position of the market is good. Fortunately the street is comparatively bare of stocks, and we think stocks should be bought on good recessions. E. F. Hutton & Co.

Owing to the present unsettled state of national affairs, it behooves everyone to trade in a very cautious way, many factors of the cotton situation are bullish but an outbreak of hostilities would perhaps cause a temporary decline, in fact most people would expect it. It is time for caution, but cotton will almost surely sell higher.

The evening up of traders in preparation for the doube holiday is likely to influence further irregularity in the stock market. Bache.

Grain Letter—Wheat: Larger wheat operators rather more friendly but operating on a very small scale. Smaller traders bearish. Market interests anticipate a change in methods. In the absence of any special news, operations today will be mainly in the way evening up for the holidays.

Corn: As in wheat smaller traders in corn are fighting any advance. Buying comes not only from influential traders but from seaboard houses. Strength in cash is worthy of note. Number 3 grade selling at better than May price.

Oats: Better demand in oat pit than recently and friends being made by reports of heavy export business in Canadians.

Cotton: Small, steady market. Mitchell & Weld, brokers, buying. Waters sold a little. 9:15 a. m.

Wheat opened firm, with commission houses good buyers. 9:32 a. m.

Stocks: Tone firm. Hornblower & Weeks buying Steel. 9:33 a. m.

Grain: Wagner big buyer of wheat. 9:35 a. m.

Wheat: Bulge not due to buying. It was simply an attempt and market was all cleared up.

Corn: Seems plenty for sale at 102¼. 9:45 a. m.

Washington—Gerard will leave Berlin today for Swiss frotnier, the state department was officially informed by Dr. Ritter, Swiss minister. Dow Jones, 10 a. m.

I am predicting an advance in the general market next. J. S. Bache.

AMUSEMENTS

Today at Paramount.

William Farnum will be seen today and tomorrow in William Fox's first super-feature "The Price of Silence," a dramatic portrayal of a strong man's temptations, in which is presented a powerful story of love and renunciation woven into the theme of burning public interest, child slavery.

William Farnum takes the part of Senator Frank Deering who has devoted his life in trying to alleviate the misery of child labor. Judge Vernon, his dearest friend, aids him in the strenuous fight for the child's right to live. Circumstances compel Vernon to borrow money from Henry McCarthy, who is chiefly responsible for inhuman factory conditions.

Judge Vernon cannot meet his obligations, so he accepts a bribe from McCarthy. Soon afterward, Vernon is stricken with heart failure, but before he dies he tells Deering of his secret shame. To keep Vernon's name unsullied, the Senator makes a deal with McCarthy, and votes against his own child labor bill, while the world, unknowing of the sacrifice mocks and jeers.

Margaret Clark Today at Fotosho.

"Silks and Satins," in which the adorable Marguerite Clark is starred by the Famous Players Film company, is a true and tender reflection of every youthful dream that was ever dreamed. This delightful photo-play presents a romance that begins with the present, goes back to mediaeval times and returns to modernity for its climax. The plot is revealed by a very unique method of photo-play construction. Felicite, the charming heroine portrayed by Marguerite Clark, finds on the day she is to be married to the man she does not love, the diary of an ancestress whose experience strangely paralleled hers. In this musty little volume there is inscribed a story of thrills, heart-aches, love battles and deeds of glory, which are enacted in Felicite's mind—and upon the screen—and which suggests the solution to her own romatic problem. "Silks and Satins" is one of the sweetest and most charming photo-play romances yet produced on the Paramount Program by the Famous Players Film company.

Hazelle Burgess and Her Company at The Strand.

For the first three days of this week this popular company of players will offer that extremely funny farce comedy, "Baby Mine." It was first presented at Daly's Theatre, New York City, and ran for nearly a year, and prior to its opening there many friends of Miss Margaret Mayo, the author, tried to persuade her to wait for an opening at a less pretentous theatre as Daly's had had a long reign of comedy offering by the best known writers in the world and therefore the critics might give it a severe handling and ruin her chances of success. But she was not to be deterred and her judgment was right, for it was accepted with thunders of applause and Miss Mayo was at once placed in the category of America's best farce writers.

The plot has to do with a baby and before the end arrives there are three babies involved and the complications come thick and fast so that the majority of the time the curtain is up risibilities of the audience are excited to the highest degree and a merry evening's entertainment can be relied upon.

Let it be understood the three babies in question are not natives and are utter strangers to Miami and won't even tell their names. Perhaps Bert Leigh, in one of his little curtain talks, may take the patrons into his confidence and reveal the names of the little strangers.

For the last half of the week "Our New Minister," a pastorial comedy drama by the late Denman Thompson, who was the star of "The Old Homestead" for nearly a decade, will be the bill.

Charity? Big Film Expose to Be Shown at the Hippodrome.

Manager Foster of the Hippodrome Theatre announces that he has closed a contract with the Mutual Film Corporation for the exclusive local right to exhibit the great new Linda A. Griffith social drama, "Charity?" acknowledged by the foremost sociologists of the country, including Dr. C. H. Parkhurst of New York and ex-President Theodore Roosevelt, to be a play of extraordinary power.

"Charity?," in a review given at the Ziegfeld Theatre in Chicago, won the enthusiastic approval of a large audience made up of judges, ministers, lawyers, doctors, social workers and heads of charitable organizations, many prominent men and women afterwards writing to President John R. Freuler of the Mutual Film Corporation, thanking him for the invitations extended and emphatically indorsing the play as a tremendous influence for social betterment.

"Charity?" is a gripping drama of slum and orphanage life, telling the story of "graft" that fastens on even the supplies paid for by a sympathetic public and diverts the money realized from their sale to supporting idle and vicious officials in luxury while the little folk in the institutions receive starvation rations.

The play was written by Mrs. David Wark Griffith, after she had spent years in investigation of conditions in certain orphanages in various parts of the country.

AMERICANS MUST BE FREE TO TRAVEL SEA

President Wilson Has Found A Definite Plan For the Future Events

IS FULLY DETERMINED

To Maintain the Rights of All the Americans Everywhere

Washington, Feb. 9.—President Wilson has framed a definite course in the event that Germany commits an overt act against this country.

When the president goes before congress, after he deems such an act has been committed, he will not ask that war be declared, but he will ask to be allowed to use whatever measures he deems necessary for the protection of American seamen and travelers.

The president, it was stated, is as anxious as ever to avoid war, but is determined that American citizens and American ships shall be free to travel the high seas unmolested.

The next step, if taken, will be to enforce that right even if the issue be war or peace with Germany.

Any hostile action will have to come from interference with an American right.

No new development indicating an overt act, still regarded as inevitable, has arisen.

SUBMARINE BASE AT PANAMA CANAL.

Washington, Feb. 9.—The immediate creation of a submarine base at Coco Solo Point, Atlantic entrance of the Panama canal, was recommended by Secretary Baker, today, who asked for $1,573,000 for the purpose.

The project is urged by the joint army and navy board as an essential element of the defense of the canal.

The communication was referred to the appropriations committee, which is already considering the emergency measures proposed by the administration.

COULD MOBOLIZE HOSPITAL FORCE FOR MILLION MEN.

Washington, Feb. 9.—An expert hospital force sufficient for an army of a million could be mobilized within a few days, it is announced, today by officials of the Red Cross.

BIDS TO PROVIDE VAST NUMBER OF UNIFORMS.

Philadelphia, Feb. 9.—The Schuylkill Arsenal has been asked for bids on material to provide uniforms for a half million men. The expenditure is estimated at about fifteen million dollars.

GUNFIRE BEST DESTROYERS

New York, Feb. 9.—That direct gunfire from the decks of warships or auxiliary vessels in the hands of experienced gunners, it is learned from authoritative source, is the most effective method employed thus far against submarines.

Many plans to catch submarines have been tried but have been abandoned.

Owing to the rigid censorship, it is impossible to learn the number of submarines destroyed in this manner.

$300,000 BOND ISSUE PLANS ST. LUCIE CO.

Wide Awake To the Value of Good Roads In Trucking Section

Fort Pierce, Feb. 9.—Realizing that if St. Lucie county is to continue the marvelous development pace which she has maintained in the past, adequate transportation facilities must be afforded all the chief trucking sections of the county, recognizing the economy of permanently preserving the present hardsurfaced highways, and yielding to the demand of a public sentiment that has continually gathered force during the past two years, the board of county commissioners at Tuesday's regular session set the ball rolling for a $300,000 bond issue for road purposes, by instructing County Attorney Fred Fee to prepare the necessary papers for presentation at the March meeting, at which time it is expected that more definite action will be taken by the calling of an election.

To meet present outstanding indebtedness and immediate needs the board issued $25.000 in time warrants and sold the issue immediately at private sale, the Bank of Fort Pierce buying the issue at par and accrued interest. The warrants are dated March 1st, 1917, and run for 25 years, maturing $1,000 annually. The road fund is at present overdrawn from $15,000 to $17,000.

THREE WRECKS AREREPORTED IN KEY WEST

Havoc Wrought By Recent Heavy Gales—"Cumberland County" On A Reef

Key West, Feb. 9.—Three wrecks near here resulted from recent heavy winds. The schooner Charles K. Schull, from Gulfport, foundered February 1 in the gulf. The crew was picked up and brought here on the schooner Mount Vernon.

On Saturday last the three mast "Cumberland County" from Novia Scotia was wrecked on a reef about two miles west of Tortugas light. She carried a crew of eight men. The fishing smack "Elsie" of Carribelle came to the rescue and after a day's battle with the wind and waves and cold succeeded in bringing off the crew. The dory bringing off the wrecked crew was swamped twice. The men of the small boat endured great hardships and showed much fortitude in making the rescue. The ones of the Elsie who brought off the men from the Cumberland County were Thomas Hennesy, John Fergerson, Alex Steinberg and a Norwegian. The Cumberland County is a new boat that has only been in use about four months. Her initial cost was forty-five thousand dollars. She was loaded with lumber out of Gulfport. Her crew were brought to this port.

WRECK

Of the Yacht Huntress Between Miami and the Bahamas Is Reported

WAS NO LOSS OF LIFE

Captain George Manning, Edward Philpitt and George Tworger Safe In N. Y.

A telegram was received in the city yesterday conveying the information that the yacht Huntress, which belongs to D. H. Houston of this city, and which was commanded by Captain George Manning, was abandoned at sea on Monday last and the captain and two passengers were picked up at sea and carried to New York where they landed yesterday.

The telegram announcing this fact was received from Captain Manning yesterday afternoon and was addressed to Captain A. T. Piner, of the yacht Victoria, which is tied up at the Elser pier. The telegram was very meager regarding Captain Manning's two passengers who left here with him on board the Huntress late Saturday night, but as there was nothing in the telegram to indicate anything very serious it is inferred that all hands were saved.

Those on board the Huntress were Edward Philpitt of 818 Fifteenth street, this city, and George I. Tworger, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who was visiting in Miami at the time. These two men chartered the Huntress from Captain Manning on Thursday last for a trip to Bimini, Bahama Islands, for which place they set sail from Cape Florida early Sunday morning.

Friends of the two men told last night of their being invited to take the trip, but owing to the weather conditions they refused. One of these was W. A. Thompson, who advised against leaving for the Bahamas at the time on account of the bad weather conditions, but the members of the party were sure that they would be all right.

The Huntress was well stocked with supplies by Captain Manning and pulled out of Elser pier Saturday. It was their intention to lay off the cape all night Saturday and leave from there early Sunday morning for the Bahamas.

As nothing more was heard of the yacht it was supposed that the men had reached the islands and the dispatch which came to Captain Piner, late yesterday afternoon, was a complete surprise. It contained the information that the captain was safe and would leave for Miami on Monday next. Nothing was said in the dispatch about any other member of the party.

The yacht Huntress is a raised deck cruiser which has been used for charter purposes here for several seasons past. The boat is owned by D. H. Houston, of this city, who was informed of the message from Captain Manning yesterday, and who took Captain Piner to the Manning home in order to inform Mrs. Manning of her husband's safety.

Mr. Thompson and other members of the local lodge of Moose told of their narrow escape from being with the party last night. The members of the party who were affiliated with the Moose lodge insisted on several others making the trip with them, but business and uneasiness about the weather prevented any of them from going and Mr. Tworger and Mr. Philpitt went alone. Among the others who were invited to accompany the party besides Mr. Thompson were City Tax Assessor T. A. Price, Will N. Elliot and E. V. Sawyer.

A telegram was also received from Baltimore last night which conveyed the information that a motor boat was found disabled off the Florida coast and the occupants were picked up by a steamer and taken to Baltimore. The names of the members of this party were given as Philips, Dowdry and another man. The dispatch said that the launch was bound from Miami to the Bahamas.

MOORE HAVEN AS VIEWED BY ESTERO PAPER

Speaks of the Very Busy Week Ending January 29 and Land Sales

The American Eagle, an energetic and enterprising publication printed in Estero, Fla., under date of February 1st, speaks enthusiastically of the Moore Haven country. Moore Haven is fast becoming a household word on the west coast as well as on the east coast. The Eagle says:

"The week ending Jan. 29, has proven to be a great epoch in the upbuilding and development of Moore Haven. Every day has been one of great enthusiasm, and filled with much interest. More visitors have been entertained, more sight-seers have come, and more land sales made than any previous week since Moore Haven has been established.

"On Saturday, Mrs. King, proprietress of the Moore Haven hotel, had eighty-four guests. The other two hotels and restaurants were also overcrowded.

"On Thursday, Dr. Clower, of Wade, Clower & Wade, contractors for the Atlantic Coast Line, was in Moore Haven, coming from Arcadia by automobile. With him was Mr. Whitten, who had the contract for clearing the right-of-way from Sebring to Moore Haven, and is getting ready for the graders. Dr. Clower stated that he expected the railroad would be completed to Moore Haven by August 1st; that the contractors had instructions from the officers of the road to hurry the road to Moore Haven to completion, at the earliest possible moment, and build the Immokalee extension after this line was completed. Following the visit of Dr. Clower, comes the locating corps of the Atlantic Coast Line,— Mr. Fore and his assistants,—to locate the terminals in Moore Haven. They will complete their work this week.

"The realty department made over $40,000.00 of land sales during the week."

FINANCIAL NEWS

Furnished The Herald Daily By Clement D. Cates & Co., Jacksonville and Miami

New York, Feb. 9.—Cotton: It is needless to say the situation is very unsettled and that everybody is still proceeding with utmost caution. Meantime it is only a trading market on a very conservative scale. New York due to 15 to 16 points higher on Liverpool.

Boston—Germany asks all neutrals to vacate war zone in 48 hours.

Wreen Bros. sold about 20,000 steel and still selling.

Absence of buying in grain makes crowd bearish.

German interests selling railroad investments.

It is anybody's guess as to the immediate turn of prices.

Press advices from Norfolk say that a fleet of 25 British, French and Italian ships left Virginian ports yesterday loaded with cotton and war munitions and were picked up by a convoy of war ships 25 miles off shore. International situation remains controlling factor in market.

Stocks: Reported Midvale Steel has received new United States government contract for 26 of the 16-inch naval type guns to cost approximately $75,000 each. Josephthal & Co.

Wheat: Demand is broadening.

Washington—Secretary Lansing today said: "I am very loath to believe that the German government is intentionally detaining Ambassador Gerard in Berlin on any excuse whatever. I would be very much surprised at any such practice."

We think steel is full of stop orders below 104.

Cotton: Some scattered liquidation and a little hammering by room traders. There is a report, apparently unfounded, that the Baltic had been towed into a German port. This caused a little selling for a time. Market now quiet.

New York, Feb. 9.—Liverpool cables due one higher on October and 1½ to 2 points lower on old.

London dispatch says gunner on California had gun trained on ship when latter discharged torpedo. This might justify sinking of vessel on ground of self-defense. Average price twenty industrials 90.94, off 1.24: twenty active rails 96.75, off .22.

Car Lots: Wheat 84; 3; 84; 98. Corn 155; 12; 157; 454. Oats 94; 49; 95; 154. Stock Yard report: Hog receipts 32,000 against 40,000 last year. Left over 7,700; mixed 11.75 @ 12.40; rough 11.90 @ 12.15; light 11.65 @ 12.35; good heavy, 12.20 @ 12.40. Cattle and sheep steady.

Thomson & McKinnon: Suggest liquidation of long securities at present prices, feeling that the time is not far distant when purchases can be made to much better advantage than at present.

Harris Winthrop & Co: From our viewpoint the situation is quite sound.

Stock Letter: The dribbling of long stock in the railroad list still continues very noticeably in St. Paul. Odd lot houses report for the first time a demand for investment stocks. Until the German question is settled we cannot expect anyone to take a position on either side of the market. Confusion reigns and uncertainty always checks activity.

Grain Letter: Wheat—Sentiment very mixed, bear side gaining friends.

Corn: The only demand for corn for export yesterday was reported from St. Louis, and that was for immediate shipment. Smaller traders here are bearish, while one or two of the larger ones are talking higher prices.

London dispatch says: "Heavy troop movements are under way in Germany," says a Rotterdam dispatch to the Times. The dispatch adds that there is no lack of fuel in Germany but that there is a shortage of transport facilities.

DEEP CHANNEL BE HAD WITH PRESENT FUND

Will Soon Be Possible For Vessels Drawing Fifteen Feet To Enter Bay

Money now available for use in constructing the government's part of the Miami harbor improvements will permit of widening the channel through the peninsula opposite Miami to fully three hundred feet and to a depth of twenty feet, according to Lieutenant Colonel W. B. Ladue, corps of engineers of the war department, who arrived in Miami yesterday to hold a public hearing relative to other improvements in the bay and inspect the progress on the ship channel.

Colonel Ladue said that if the one hundred and sixty thousand dollars included in the bill before the senate becomes available, it will be possible to extend the jetties and to dredge a turning basin within the bay with this sum.

A turning basin is provided for in the previous enactments of congress and plans of the war department, but it is understood that this work was deferred until additional appropriations became available.

The pending bill provides for a survey for a depth of twenty-five feet in the Miami ship channel, and the belief is entertained by Colonel Ladue that even if the bill should be badly slashed the appropriation for making the survey will be permitted to remain, as congress rarely cuts out an appropriation for making a survey.

If weather permits, it is thought that the Bowers Southern Dredging company, contractors for both city and government contracts, will begin dredging at once to remove a sand bar at the outer edge of the channel which now prevents egress and ingress of boats drawing more than fourteen feet, and within a few days it will be possible for vessels having a draft of fifteen to sixteen feet to enter Miami harbor.

TENNESSEE RESIDENT LONGING FOR MIAMI

A prominent business man of Chattanooga, Tenn., writing from that city February 5 to a Miami friend, says:

"We certainly would like to be in old Miami this morning. The temperature dropped forty degrees yesterday, and ranged around zero this morning. Our office feels a good deal like the inside of an odorless refrigerator stocked with 200 pounds of ice."

The writer of the above wish has been a Miami visitor and knows what it is to luxuriate here in the winter time. His office in Chattanooga is in one of the most modern steam-heated skyscrapers in that city.

APPEAL MADE TO CITIZENS WITH ROOMS

Throw Miami Homes Open To Visitors Who Are Looking For Accommodations

THRONGS ARE COMING

And the Honor of the City, As A Courteous Host Is At Stake

To the Miami citizens:

We appeal to you to open your homes and provide accommodations for the increasing number of tourists arriving in Miami daily.

Every hotel in the city is full to capacity, and it is the duty of the residents to list every available room with the Chamber of Commerce information bureau and aid in taking care of the people now arriving.

We cannot afford to let people walk the streets and be forced to get on the trains and leave the city for lack of accommodations.

List your room today. The service is fres. Telephone 2.

MIAMI CHAMBER OF COM.
E. G. Sewell, president.

Practically all desirable rooms previously listed with the Chamber of Commerce have been rented, and yet daily the number of applicants increases. The young men at the information bureau have about exhausted their resources, despite their wilingness to help in every way possible to provide for the arrivals.

John L. Pepper, assistant secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who is devoting his time to finding rooms for new comers, declared yesterday that he is positive there are at least a thousand unoccupied rooms in Miami which could be made available if the owners would throw them open to the tourists.

Hundreds are arriving daily, and many of these are unable to find lodging places and so are compelled against their wishes to board the trains and go to other towns, where they find conditions almost as bad. As fast as a room is vacated at any of the hotels, it is occupied immediately. Every hotel has a waiting list, but in the meantime the people coming in on the trains must have some place to stay, or walk the streets all night.

"We are doing everything we can," said Mr. Pepper, "yet we are almost helpless, and the people of Miami who have rooms must come to our aid. It is their duty to do so."

Managing Secretary Livingston declared the Chamber of Commerce has spent thousands of dollars advertising Miami and inviting the residents of the north to come to Miami this winter, and Miami must be equal to the occasion.

"Every man and woman in Miami should have too much pride to permit our invited guests to turn away without a place to lay their heads," Mr. Livingston declared. "Hundreds of Miamians have come to our aid, but still other hundreds must do so."

NO OBJECTION MADE TO PROPOSED ISLAND IN BISCAYNE BAY

No objection was offered yesterday at the public hearing conducted in the Chamber of Commerce by Lieutenant Colonel W. B. Ladue, corps of engineers, war department, relative to the proposal of the Miami Ocean View company to construct an island in Biscayne bay two thousand feet west of the east shore and eight hundred feet north of the proposed causeway.

The hearing was attended by J. Newton Lummus, E. B. Lent and John Levy for the Miami Ocean View company and William B. Garris, junior engineer, representing the war department in the harbor improvements now under way on the east side of the bay, and by Captain George Manson, recently appointed harbor master.

It was the opinion of everyone present that the proposed construction of the island would prove an aid rather than a hindrance to navigation, since it would be necessary for the Miami Ocean View company to remove a large amount of sand and mud from the bottom of the bay for building the island, thus greatly deepening the bay in that portion nearest to the island.

The blue prints filed with the war department by the Miami Ocean View company provide far an island twenty-six hundred feet long and one thousand feet wide, lying parallel with the east shore of the bay, and for a bridge eight hundred feet long and of sufficient widtir to permit two vehicles to pass. This bridge is intended to connect the island with the causeway.

Permission for the connection with the causeway has been obtained by the company from the board of county commissioners, and the company has bought from the state the floor of the bay on which the island will be built. All that now remains to be done before the actual work of construction is begun is to obtain the consent of the war department, which it is believed will probably be given, since there was no objection at yesterday's hearing.

Officers of the Miami Ocean View company estimate that the island will cost one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and it is the company's intention to expend an additional fifty thousand dollars in improvements before the sixty lots into which the island will be sub-divided are placed on the market.

DIXIE HIGHWAY TRACT—To those residing permanently in Miami and to tourists here for the season, J. A. Gates & Son have a message: We have formulated a plan whereby we can greatly reduce the price of real estate to purchasers, cause the business of real estate to be more highly respected, and to be more enjoyable and satisfactory to those engaged in the traffic. We purpose to sell lots in a tract by employing hired salesmen just as a merchant sells goods in his store by clerks in his employ. Parties visiting our Dixie Highway Tract, now being offered, will be shown over the tract by our salesmen. A tag bearing the lot and block number and price of lot is attached to a stake placed in front of each lot to be detached by purchaser and presented at office of tract owner, where papers in settlement will be drawn. We can, we believe, by this method save the purchaser 2½ per cent or more and complete the transaction most expeditiously and satisfactorily. We especially call attention to location of our Dixie Highway Tract. It adjoins the Charles Deering place on the north and extends from Dixie Highway to Bay View Ave., overlooking the Bay. All inside lots are held at a uniform price of $195 each, corners $300. If in this connection you note the fact that lots in Flander's tract which adjoins the Charles Deering place on the south, are held at prices ranging from about $3,000 to $5,000, and are on lower land, you will readily see that lots in Dixie Highway will certainly appreciate rapidly in value with the growth of Miami, and that you will make no mistake in buying now. Is it unreasonable to expect an advance of one hundred per cent in values within one year? May we not urge those of our home people thinking to secure a lot while cheap in price and most attractively located, to select now? May we not urge tourists seeking a place for building a winter home to visit us; and may we not especially urge builders who want to get a bunch of lots on which to build houses to sell or rent to select now while the selecting is good—the bunches are unbroken. Dixie Highway Tract has many advantages, such as electric lights, telephones, jitney busses about half hourly, ice, meat, groceries delivered daily, daily mail delivery, high school churches, literary clubs fraternities, and other advantages of a happy and cultured community. J. A. Gates & Son, 235 Twelfth street. Telephone 316.

ANOTHER BAD GUESS

From all that can be learned the British authorities do not seem to be unduly disturbed over the sudden eruption of Germany's ruthless campaign against the shipping of the world. The ordinary Britisher, after he gets into a fight, is not easily upset and he cannot be stampeded.

It is probable that the campaign inaugurated by Germany to sweep the seas of commerce, will end like other campaigns started by the central powers since the beginning of the war, and it may show that, once more, Germany has made some very bad calculations.

In August 1914 the German army was certain that within a few days it would occupy Paris. Its great campaign flung across Belgium and northeastern France had hardly been interrupted, and success was in sight. But something happened, and for two years the Germans have been clinging desperately to the lines back to which the French drove them.

Later Germany and Austria swept eastward over the plains of Poland and Russia in a great campaign to destroy the Russian armies. But inch by inch those Russian armies are driving back the invaders, and they do not occupy as much conquered territory as they did a year ago.

Still later, in an attempt to punish Rumania, the Teutonic allies overran that country and approached, again, the southside of Russian territory. And, again something happened. The Germans and Bulgarians and Austrians are held at bay, just as they thought they were turning the flank of the Russian armies in the east.

Germany gave out with all impressiveness that with airships and Zeppelins she would devastate all England, and bring haughty Albion to her knees. The campaign was started and was sufficiently fiendish and ruthless, but instead of cowing England, it raised the fighting blood of that country to a pitch that rapidly filled the ranks of its armies. It is now announced that Zeppelins are not practicable for long voyages, and the air raids have merely become an incident in the daily life of the English.

So, with this ruthless submarine warfare. While for a few days it has seemingly been extremely successful in destroying shipping, yet it has made but little impression on England, and even if kept up for the sixty days promised, will hardly be effectual in bringing starvation to the British Isles. There are indications, even now, that it is losing its virilty, and, there are also indications that Great Britain is putting into effect the plans adopted to meet the long promised undersea warfare.

Germany has made many bad guesses, but none worse than the one by which it thought to terrorize Great Britain and the world into tamely submitting to its program of controlling the oceans and lanes of sea travel.

The submarine campaign is but another of these bad guesses which will leave the Teutonic powers in worse condition than when first begun.

It has lost them the friendship of the entire world, and is placing them perilously near to bringing to the aid of the allies the most prosperous and powerful nation of the world.

RECEPTIVE BUT SUSPICIOUS

It is shall prove true, as the dispatches intimate this morning, that Germany is honestly seeking a conference with the United States with a view of putting an end to all prospect of war between the two countries, there will be a feeling of indescribable relief throughout the country.

But while we still hope that causes of friction may be removed, it must be understood that in the present temper of the country there must be no long drawn out negotiations, no temporizing, and there must be good faith on the part of those who are now trying to get into touch with this country, again.

In all fairness and frankness, we can say that the course of Germany has not been such as to inspire confidence either in her good intentions or in her integrity. We have a perfect right to be extremely suspicious of every move she makes, having reference to this war or any of its ramifications.

If, in the meantime, the overt act should occur, which, in the course of the ruthless submarine warfare inaugurated by Germany, seems inevitable, the administration must put into effect the promises which it has made the country and upon which the country is relying for a vindication of the national honor.

It is well to hear what Germany has to say, but it will not be well if we submit to further aggressions under a specious promise that such aggressions are to cease after a discussion.

It is becoming the patriotic duty of Miamians, who have a spare bedroom to permit its use by visitors. Many are leaving the city because they cannot find accommodation, and those who have rooms, even if they have never entertained the idea of renting, should be charitable enough to make it pleasant for those who otherwise have no place to sleep.

St. Lucie county proposes to keep up the good work on hard surfaced roads by voting three hundred thousand bonds for good roads. More power to their arm, those good people.

THE OVERT ACT

There is some occasion for surprise in the statement of a correspondent, whose letter is published in another column, that the "executive power of this government is invincibly determined to accept no overt act of violence against this country as justification of war."

If the correspondent means to imply that merely one overt act would not be a justification for war, especially if that act were explained and apologized for and reparation made, he is probably correct, for this government is long suffering and of great patience.

The correspondent should, and doubtless does, remember, that there has been a long series of outrages committed against the dignity and sovereignty of this country by the power with which we have lately severed diplomatic relations, and that country has deliberately broken its promise with regard to submarine warfare, made after it had acknowledged its guilt in the matter of sinking the Sussex. Perhaps not any one of these outrages taken separately, would afford justification for war, but the continued aggressions show a spirit incompatible with the peace of the two nations, and the continuance of which would furnish ample justification for the president and congress to use the military force of the country to put and end to it.

It is, therefore, an error when the correspondent asserts that the government will not accept an overt act as justification for war, for the president is even, now, awaiting what is expected will be an inevitable overt act, before he uses the power vested in him and in congress to declare war, or at least to take such steps as amount to a declaration of war. If that overt act occurs, after all that has gone before, war between this country and Germany will result, and it will be justified.

An overt act, is one done in pursuance and manifestation of an intent or design. An attack on a neutral ship, or an American ship, or a ship on which an American is traveling on a lawful errand and under lawful conditions, would be an overt act. That act, if it comes, will be deemed by this country, and the world, as justification for war, and war will ensue, without a doubt.

THE SPECIAL DAY

While the temporary opinions of the crowd are not always to be relied upon as being sound, yet there is always something in getting the crowd to think one way. The reforms that are accomplished usually begin in a small way and obtain power as the idea secures converts.

So, with almost anything with which we have to do, if we can get the majority, or a very large section of the people to act along one certain line much good can be accomplished, and, by the same token, much bad can also be accomplished if the purpose is evil.

Something of a knowledge of the pyschology of the crowd is shown in the occasional endeavors to increase church attendance, for instance. Today has been designated as "Go to Church Sunday," and the idea is to get men to join the crowd, to make them a part of the procession. As the crowd increases from year to year, so the strength of the idea gains importance.

Possibly it takes special days to direct men's attention to church going as it requires occasions to secure their attention to other things.

The ancient church has always had its special times and seasons, it's saints' days and its festivals, its time of repentance and mourning, and the church by unusual services has always taken care to prepare the minds of the devout for the especial occasion to which the calendar of the church pointed.

So the modern way of securing attendance has something of precedent in the practice of the old church.

One day in the year, with unusual services to impress the mind of the worshipper may have, and doubtless does have, its effect. If, out of the crowds, there are a few who exchange the occasional habit of church attendance for the permanent one of constant attendance at church services, something has been gained. With the increasing interest, from year to year, will come increased gains and the work will grow proportionately.

We may charge it up to the deficiencies of human nature that we do not fill all the churches at every service, but we may be thankful that a means is devised which on one day many of us may, by that mysterious crowd psychology, which brings out numbers, be induced to perform the duty that we should be entirely willing to discharge every day.

We are gaining a little, all the time, and this particular day set aside by some of the churches, may be an effective means of bringing the church in closer and wider touch with men. We may well hope so.

Those who charge that the great cities, by their concentration of wealth, control the finances of the country, should study the report of the comptroller of the currency, who says that the great national banks in the big cities lost one hundred and eighty millions in rescources, during the month of December, while the smaller national banks in small towns and communities made large gains during the same period. Florida small towns gained over five million dollars in the time stated.

Of course Ft. Marion at St. Augustine will be closed to the public. It would be perfectly awful if somebody should come along and capture that fortification.

It is just as well not to be too much disturbed by rumors that we have German spies with us. What on earth could anyone want to know about Miami that we do not tell everybody, every day?

News that men, sailing from Miami and who got into difficulties in a storm while crossing the Gulf stream, were picked up and taken safety to a northern city will be cheering to anxious Miami relatives.

Three wrecks have occured near Key West within the past few days, but that is nothing to what is going to happen to the city administration, if the Morning Journal, there, has its way.

FOR PEACE

Editor of The Herald:-

I am sure that when The Herald says that there is no general definite opinion in this country that we shall escape war, it means with honor, in a pernaps obsolete phase of the term.

There is a large and definite opinion in this country that the most important factor in the making or prevention of war, the executive power of this country, is invincibly determined to accept no overt act of violence against this country as justification of war, and that, back of that executive determination, stands a very large and definite public opinion.

The loss of a few hundred lives more, in submarine war, would add no additional weight to the gravamen of the indictment which would justify war with Germany.

On the other hand, the executive of the country is now invested with larger powers of giving force to the desire which it has, in common with Germany, of the conclusion of the war in a "peace without victory."

It is quite conceivable that the chancellor of Germany is no less impressed now than he was some time ago with the importance of friendly relations. That is to say, keeping out of war with the United States, to which end it may seem to him that it may equally well serve, either to use violence or to abstain, in a reliance upon that indomitable predelection for peace which under this administration has withdrawn us out of the actual fire of two wars, however petty, to the approval of a sufficiently large and definite number of citizens to reinvest this pacific disposition and determination with a new lease of power.

NATIONAL PRESS

Columbus, O., Express and Westbote.

Naturally our sympathies have been with Germany and her allies, as against Great Britain and her allies, in the world war. Germany was our Fatherland. Today it is different—our adopted country should have our first love, and has it. Even as a man leaves his father and mother and bestows his affection upon his wife, so have we done—in the matter of country. Our whole allegiance is to the United States—be she right or wrong. To the challenge sent, Woodrow Wilson could make but one answer—he has made it. If the worst comes to the worst and war with all its curse falls upon this land—which we hope and pray will not be the case—the Americans of German birth or with German inclinations will be found standing shoulder to shoulder with those of other nationalities, who have been made Americans in this the great melting pot of the nations. "Our country, may she ever be right—but our country above all, right or wrong."

Columbus Enquirer-Sun.

When Henry Ford, who, next to William Jennings Bryan, stands most prominent among the men of America as a pacifist, goes to Washington and offers to turn over his great manufacturing plant to the United States government in the event this country should get into the European war and to operate it without one cent profit, and, to use his own words, "contribute my own time, and work harder than ever," it is a matter worthy of more than passing notice. Mr. Ford has been a very earnest and sincere advocate of peace. There is not the slightest reason to doubt that he is still such an advocate. He spent large sums of money a little more than a year ago sending a peace ship to Europe and following it in the hope of "getting the boys out of the trenches." His effort was a failure. It was generally believed it would be before the ship set sail for Europe. But Mr. Ford was so much in earnest he felt that the effort was worth while, and he made it. Now, however, while still hoping most sincerely for peace, that his country stands face to face with the near possibility of war, Mr. Ford is the first man in America, so far as noted, who offers his immense manufacturing establishment, representing in value millions of dollars, to the United States government and proposes to operate it without one cent of profit. "I stand with our president," declares Mr. Ford. It is an example of real Americanism, an example of real patriotism, an example of personal sacrifice. And in taking this course he has placed himself foremost among Americans as one who stands ready and willing to serve his country as best he can.

Washington Post.

Because of the machinations of foolish and criminal German plotters in the United States great injury has been done to law-abiding Germans in this country. Even native-born citizens of German descent, who are as good Americans as any others, have felt the sting of criticisms directed indiscriminately at people of German blood. As for naturalized and unnaturalized German residents, their lot has been very uncomfortable, especially in cases where they have expressed with entire freedom their sympathy for their mother country in her trials. Fair-minded Americans have no desire, as they have no right, to condemn loyal and law-abiding Germans in this country, whether these Germans are naturalized or not. They recognize the right of a German to sympathize with his country, and they find no fault with this attitude. They appreciate the distress which must come to every German in this country at the prospect of a conflict between the United States and Germany. They know that the vast majority of citizens of German blood are loyal to the American flag and will fight for it if necessary, however deeply their hearts may be torn by raising their hands against the Fatherland. It is a plight in which no man would be placed if he could avoid it, and surely no American has any right to insult honest-hearted Germans who are quietly and bravely meeting the situation.

RESULTS OF ORGANIZATION SHOWN BY DEVELOPMENT OF THE GREAT DIXIE HIGHWAY

How organization has helped the Dixie Highway is shown in the following published in the Chattanooga Times:

"The value of organization to the Dixie Highway Association is dwelt on in a most admirable manner as follows in a recent issue of the Chattanooga Times:

The efficiency of organization and co-operation has been clearly demonstrated in the workings of the Dixie Highway Association. The results which have been achieved have not merely happened, nor can they be chargeable entirely to the tremendous enthusiasm for a north and south highway generated at the two big Chattanooga meetings. To contrast with what has been accomplished by the Dixie Highway and the Lincoln Highway Associations working on a business basis, the grave yards of human hopes are full of the ghosts of national highway movements, which started with big demonstrations and have died with nothing more than a name.

"The counties along the Dixie Highway understand that they are held accountable for the fulfillment of their promises to build the road. The association keeps in close touch with each county, either through the visit of a representative, their state directors and the Chattanooga headquarters. Bond issues are started where they are needed, and representatives of the association encouraged and aided in every possible way. Counties are grouped together on various divisions in order that they may be of mutual aid. Judge M. M. Allison, president of the association, has given practically a third of his time, paying his own expenses and, without hope of personal reward, is solving the hundreds of problems which confront the counties along the highway. The Nashville-Chattanooga link of the highway may be taken as an example. In Rutherford county the entire mileage of the highway was a toll road which had been allowed to run down. An attempt was first made to pass a bond issue to purchase the eleven toll roads in the county in order to free the Dixie Highway. This was voted down. Judge Allison immediately turned his attention toward getting the citizens interested to raise by private subscription the necessary amount to buy the pike and improve it. This was done, and $24,000 was raised for the purpose. Bedford county, on the instance of the association arranged to purchase the toll road in that county and build the remainder of the highway, including a bridge over the Duck river. The toll roads in both Rutherford and Bedford counties will be torn down this month. The citizens of Tullahoma could not secure aid from the county, so they raised the necessary amount to build their part of the highway by private subscriptions. Franklin county had thirty-five miles of new road to build This county had voted against bonds on two previous occasions. The last bond issue carried for $350,000. Marion and Hamilton counties the problem of building the highway seemed almost without solution. Judge Allison and other Dixie Highway officials made repeated visits to Marion county in order to bring about a settlement of the differences regarding the route of the road. Work is now under way and the highway from the top of Cumberland mountain will be built.

"In Knox county, Ky., the problems of the Dixie Highway Association in getting the highway built through that county were just begun when a bond issue of $200,000 was passed. A bitter contest arose as to the routing of the highway among the citizens. The county court was unable to reach an agreement with the state highway department. Through the efforts of the association an agreement was finally reached. The injunctions which were granted by the courts were dissolved and the work started. Problems of similar nature to these are encountered along the entire mileage of the highway. Each one is taken up and thoroughly investigated and through the co-operation of active workers in each community, a satisfactory settlement is secured, so that the work can proceed."

SOME KANSAS HOME GAMES.

Women of Caldwell Have a "Coon Hunt" and "Spice Contest."

After the usual hour spent in fancy work and social conversation, games were indulged in. A game called the "spice contest" caused quite a deal of amusement.

A box filled with different kinds of spices was passed around, and each lady stack a toothpick into the box and then put the toothpick into her mouth. She was supposed to tell by the taste what kind of spices the box contained. Mrs. Forbes was the lucky lady, and was presented with a can of talcum powder.

Next on the program was a "coon hunt." Sides were chosen, with Mrs. Jack Hollis as captain on one side and Mrs. Jim Hoffman captain of the other. Mrs. Hoffman's side won by treeing the greater number of coons. The coons were candy figures hidden about the house, and when a hound spied one she was supposed to yelp until her captain came and secured the coon. The ladies said this was the best meeting they have had in a long time.—Caldwell, Kan., Advance.

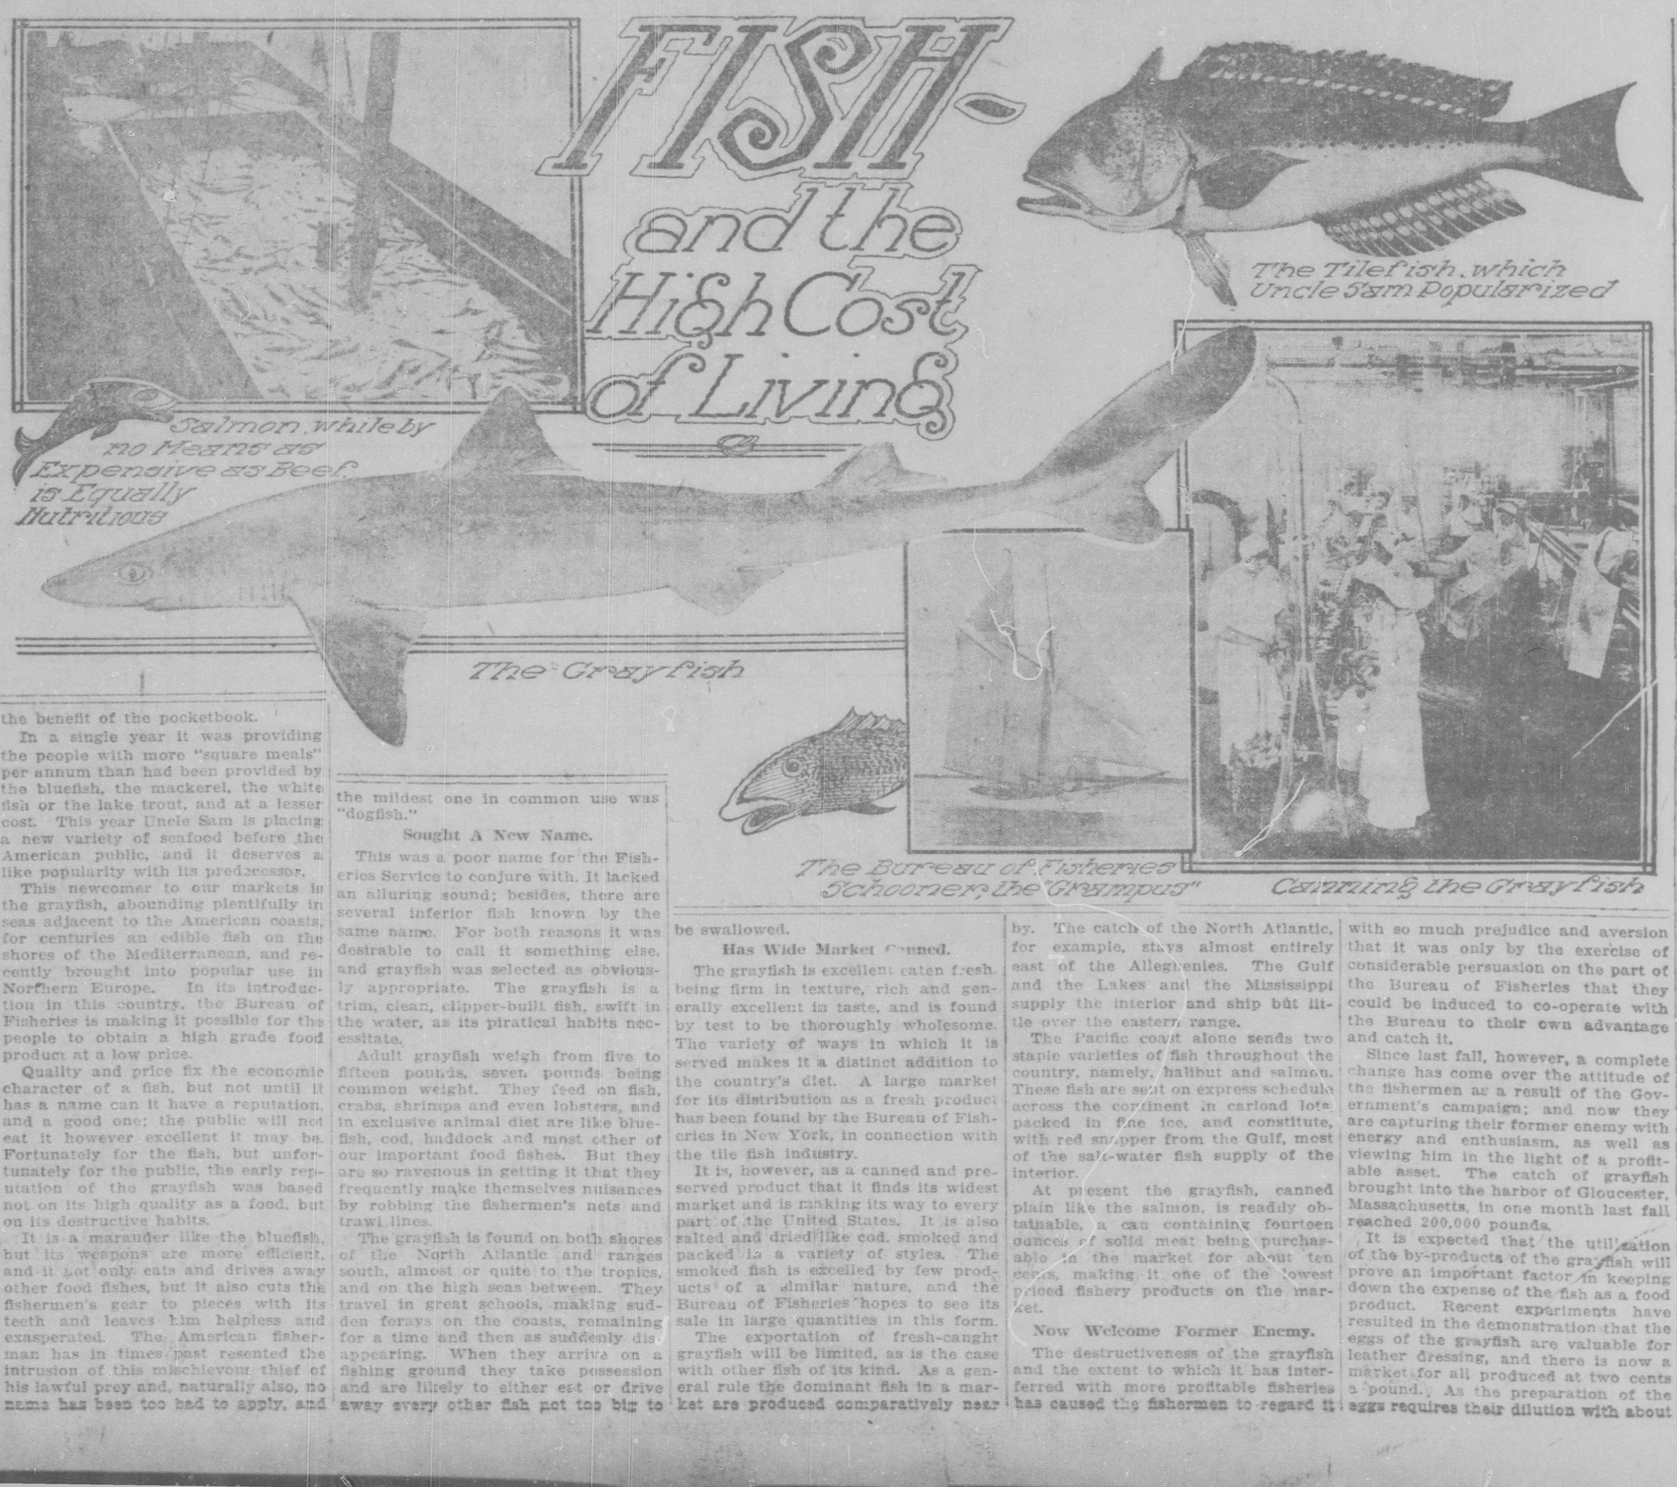
With the High Cost of Living Such a Potent Factor Today, Uncle Sam Suggests Fish As a Means of Economy -- The New Grayfish Introduced By the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries.

Copyright, 1917, by The International Syndicate.



THE less wealthy citizen of the United States must take greater stock in the fish supply of America than he has hitherto done; for in the nature of things the price of meat is rapidly leaving him with fish as one of the new food products available to supply the nitrogenous element in his menu.

If he will but look at the case in its true light, however, he will find himself better off than he thinks, for the American fish supply is well worthy of wider acquaintance, and closer study than has heretofore been given it by the average householder.

In its unexplored fish resources this country has within its own domain an unused wealth of food material which any other country in the world would consider itself most fortunate in possessing.

America Neglects Her Aquatic Wealth.

The American people have never realized the desirability of fish food from the viewpoint of either nutriment or palatability; the housewives have failed to take advantage of the varieties at hand in every section of the United States, and have not learned the best methods of cooking fish in ways to enhance its food value or its attractiveness.

Some of the best fish in the world are exported from America, and the delicious smoked salmon sandwich, universally used and enjoyed throughout Germany, is the product of our own Pacific fisheries, exported because it finds insufficient favor at home.

The United States Bureau of Fisheries is making every possible effort to educate the people of the United States to a knowledge of the wealth of food material which lives in its own waters. It is stimulating a wider use of the known varieties and introducing a number of new varieties of edible fish; which at this time should meet the approval of every householder seeking all available means of reducing table expenses.

Introduced The Tile Fish.

Two years ago the Bureau of Fisheries launched the tile fish upon the American market with complete success, and this toothsome dish is today the Friday piece de resistance on thousands of American tables to the entire gratification of the palate and the benefit of the pocketbook.

In a single year it was providing the people with more "square meals" per annum than had been provided by the bluefish, the mackerel, the white fish or the lake trout, and at a lesser cost. This year Uncle Sam is placing a new variety of seafood before the American public, and it deserves a like popularity with its predecessor.

This newcomer to our markets is the grayfish, abounding plentifully in seas adjacent to the American coasts, for centuries an edible fish on the shores of the Mediterranean, and recently brought into popular use in Northern Europe. In its introduction in this country, the Bureau of Fisheries is making it possible for the people to obtain a high grade food product at a low price.

Quality and price fix the economic character of a fish, but not until it has a name can it have a reputation, and a good one; the public will not eat it however excellent it may be. Fortunately for the fish, but unfortunately for the public, the early reputation of the grayfish was based not on its high quality as a food, but on its destructive habits.

It is a marauder like the bluefish, but its weapons are more efficient, and it not only eats and drives away other food fishes, but it also cuts the fishermen's gear to pieces with its teeth and leaves him helpless and exasperated. The American fisherman has in times past resented the intrusion of this mischievous thief of his lawful prey and, naturally also, no name has been too bad to apply, and the mildest one in common use was "dogfish."

Sought A New Name.

This was a poor name for the Fisheries Service to conjure with. It lacked an alluring sound; besides, there are several inferior fish known by the same name. For both reasons it was desirable to call it something else, and grayfish was selected as obviously appropriate. The grayfish is a trim, clean, clipper-built fish, swift in the water, as its piratical habits necessitate.

Adult grayfish weigh from five to fifteen pounds, seven pounds being common weight. They feed on fish, crabs, shrimps and even lobsters, and in exclusive animal diet are like bluefish, cod, haddock and most other of our important food fishes. But they are so ravenous in getting it that they frequently make themselves nuisances by robbing the fishermen's nets and trawl lines.

The grayfish is found on both shores of the North Atlantic and ranges south, almost or quite to the tropics, and on the high seas between. They travel in great schools, making sudden forays on the coasts, remaining for a time and then as suddenly disappearing. When they arrive on a fishing ground they take possession and are likely to either eat or drive away every other fish not too big to be swallowed.

Has Wide Market Canned.

The grayfish is excellent eaten fresh, being firm in texture, rich and generally excellent in taste, and is found by test to be thoroughly wholesome. The variety of ways in which it is served makes it a distinct addition to the country's diet. A large market for its distribution as a fresh product has been found by the Bureau of Fisheries in New York, in connection with the tile fish industry.

It is, however, as a canned and preserved product that it finds its widest market and is ranking its way to every part of the United States. It is also salted and dried like cod, smoked and packed in a variety of styles. The smoked fish is excelled by few products of a similar nature, and the Bureau of Fisheries hopes to see its sale in large quantities in this form.

The exportation of fresh-caught grayfish will be limited, as is the case with other fish of its kind. As a general rule the dominant fish in a market are produced comparatively near by. The catch of the North Atlantic, for example, stays almost entirely east of the Alleghenies. The Gulf and the Lakes and the Mississippi supply the interior and ship but little over the eastern range.

The Pacific coast alone sends two staple varieties of fish throughout the country, namely, halibut and salmon. These fish are sent on express schedule across the continent in carload lots, packed in fine ice, and constitute, with red snapper from the Gulf, most of the salt-water fish supply of the interior.

At present the grayfish, canned plain like the salmon, is readily obtainable, a can containing fourteen ounces of solid meat being purchasable in the market for about ten cents, making it one of the lowest priced fishery products on the market.

Now Welcome Former Enemy.

The destructiveness of the grayfish and the extent to which it has interferred with more profitable fisheries has caused the fishermen to regard it with so much prejudice and aversion that it was only by the exercise of considerable persuasion on the part of the Bureau of Fisheries that they could be induced to co-operate with the Bureau to their own advantage and catch it.

Since last fall, however, a complete change has come over the attitude of the fishermen as a result of the Government's campaign; and now they are capturing their former enemy with energy and enthusiasm, as well as viewing him in the light of a profitable asset. The catch of grayfish brought into the harbor of Gloucester, Massachusetts, in one month last fall reached 200,000 pounds.

It is expected that the utilization of the by-products of the grayfish will prove an important factor in keeping down the expense of the fish as a food product. Recent experiments have resulted in the demonstration that the eggs of the grayfish are valuable for leather dressing, and there is now a market for all produced at two cents a pound. As the preparation of the eggs requires their dilution with about 15 per cent. of water, the price will make it profitable to save them.

The oil extracted from the livers is a high grade product for which there appears to be practically an unlimited market, for it is used in the arts and is said to possess medicinal qualities not inferior to those obtained from the cod.

The skin of the grayfish looks scaleless, but when touched it is found to be as rough as emery cloth owing to the close-set, sharp little particles encrusting it. The hide is sometimes used for polishing fine metal, ivory or wooden articles, and, as a more important possibility, gives promise of producing a leather suitable for the manufacture of small "novelties." The production of gelatine from the fins and of fertilizer from the refuse is possible and it is believed will become a fact when the fishery is more fully established.

The policy of the Fisheries Service is to develop the industry gradually, a proper equilibrium being maintained between production and consumption. It feels encouraged in its hope that its production of the grayfish as an additional article of wholesome and pleasant diet for the American table will do its part toward reducing the high cost of living.

Secretary Redfield's Recommendation.

"A day or two before leaving for a vacation last summer a number of cans of grayfish, put up in a variety of ways, were sent to my house. There was no opportunity to use them before leaving and they were put in a storage closet. Some two months later there was served on my table a delicious dish of fish. I ate heartily of it and liked it so that I asked what it was. I was told it was from one of the cans which had been put up on the closet shelf just before leaving. You see I had been eating and enjoying grayfish without knowing what it was.

"A few days later it was served on my table in a different form and this time with deliberate purpose. It proved entirely satisfactory as food, agreeable in appearance and flavor. I propose to have it again when opportunity shall offer.

"I am glad to know from the facts you have laid before me that in the above my experience coincides with that of many others.

"WILLIAM C. REDFIELD,
"Secretary."

That the Secretary's taste was not deceived in the first case by the use of spices and condiments is shown by the following simple and excellent recipe furnished by his household:

Grayfish hash.—1 can grayfish; 1 pint boiled potatoes, in small pieces; 1 teaspoonful butter; salt and pepper. Flake the fish and mix with the other ingredients. Place in a buttered frying pan and stir until thoroughly heated throughout, then leave long enough to brown on the bottom. Turn out on platter, brown side up.

WOMEN OF ENGLAND ARE ON THE JOB

Have Taken Places of Men At Front and Are Delivering the Goods

London, Feb. 10.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Almost a million women—exactly 988,500—have entered all kinds of positions held by men before the war began, and of this number nearly all—exactly 933,000—were actually substituted for men called to the front or diverted to other war activities.

This is shown in a survey of the whole movement toward woman labor since the outbreak of the war, made officially by the labor department, with data down to the last two months. It shows 3,231,000 women now employed in all branches of industry and commerce, or about a million of women workers one sees at every turn, on the tramways and motor buses, taking fares, in the government office taking the place of the men clerks, in the hotels and restaurants as waiters and cashiers, in the banks and business houses, and running cinemas, theatres, public houses and the whole range of business activities.

Just how far this has gone the government has now figured out to a nicety. In banking and finance, for instance, there were only 9,500 women employed before the war; now the number has increased four-fold to 46,500. In government departments, also, the women workers have increased from 66,000 to 133,000, displacing men in all but 3,000 cases. In industrial trades the increase of women has been greatest, reaching 393,000 of which 314,000 replaced men. Another very large increase of women is in the government ammunition works, where there were 2,000 before the war and 117,000 now. The government figures give the entire 117,000 as directly replacing men.

In commercial occupations, clerks in stores, offices, etc., the increase of women is 268,000, of which 264,000 replaced men. In professional occupations, connected with the law, medicine, magazine and newspaper work, etc., the increase of women is 15,000, of which all have replaced men. A curious fact is that each woman has replaced about two men in hotels, public houses, cinemas, theatres, etc., the increase of women being 16,000, and the displacement of men 30,000.

On buses, trams and various kinds of transport service the women have increased 41,000, the entire number replacing that number of men. Men teachers are also largely replaced; also men on municipal transport work the total increase of women in this line being 34,000, of which 31,000 replaced men. In farm work many men have been drawn off for the war, but few women have replaced them. The men on farms replaced by women is given at 20,000, while the number of women farm workers is 80,000, and the increase since the war only 500. Women nurses have increased 34,000 since the war.

Summing up the substitution of women for men, the government statement says there has been an increase of 150,000 since last July in the number of women directly replacing men. This shows a slight check in the rate of replacement. In some trades, like clothing and textiles, women workers have decreased, probably because they were able to get better wages in the many new fields now opening to them. In October 40 per cent of the textile firms reported they were unable to get all the women they required so that while the supply of women workers has increased, the demand is also increasing in many branches.

This replacement of men by women is introducing new elements in economic and social condtions which will have to be worked out when peace comes. The women are doing the men's work quite as well as the men, so that a new element of competition is introduced between the sexes. The women have the advantage of possession on the million places, and it remains to be seen whether they will hold them, or whether there will be another displacement of women for men, when the million men come back. Many commercial houses have promised to take back the men, but whether this means displacing the women, or keeping both, is still open. The labor unions are also apprehensive over the great swelling of woman labor, as women workers are now about half the total strength of the unions, which are chiefly men's organizations strong in politics and with representatives in parliament and the ministry. So that the competition between the sexes is being extended all along the economical, political and social lines.

FENBY-CHRISTENSEN MATCH

On next Friday night, February 16, the people of Miami will have an opportunity to witness one of the greatest contests of strength, skill, and endurance ever seen in the south, when Fenby, the champion of the northwoods, and Christensen, the champion of the south, meet on the mat at the Athletic Club.

Both men are rounding into almost perfect condition, each one realizing that he is going up against a man who has not lost a match in a number of years, and owing to the terms of the contract, where the winner takes 75 per cent, while the loser only gets 25 per cent, each man for the past two weeks has been training in earnest, with the determination of winning at any cost. Fenby is out on the road early every morning for several hours work, and is at the Seminole athletic club every night for several hours mat work, with his partners and trainer.

Christensen is up at Dania on a farm, where he has a couple of big fellows working him out after he has done about fifteen miles of road work. A large crowd is expected to attend the match, and seats for twelve or fifteen hundred have been arranged, with special provisions for ladies and their escorts.

TELEPHONE FIRST SHOWN IN PUBLIC FORTY YEARS AGO

A rugged 40-year-old Scotchman roused the good folks of Salem, Mass., to a mild state of curiosity and amusement on February 1, 1877, by giving in their town the first public exhibition of an instrument he had invented. The man was Alexander Graham Bell. His invention was the telephone.

He had already shown it at the centennial exhibition at Philadelphia and elsewhere, but no one had seen enough in the project or had enough faith in its future to invest in it. Hence the exhibition at Salem—to interest capital. But capital still refused to be interested. And the public at large was divided in its opinion as to whether this man, who claimed to send spoken words over a wire, was a lunatic or a clever ventriloquist.

Other exhibitions followed the one at Salem—Bell at one end of the wire and Thomas A. Watson, his assistant, at the other. But there was no movement toward investing.

Was Teacher of Deaf-Mutes.

In the telephone a new and mighty force was set loose upon the earth. But no one except Bell and his friends knew it. Bell had come from Scotland in 1870 to teach deaf-mutes. Three years before he had begun working on the problem of conveying articulate sound by electric currents, with an idea of using it in his teaching. And after nine years he had solved the puzzle by completing the first telephone. The next step was to form a company to exploit the invention and put it into practical use.

Bell had no money of his own. He went to a powerful United States senator and offered him a half interest in return for his influence. The senator, according to Kulman, "gave orders to his clerk that 'Bell and his fool talking machine be thrown out' if he should attempt to gain an interview."

Next Bell carried his invention to a man prominent in political and railroad circles. He offered this capitalist a sixth interest in the company for $10,000. Here he met with more courtesy, but with no better success than with the senator. He was told: 'The telephone is lacking in commercial possibilities, and $10,000 is far too large a sum to risk on marketing an instrument that at best can never be more than a source of amusement.' Thus did a supposedly shrewd financier neglect a chance to turn $10,000 into many millions.

"Latest American Humbug."

The Western Union's president was then asked to buy the Bell patents for $100,000. But the reply came: "What use could this company make of an electrical toy?" Wise folk one after another continued to chase golden fortunes away from their doors. The London Times denounced the whole thing as "the latest American humbug," and nearly every electrician pooh-poohed it. The inventor was pelted from all sides with derision and abuse. A big New York lawyer angrily refused to take 50 shares of telephone stock in payment for a $500 debt.

At last a few Boston men, impressed by Bell's lectures and exhibitions—notably the first demonstration at Salem—put up money for a three-mile telephone line between Boston and Somerville. And then, little by little, the world began to awake to what it had ignored. The man who had been vainly entreating people to become millionaires by taking stock in his company was overwhelmed by the avalanche of investors.

In about eighteen months the stock jumped from $10 a share to $4,000. The lawyer who had refused to take 50 shares in payment for a $500 debt thus missed a chance to win $200,000. During the first eight years of the company's existence $4,000,000,000 was paid in dividends to stockholders.

"Telephone Book" a Card.

The early instruments were crude; the "exchanges" were cruder; there were hundreds of obstacles to perfect service. The first "telephone book" was no book at all, but a pasteboard card. In fact, the New York telephone directory for 1879 was such a card; not a large card at that. The subscribers numbered only 252.

On January 25, 1916, Prof. Bell in a New York office spoke through a telephone transmitter. The man with whom he talked was the same Thomas A. Watson who had been at the other end of the wire at that first Salem experiment 40 years ago today. But now Watson was in San Francisco. And he and Prof. Bell were conversing across 3,400 miles of wires. Instead of a grinning crowd of village skeptics, a reverent and admiring group of business magnates surrounded the two talkers.

The minds of both speakers strayed back just then to the day of that disastrous first public exhibition in February, 1877, for the listening group heard Mr. Bell say, laughingly, in response to a question from his colleague a continent's width away: "Oh, yes, I remember very well the time we talked over two miles of wire and thought it was a very wonderful thing."—Washington Post.

Another very large increase of women is in the government ammunition works, where there were 2,000 before the war and 117,000 now. The government figures give the entire 117,000 as directly replacing men.

In commercial occupations, clerks in stores, offices, etc., the increase of women is 268,000, of which 264,000 replaced men. In professional occupations, connected with the law, medicine, magazine and newspaper work, etc., the increase of women is 15,000, of which all have replaced men. A curious fact is that each woman has replaced about two men in hotels, public houses, cinemas, theatres, etc., the increase of women being 16,000, and the displacement of men 30,000.

On buses, trams and various kinds of transport service the women have increased 41,000, the entire number replacing that number of men. Men teachers are also largely replaced; also men on municipal transport work the total increase of women in this line being 34,000, of which 31,000 replaced men. In farm work many men have been drawn off for the war, but few women have replaced them. The men on farms replaced by women is given at 20,000, while the number of women farm workers is 80,000, and the increase since the war only 500. Women nurses have increased 34,000 since the war.

Summing up the substitution of women for men, the government statement says there has been an increase of 150,000 since last July in the number of women directly replacing men. This shows a slight check in the rate of replacement. In some trades, like clothing and textiles, women workers have decreased, probably because they were able to get better wages in the many new fields now opening to them. In October 40 per cent of the textile firms reported they were unable to get all the women they required so that while the supply of women workers has increased, the demand is also increasing in many branches.

This replacement of men by women is introducing new elements in economic and social condtions which will have to be worked out when peace comes. The women are doing the men's work quite as well as the men, so that a new element of competition is introduced between the sexes. The women have the advantage of possession on the million places, and it remains to be seen whether they will hold them, or whether there will be another displacement of women for men, when the million men come back. Many commercial houses have promised to take back the men, but whether this means displacing the women, or keeping both, is still open. The labor unions are also apprehensive over the great swelling of woman labor, as women workers are now about half the total strength of the unions, which are chiefly men's organizations strong in politics and with represendtatives in parliament and the ministry. So that the competition between the sexes is being extended all along the economical, political and social lines.

FENBY-CHRISTENSEN MATCH

On next Friday night, February 16, the people of Miami will have an opportunity to witness one of the greatest contests of strength, skill, and endurance ever seen in the south, when Fenby, the champion of the northwoods, and Christensen, the champion of the south, meet on the mat at the Athletic Club.

Both men are rounding into almost perfect condition, each one realizing that he is going up against a man who has not lost a match in a number of years, and owing to the terms of the contract, where the winner takes 75 per cent, while the loser only gets 25 per cent, each man for the past two weeks has been training in earnest, with the determination of winning at any cost. Fenby is out on the road early every morning for several hours work, and is at the Seminole athletic club every night for several hours mat work, with his partners and trainer.

Christensen is up at Dania on a farm, where he has a couple of big fellows working him out after he has done about fifteen miles of road work. A large crowd is expected to attend the match, and seats for twelve or fifteen hundred have been arranged, with special provisions for ladies and their escorts.

TELEPHONE FIRST SHOWN IN PUBLIC FORTY YEARS AGO

A rugged 40-year-old Scotchman roused the good folks of Salem, Mass., to a mild state of curiosity and amusement on February 1, 1877, by giving in their town the first public exhibition of an instrument he had invented. The man was Alexander Graham Bell. His invention was the telephone.

He had already shown it at the centennial exhibition at Philadelphia and elsewhere, but no one had seen enough in the project or had enough faith in its future to invest in it. Hence the exhibition at Salem—to interest capital. But capital still refused to be interested. And the public at large was divided in its opinion as to whether this man, who claimed to send spoken words over a wire, was a lunatic or a clever ventriloquist.

Other exhibitions followed the one at Salem—Bell at one end of the wire and Thomas A. Watson, his assistant, at the other. But there was no movement toward investing.

Was Teacher of Deaf-Mutes.

In the telephone a new and mighty force was set loose upon the earth. But no one except Bell and his friends knew it. Bell had come from Scotland in 1870 to teach deaf-mutes. Three years before he had begun working on the problem of conveying articulate sound by electric currents, with an idea of using it in his teaching. And after nine years he had solved the puzzle by completing the first telephone. The next step was to form a company to exploit the invention and put it into practical use.

Bell had no money of his own. He went to a powerful United States senator and offered him a half interest in return for his influence. The senator, according to Kulman, "gave orders to his clerk that 'Bell and his fool talking machine be thrown out' if he should attempt to gain an interview."

Next Bell carried his invention to a man prominent in political and railroad circles. He offered this capitalist a sixth interest in the company for $10,000. Here he met with more courtesy, but with no better success than with the senator. He was told: 'The telephone is lacking in commercial possibilities, and $10,000 is far too large a sum to risk on marketing an instrument that at best can never be more than a source of amusement." Thus did a supposedly shrewd financier neglect a chance to turn $10,000 into many millions.

"Latest American Humbug."

The Western Union's president was then asked to buy the Bell patents for $100,000. But the reply came: "What use could this company make of an electrical toy?" Wise folk one after another continued to chase golden fortunes away from their doors. The London Times denounced the whole thing as "the latest American humbug," and nearly every electrician pooh-poohed it. The inventor was pelted from all sides with derision and abuse. A big New York lawyer angrily refused to take 50 shares of telephone stock in payment for a $500 debt.

At last a few Boston men, impressed by Bell's lectures and exhibitions—notably the first demonstration at Salem—put up money for a three-mile telephone line between Boston and Somerville. And then, little by little, the world began to awake to what it had ignored. The man who had been vainly entreating people to become millionaires by taking stock in his company was overwhelmed by the avalanche of investors.

In about eighteen months the stock jumped from $10 a share to $4,000. The lawyer who had refused to take 50 shares in payment for a $500 debt thus missed a chance to win $200,000. During the first eight years of the company's existence $4,000,000,000 was paid in dividends to stockholders.

"Telephone Book" a Card.

The early instruments were crude; the "exchanges" were cruder; there were hundreds of obstacles to perfect service. The first "telephone book" was no book at all, but a pasteboard card. In fact, the New York telephone directory for 1879 was such a card; not a large card at that. The subscribers numbered only 252.

On January 25, 1916, Prof. Bell in a New York office spoke through a telephone transmitter. The man with whom he talked was the same Thomas A. Watson who had been at the other end of the wire at that first Salem experiment 40 years ago today. But now Watson was in San Francisco. And he and Prof. Bell were conversing across 3,400 miles of wires. Instead of a grinning crowd of village skeptics, a reverent and admiring group of business magnates surrounded the two talkers.

The minds of both speakers strayed back just then to the day of that disastrous first public exhibition in February, 1877, for the listening group heard Mr. Bell say, laughingly, in response to a question from his colleague a continent's width away: "Oh, yes, I remember very well the time we talked over two miles of wire and thought it was a very wonderful thing."—Washington Post.

RESULTS OF ORGANIZATION SHOWN BY DEVELOPMENT OF THE GREAT DIXIE HIGHWAY

"The value of organization to the Dixie Highway Association is dwelt on in a most admirable manner as follows in a recent issue of the Chattanooga Times:

The efficiency of organization and co-operation has been clearly demonstrated in the workings of the Dixie Highway Association. The results which have been achieved have not merely happened, nor can they be chargeable entirely to the tremendous enthusiasm for a north and south highway generated at the two big Chattanooga meetings. To contrast with what has been accomplished by the Dixie Highway and the Lincoln Highway Associations working on a business basis, the grave yards of human hopes are full of the ghosts of national highway movements, which started with big demonstrations and have died with nothing more than a name.

"The counties along the Dixie Highway understand that they are held accountable for the fulfillment of their promises to build the road. The association keeps in close touch with each county, either through the visit of a representative, their state directors and the Chattanooga headquarters. Bond issues are started where they are needed, and representatives of the association encouraged and aided in every possible way. Counties are grouped together on various divisions in order that they may be of mutual aid. Judge M. M. Allison, president of the association, has given practically a third of his time, paying his own expenses and, without hope of personal reward, is solving the hundreds of problems which confront the counties along the highway. The Nashville-Chattanooga link of the highway may be taken as an example. In Rutherford county the entire mileage of the highway was a toll road which had been allowed to run down. An attempt was first made to pass a bond issue to purchase the eleven toll roads in the county in order to free the Dixie Highway. This was voted down. Judge Allison immediately turned his attention toward getting the citizens interested to raise by private subscription the necessary amount to buy the pike and improve it. This was done, and $24,000 was raised for the purpose. Bedford county, on the instance of the association, arranged to purchase the toll road in that county and build the remainder of the highway, including a bridge over the Duck river. The toll roads in both Rutherford and Bedford counties will be torn down this month. The citizens of Tullahoma could not secure aid from the county, so they raised the necessary amount to build their part of the highway by private subscriptions. Franklin county has thirty-five miles of new road to build. This county had voted against bonds on two previous occasions. The last bond issue carried for $350,000. Marion and Hamilton counties the problem of building the highway seemed almost without solution. Judge Allison and other Dixie Highway officials made repeated visits to Marion county in order to bring about a settlement of the differences regarding the route of the road. Work is now under way and the highway from the top of Cumberland mountain will be built.

"In Knox county, Ky., the problems of the Dixie Highway Association in getting the highway built through that county were just begun when a bond issue of $200,000 was passed. A bitter contest arose as to the routing of the highway among the citizens. The county court was unable to reach an agreement with the state highway department. Through the efforts of the association an agreement was finally reached. The injunctions which were granted by the courts were dissolved and the work started. Problems of similar nature to these are encountered along the entire mileage of the highway. Each one is taken up and thoroughly investigated and through the co-operation of active workers in each community, a satisfactory settlement is secured, so that the work can proceed."

SOME KANSAS HOME GAMES.

Women of Caldwell Have a "Coon Hunt" and "Spice Contest."

After the usual hour spent in fancy work and social conversation, games were indulged in. A game called the "spice contest" caused quite a deal of amusement.

A box filled with different kinds of spices was passed around, and each lady stuck a toothpick into the box and then put the toothpick into her mouth. She was supposed to tell by the taste what kind of spices the box contained. Mrs. Forbes was the lucky lady, and was presented with a can of talcum powder.

Next on the program was a "coon hunt." Sides were chosen, with Mrs. Jack Hollis as captain on one side and Mrs. Jim Hoffman captain of the other. Mrs. Hoffman's side won by treeing the greater number of coons. The coons were candy figures hidden about the house, and when a hound spied one she was supposed to yelp until her captain came and secured the coon. The ladies said this was the best meeting they have had in a long time.—Caldwell, Kan., Advance.

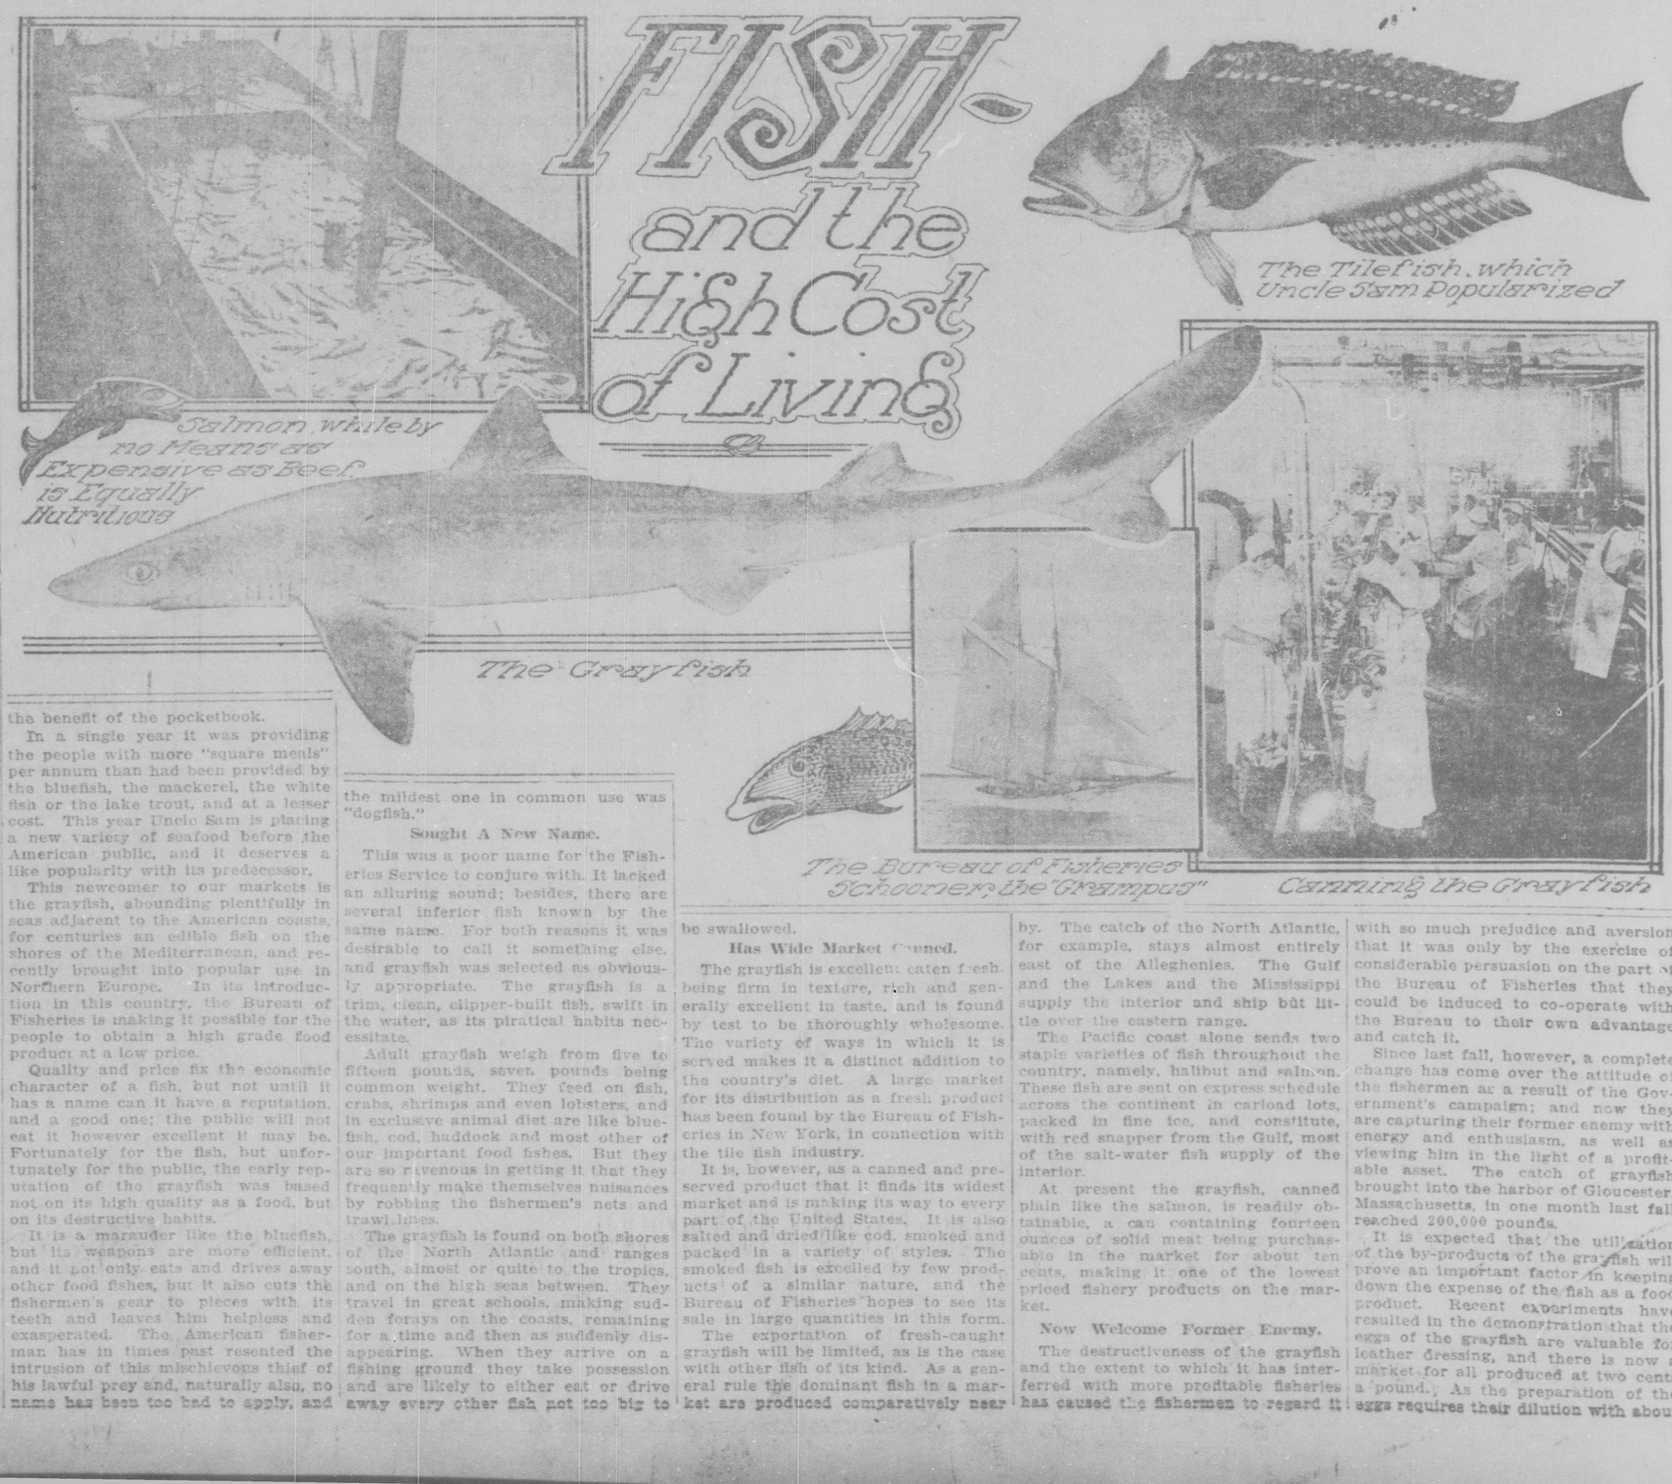
With the High Cost of Living Such a Potent Factor Today, Uncle Sam Suggests Fish As a Means of Economy -- The New Grayfish Introduced By the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries.

Copyright, 1917, by The International Syndicate.



THE less wealthy citizen of the United States must take greater stock in the fish supply of America than he has hitherto done; for in the nature of things the price of meat is rapidly leaving him with fish as one of the new food products available to supply the nitrogenous element in his menu.

If he will but look at the case in its true light, however, he will find himself better off than he thinks, for the American fish supply is well worthy of wider acquaintance, and closer study than has heretofore been given it by the average householder.

In its unexplored fish resources this country has within its own domain an unused wealth of food material which any other country in the world would consider itself most fortunate in possessing.

America Neglects Her Aquatic Wealth.

The American people have never realized the desirability of fish food from the viewpoint of either nutriment or palatability; the housewives have failed to take advantage of the varieties at hand in every section of the United States, and have not learned the best methods of cooking fish in ways to enhance its food value or its attractiveness.

Some of the best fish in the world are exported from America, and the delicious smoked salmon sandwich, universally used and enjoyed throughout Germany, is the product of our own Pacific fisheries, exported because it finds insufficient favor at home.

The United States Bureau of Fisheries is making every possible effort to educate the people of the United States to a knowledge of the wealth of food material which lives in its own waters. It is stimulating a wider use of the known varieties and introducing a number of new varieties of edible fish; which at this time should meet the approval of every householder seeking all available means of reducing table expenses.

Introduced The Tile Fish.

Two years ago the Bureau of Fisheries launched the tile fish upon the American market with complete success, and this toothsome dish is today the Friday piece de resistance on thousands of American tables to the entire gratification of the palate and the benefit of the pocketbook.

In a single year it was providing the people with more "square meals" per annum than had been provided by the bluefish, the mackerel, the white fish or the lake trout, and at a lesser cost. This year Uncle Sam is placing a new variety of seafood before the American public, and it deserves a like popularity with its predecessor.

This newcomer to our markets is the grayfish, abounding plentifully in seas adjacent to the American coasts, for centuries an edible fish on the shores of the Mediterranean, and recently brought into popular use in Northern Europe. In its introduction in this country, the Bureau of Fisheries is making it possible for the people to obtain a high grade food product at a low price.

Quality and price fix the economic character of a fish, but not until it has a name can it have a reputation, and a good one; the public will not eat it however excellent it may be. Fortunately for the fish, but unfortunately for the public, the early reputation of the grayfish was based not on its high quality as a food, but on its destructive habits.

It is a marauder like the bluefish, but its weapons are more efficient, and it not only eats and drives away other food fishes, but it also cuts the fishermen's gear to pieces with its teeth and leaves him helpless and exasperated. The American fisherman has in times past resented the intrusion of this mischievous thief of his lawful prey and, naturally also, no name has been too bad to apply, and the mildest one in common use was "dogfish."

Sought A New Name.

This was a poor name for the Fisheries Service to conjure with. It lacked an alluring sound; besides, there are several inferior fish known by the same name. For both reasons it was desirable to call it something else, and grayfish was selected as obviously appropriate. The grayfish is a trim, clean, clipper-built fish, swift in the water, as its piratical habits necessitate.

Adult grayfish weigh from five to fifteen pounds, seven pounds being common weight. They feed on fish, crabs, shrimps and even lobsters, and in exclusive animal diet are like bluefish, cod, haddock and most other of our important food fishes. But they are so ravenous in getting it that they frequently make themselves nuisances by robbing the fishermen's nets and trawl lines.

The grayfish is found on both shores of the North Atlantic and ranges south, almost or quite to the tropics, and on the high seas between. They travel in great schools, making sudden forays on the coasts, remaining for a time and then as suddenly disappearing. When they arrive on a fishing ground they take possession and are likely to either eat or drive away every other fish not too big to be swallowed.

Has Wide Market Canned.

The grayfish is excellent eaten fresh, being firm in texture, rich and generally excellent in taste, and is found by test to be thoroughly wholesome. The variety of ways in which it is served makes it a distinct addition to the country's diet. A large market for its distribution as a fresh product has been found by the Bureau of Fisheries in New York, in connection with the tile fish industry.

It is, however, as a canned and preserved product that it finds its widest market and is making its way to every part of the United States. It is also salted and dried like cod, smoked and packed in a variety of styles. The smoked fish is excelled by few products of a similar nature, and the Bureau of Fisheries hopes to see its sale in large quantities in this form.

The exportation of fresh-caught grayfish will be limited, as is the case with other fish of its kind. As a general rule the dominant fish in a market are produced comparatively near by. The catch of the North Atlantic, for example, stays almost entirely east of the Alleghenies. The Gulf and the Lakes and the Mississippi supply the interior and ship but little over the eastern range.

The Pacific coast alone sends two staple varieties of fish throughout the country, namely, halibut and salmon. These fish are sent on express schedule across the continent in carload lots, packed in fine ice, and constitute, with red snapper from the Gulf, most of the salt-water fish supply of the interior.

At present the grayfish, canned plain like the salmon, is readily obtainable, a can containing fourteen ounces of solid meat being purchasable in the market for about ten cents, making it one of the lowest priced fishery products on the market.

Now Welcome Former Enemy.

The destructiveness of the grayfish and the extent to which it has interferred with more profitable fisheries has caused the fishermen to regard it with so much prejudice and aversion that it was only by the exercise of considerable persuasion on the part of the Bureau of Fisheries that they could be induced to co-operate with the Bureau to their own advantage and catch it.

Since last fall, however, a complete change has come over the attitude of the fishermen as a result of the Government's campaign; and now they are capturing their former enemy with energy and enthusiasm, as well as viewing him in the light of a profitable asset. The catch of grayfish brought into the harbor of Gloucester, Massachusetts, in one month last fall reached 200,000 pounds.

It is expected that the utilization of the by-products of the grayfish will prove an important factor in keeping down the expense of the fish as a food product. Recent experiments have resulted in the demonstration that the eggs of the grayfish are valuable for leather dressing, and there is now a market for all produced at two cents a pound. As the preparation of the eggs requires their dilution with about 15 per cent. of water, the price will make it profitable to save them.

The oil extracted from the livers is a high grade product for which there appears to be practically an unlimited market, for it is used in the arts and is said to possess medicinal qualities not inferior to those obtained from the cod.

The skin of the grayfish looks scaleless, but when touched it is found to be as rough as emery cloth owing to the close-set, sharp little particles encrusting it. The hide is sometimes used for polishing fine metal, ivory or wooden articles, and, as a more important possibility, gives promise of producing a leather suitable for the manufacture of small "novelties." The production of gelatine from the fins and of fertilizer from the refuse is possible and it is believed will become a fact when the fishery is more fully established.

The policy of the Fisheries Service is to develop the industry gradually, a proper equilibrium being maintained between production and consumption. It feels encouraged in its hope that its production of the grayfish as an additional article of wholesome and pleasant diet for the American table will do its part toward reducing the high cost of living.

Secretary Redfield's Recommendation.

"A day or two before leaving for a vacation last summer a number of cans of grayfish, put up in a variety of ways, were sent to my house. There was no opportunity to use them before leaving and they were put in a storage closet. Some two months later there was served on my table a delicious dish of fish. I ate heartily of it and liked it so that I asked what it was. I was told it was from one of the cans which had been put up on the closet shelf just before leaving. You see I had been eating and enjoying grayfish without knowing what it was.

"A few days later it was served on my table in a different form and this time with deliberate purpose. It proved entirely satisfactory as food, agreeable in appearance and flavor. I propose to have it again when opportunity shall offer.

"I am glad to know from the facts you have laid before me that in the above my experience coincides with that of many others.

"WILLIAM C. REDFIELD,
"Secretary."

That the Secretary's taste was not deceived in the first case by the use of spices and condiments is shown by the following simple and excellent recipe furnished by his household:

Grayfish hash.—1 can grayfish; 1 pint boiled potatoes, in small pieces; 1 teaspoonful butter; salt and pepper. Flake the fish and mix with the other ingredients. Place in a buttered frying pan and stir until thoroughly heated throughout, then leave long enough to brown on the bottom. Turn out on platter, brown side up.

$35,000 GEMS IN "COON HOLE."

Trapper Stumbles on Mystery Cache in California.

Three cans containing jewelry worth, according to rough estimate, $35,000, were uncovered in a niche in a rocky cliff on the George Anderson ranch, east of Wheatland, Yuba county, by Alfred Talbot, a trapper. Talbot, setting his trap in what he thought to be a "coon hole," placed his hands on the cans. He opened them and found them filled with jewelry, diamonds, rings, watches and stickpins.

So far Sheriff McCoy has been unable to find any clew to the owner of the cached jewelry. It is believed to have been cached there at least twenty years ago.

The cans were red with rust and almost falling to pieces. The paper wrapped about the jewelry was yellow with age. The watches are of a pattern in vogue a quarter of a century ago. Several valuable rings, one, with a solitaire diamond setting valued at more than $300, bracelets studded with diamonds, diamond, ruby and pearl stickpins were in the cans. Sheriff McCoy believes the valuables unearthed by Talbot were stolen years ago from a jewelry store.—Marysville, Cal., dispatch to New York American.

SAYS FISH CAN SMELL.

Chicago Herald: A fish hasn't a nose, but it can smell. Recent experiments have proved this. What is more, these experiments have proved that odor travels through water, just as it does through air. Anglers have laid much stress on the need of exciting a fish's interest by the look of food that the effect of scent has been overlooked. A shark will bite at a hook containing a piece of fat pork, although the pork does not look like any kind of fish that swims the sea. Why, then, should the trout be expected to be interested only in an artificial "gray hackle?"

It may be heresy in angling to suggest that a "fly" should smell like a fly. These scientific experiments show how large a part smell plays in the food pursuit of fish. Bait, such as small crabs, was found and eaten by the fishes two or three times as rapidly when the shells were broken. Bait placed inside a gauze bag was smelled within three minutes of being lowered in the water, and almost at the same time all the fishes began nibbling at the bag. When cotton was stuffed into its so-called "nostrils" the dogfish would seldom observe the food that came near them. If they saw other dogfish eating, those whose nostrils were stuffed would join them and take a share in the feast, but when kept to themselves they starved in the midst of plenty.

Wigg—"What has become of the old-fashioned kids who are taught that children should be seen and not heard?" Wagg—"They are all in the deaf and dumb asylums."

Have you seen a copy of this beautiful booklet?

COMPETENT critics agree that the new Orlando booklet is a piece of advertising literature worth seeing—one that describes and pictures in a striking way a city worth knowing about.

The cover drawing is very artistic and attractive, suggesting, without useless frills and details, the good roads in and around Orlando and the joy of picking oranges from the tree. The type is of the very latest design, and a larger size than is usually found in booklets of this kind was chosen so that it would be easy to read. The half-tone engravings are of the very finest quality, very clear and sharp, and of a sufficient size to make real pictures. The page decoration scheme is original and wonderfully well worked out. The color combination, green and orange, is a delight to the eye—not too bright, not overdone. If you have not seen a copy you owe it to yourself to write the Orlando Board of Trade for one today—it will be sent free.

Booklets and Information may be had at 118 Hogan Street Jacksonville

ADMIRATION FOR BELVEDERES NEW MIAMI CONSTRUCTION SEEN IN RIVERSIDE HEIGHTS

The question of home building has become a serious one in Miami where an average of three houses a day are being built.

Since the first of the year the building of houses in Riverside has amounted to a veritable boom in construction and this is especially true in Riverside Heights, where at least fifty houses are now in course of construction, most of them being built by individuals who have purchased lots from Tatum Bros., or by builders who will sell them on the payment plan.

It is really wonderful the variety of plans that are being used in this section. They combine everything from attractive five room bungalows costing about $3,000 to build, up to superb concrete homes costing $25,000 and there are not more than two or three of any one design in the entire group, which now number about 200 houses.

In the majority of cases the exteriors are attractive in appearance but the real joy of a great number of new houses are the interiors, which are unique, original and almost fascinating, especially to the modern housekeepers, who look for convenience.

During the past week there have been a number of new houses started in Riverside Heights, in fact there is a new one every day or at least an average of one a day or better.

Three bungalows have been started on avenue U between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, near where the car line turns onto U.

An attractive semi-bungalow is being erected on Eleventh street between avenues T and U, adjoining one of the handsome Belvederes.

A new house was started on avenue V between Eleventh and Twelfth streets on Tuesday.

Two more houses have been started on Twelfth street between avenue Q and Lawrence Drive and the big building on the corner of Twelfth and the Drive, which will contain three stores and sixteen apartments is being pushed along by Mr. Martin, of the Georgia Lumber company, who now has seven buildings under course of construction in that block.

One new house on Fifth street, one on Lawrence Drive and two on avenue P complete the list for the past week, making over a dozen commenced during that period.

Briggs and Wahr are building three attractive bungalows on avenue Q just off Twelfth street and it is understood they will erect several on the balance of their property, facing Lawrence Drive and Thirteenth street. Mr. Martin has plans for two or three more houses and it is known that several bungalows will be built by individuals in Riverside Heights this month and next and during the summer many who have made purchases and are too busy to attend to it now, will begin building attractive homes and have them completed by fall.

It is believed that by next winter Riverside Heights will be more thickly populated than any other section of the city, except the central, down town sections, and it will be one of the most attractive residence sections because everything will be modern and up to date, with no objectionable houses or old places, as everything has been built in the past two years and there are no stores or business buildings to detract from the fine appearance of the lovely homes.

A well known writer contributed an interesting article to the January number of the Tropic Magazine, descriptive of the modern homes that have been erected in Riverside Heights, which will give a comprehensive idea of the features of these new residences:

Miami Belvederes Are Genuine Homes

Home—a little word of one syllable with only four letters that has caused more thrills than all the high sounding phrases of the great authors or orators.

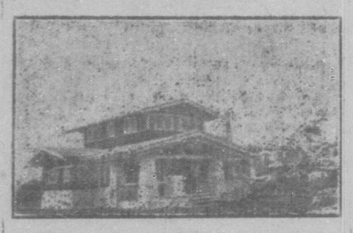
Home is the place of greatest importance to most of us, as we are supposed to spend more than half of our time there, while less than one third is spent in the office or business place.

Home is the place we are always glad to go to and the place of greatest enjoyment to the greatest number of people and this is especially true if the home is attractive and comfortable.

The styles change in homes—not quite as often as women's clothes, but frequently—and like most other things they have been changing for the better and the designers have taken to studying the needs of the home owners in the different sections of the country.

Climate is a factor in this direction and houses are now planned to accord with the climatic conditions in the various localities in order to provide the greatest comfort and convenience for the occupants.

Here in the tropics and semi-tropics there is practically no cold weather, the balmy air is sought day and night and people live, eat and sleep in the open, or should do so for beter health and spirits. For some time there has been a gradual realization of the benefits of this open air existence and each year the houses have been planned with more windows, with sleeping porches, with little open-air breakfast rooms and with living rooms arranged so that the air may circulate freely through every room in the house, thus adding to the comfort and health of the occupants.



But it remained for Miami to adopt a thoroughly modern type of residence that would meet all these requirements and at the same time present an unusually attractive exterior appearance and offer an interior that every woman would love at first sight and every man could not help but admire and it has been appropriately named "Miami Belvedere."

Although only a little over a year old, you will find the popular Belvederes in almost every residence section of Miami, but the largest group of them is located in Riverside Heights as they were originated by the owners of that attractive suburb and here they have attained as near perfection as one can dream of and still with every new design some little feature is added that makes it still more dear to the housekeeper and more enjoyable to the entire family.

Come with me for a little walk on palm bordered Twelfth street where it reaches the heights with its broad new pavements and walks. Here, let us stop for a minute and contemplate this new Belvedere. Note the graceful lines of the overhanging eaves, the generous porches, the sleeping rooms on top of the house as it were—two of them with more than a dozen windows and air from all sides; study the artistic ensemble of materials—the weathered rock porch columns and chimney, the brown walls with white trimming, the red roof and the pretty windows that open by the twist of a wrist or the turning of a little brass handle, the handsome mission doors with glass knobs, the substantial cement porch, with the built-in flower boxes and cement walks leading to front and back and a nice wide drive to the garage, which is a model of style quite in keeping and harmony with the house.

"Splendid," you will say, "a perfect darling of a house."

All right, just hold that picture in your mind while we take a peep at the interior. The big front door opens and you pass in, but about the second step inside you stop and take a long breath, and let your eyes drink in the almost startling view, for here are two big rooms, the living room and dining room, practically thrown into one and the thought comes to you of some old Baronial hall with its high beamed ceilings, its solid columns, its expansive fireplace of coral rock, its beautiful mullioned windows and the handsome built-in buffet, at the farther end.

You are surprised and charmed, but this is only the beginning of the story of a real home. You must see the library, with its fine big bookcase and desk built in and concealing a disappearing bed, which rolls out on large rubber tired castors, at a light pull on a section of the desk ready to care for extra guests any time. Then a fine large chamber with liberal clothes closet and the bath room adjoining, with tile floor and dress of white, and full size bath, and pedestal lavatory and noiseless toilet.

All lovely, you say; but wait, you haven't seen the kitchen. This is also a dream in white, with immense built in kitchen cabinet, large porcelain sink, a closet for utensils and several other conveniences. And off to one side, in a little alcove with windows all around it, is the most exquisite little white breakfast room, with table and seats built in and this is the feature that tugs hardest at the heart strings of the housekeeper, as it saves so much time and so many steps.

What is really the feature and what gives it the name, Belvedere, comes last. This is the two sleeping rooms built on top of what would be a regular bungalow otherwise. Reached by a tasteful staircase, almost concealed from view, here are two fine open air sleeping rooms and a shower bath. The walls of the sleeping rooms are, for the most part, windows and they are all arranged to open by the turning of a little handle and no matter from which direction the breeze may be coming it must sweep through each sleeping room, thus guaranteeing a comfortable night's rest for the sleepers.

Admired By Visitors.

There are about twenty of these handsome Belvederes in Riverside Heights, all varying in design and finish, and they have been greatly admired by the winter visitors to Miami, many of whom have never seen anything like them. They are certainly unique and are bound to become very popular in this country.

WRITTEN FOR THE HERALD

Infinite Beauty.

Thou hast to me, such lofty and lovely ways,
Like tender melody, a voice as sweet
As birds at night Thy ministers elite
Are mountains when the doe-brown dusk essays
To rise and bid farewell to works and plays,
Mellowing as it goes. I may not beat
The time as you ascend, or know thy seat
In your wide universe, for you're like rays
Celestial—everywhere. Soft winds display
Of jeweled sea, the early winter's snow
In miniature and happy smile in woe
Are beautiful and endless in thy day.
My eager spirit, to thy rythmic name,
Brings every thought, and each desires thy fame.
—Rev. L. C. Littell.

Life.

A fleck of blue in a sky of black,
A mile of taut and an inch of slack,
An hour of calms and a week of storms,
A glint of roses submerged by thorns.

A breath of air, then work again;
Never a laugh but is three-fourths pain;
Moment of faith, a year of doubt;
Never the bread but the wolf's about.

Fleeting mirage and a storm of sand,
Half hearted hopes in a desert land;
Moment of triumph, an endless fight,
A clutch at Victory, then dreamless night.

This is life, dear, but you and I
What care we for a storm swept sky?
Our ship rides safe, tho we breast the gale,
For you are the Pilot and Love is the sail.
—Elizabeth Brown Harris, Polkton, North Carolina.

Vouchsafed the Man.

Respectfully dedicated to President Woodrow Wilson, who has handled a delicate situation with such wonderful equanimity.

When through travails of human woes,
A state, new born to freedom rose,
Among the nations took its stand;
The urgent need, the great demand
Was this: "That some fit man should rise,
Great for action, to design, wise!"
Strong to maintain a long-fought war,
The land in closer union draw!
And God vouchsafed the man.

When nations would our men impress
In alien ships, without redress,
Then scorn the protest or the plea,
Yea, scoff the rights of liberty;
The times demanded some great soul,
Who could the tide of war control;
The lion growled impotent wrath,
Defeated in its ruthless path:
For God vouchsafed the man.

When later, the whole land was stirred,
And warrior's battle-cries were heard,
When brother 'gainst his brother fought
And, blindly, thus God's purpose wrought;
When the whole land, a storm-tossed sea,
Was troubled by the new-born free,
A hand, a heart, a mind sedate,
Must sail and guide the ship of state!
And God vouchsafed the man.

With peace at home, respect abroad,
And benefits, which thrift afford,
When all the nation, happily,
Enjoyed the blessings of the free;
War's red cloud gathered near the shore:
The people marched, not as of yore,
A man arose, at whose command,
Phalanx-like trod the conquering land;
For God vouchsafed the man.

And now, with all her battles o'er,
Such heights as none attained before,
Columbia proudly views her sons,
Both white and black, wait by her guns:
With patience, she notes fiendish arts,
Which Germany to war imparts;
Then speak with justice, as of yore:
"These acts must stop! I'll bear no more!
God hath vouchsafed the man.

and select a property that is most likely to steadily grow in value for several years to come.

If you intend building a home, it should be in a residential district in reality as well as name and with an iron-clad guarantee that there will never be a restaurant, hardware store, livery stable, barber shop, saloon or blacksmith shop across the street nor around the corner.

If you wish to build in a neighborhood where the average run of residences will be around $5,000, we can furnish these locations. If you wish to build in a neighborhood where the restrictions call for residences to cost $10,000, we also have such sites to offer.

Large sums of money have been expended and intelligent care exercised in developing Alton Beach, with the result that it stands today unexcelled as a high class residential subdivision, and is attracting the most desirable class of people from all sections of America.

Unlike most real estate companies, we mark our prices in plain figures, and these figures mean no more, no less. You can depend upon buying a plot at these figures and that your neighbor will pay the same price, notwithstanding any shrewd ability to purchase real estate at the lowest market value.

Our present prices on Alton Beach lots are guaranteed not only for this, but for five years. And we further guarantee an advance of at least 8 per cent. on our prices on every unsold lot as now marked on our plat, each year, for five years. These advances, of course, may be a great deal more than this amount.

We have recently resold some property for customers at more than double the price paid us for same two years ago.

And we hereby make an open offer to cash any piece of property the Alton Beach Realty Company has ever sold in the Town of Miami Beach or the City of Miami, with 6 per cent. interest per annum since the date of purchase. So far as we know, no other real estate company in the United States has ever made this offer, because no other real estate company in the United States has ever had such exceptional property to sell and resell as we offer.

These figures and facts speak for themselves, and should appeal particularly to business men who care to investigate the financial standing and responsibility of the Alton Beach Realty Company and its ability to make good on these offers.

We only offer sixty lots for sale on Alton Beach this year, and these lots are for home builders.

And we are only one year old.

ROYAL PALM PARK NOTES

Have you noticed the pleasant, soft springiness of the leaf carpet in the hammock? An occasional rock projecting shows that the formation is the same there as elsewhere in the colitic limestone region of the lower east coast. Scientific students of the subject say Royal Palm hammock is as it is today because fire has not swept it. Dr. J. K. Small points out that the two forks of the headwaters of an unmapped river have protected it for ages. So that thick layer of leaves is an object lesson before you of what our Florida might have of humus had no fires ravaged it. Are we almost ready to stop the tremendous fire waste? You could better afford to give every tramp you meet a ten dollar bill with which to light his pipe, than you can afford to permit the burning of humus all over the state. It is a frightful short-sightedness. Some day humanity will see the point and stop it. We hope our Florida humanity will soon be that wise. But that will not redeem the irrevocable waste of the past, any more than you could work such magic should fire sweep out of existence the leaf carpet in Royal Palm State Park, not to mention the trees it might kill. When you think of this heritage of the ages that has descended to you in this forest reserve—your state park—does it not make you anxious that no careless person sets out fire in it, that all visitors to the hammock treasure it sacredly for our children's children. By opening it to the public we have introduced new fire dangers. Then the more obligation rests upon us all. How would you like to lose those giant royal palms towering above the tall oaks from your state park? In this report of Royal Palm Hammock, Dr. Small says of these palms and fire:

"The decaying fallen leaves, the large spathes, the spadices, also the myriads of sepals and petals of the flowers, and the fruits, each and all, on account of the unbranched habit of growth, falling at the very base of the trunk, form mounds of humus larger and higher than do any of the hardwood trees. Upon such a gradually increasing mound a palm is, from year to year, raised higher and higher on humus formed from its own tissues. Now these mounds of humus would furnish ideal fuel and the palm, although able to resist fire above the roots, could not exist or even stand up if the humus was burned away between the base of the trunk and the rock. As it is, it seems nothing short of a miracle that the slender trunks over one hundred feet tall with the heavy crown of leaves and spadices can withstanding the winds of severe storms, not to mention frequent hurricanes."

We have a watchful, conscientious guard in the care-taker of the park, Mr. Mosier. Recently he got out of bed after 10 p. m. to show campers where to build their fire in a safe place. But public sentiment must back the work, and the fire protection of the park forms only a part of the needed fire protection of the state.

THRIPS AND SCAB

As I remember the recommendation for thrip and scab is lime-sulphur 1-40, one-fourth pint nicotine, and two pounds soap. Is this right? Can miscible oil be added so as to hit the scab also?

Answer—We do not remember seeing the above combination recommended. It certainly was not sent from this office. While a person might spray lime-sulphur 1-40 in the bloom, a great many times without damage, he runs a chance of having serious burning, and we would never feel like taking this chance.

Black leaf 40 is an excellent control for thrip and can be mixed with lime-sulphur, ammoniacal copper carbonate, Bordeaux mixture, soap, oil sprays, or practically everything that we use; but we should never think of putting soap and lime-sulphur together. We advise ammoniacal copper carbonate for scab and would mix the Black Leaf 40 with it at the rate of one pound to 125 gallops spray for a combined scab and thrip control.

You cannot hope for any really effective scale control during blossoming season. Oil spray in bloom is extremely dangerous.

Lawn

I want to make a good substantial lawn. What do you think of sowing cotton seed meal with my grass seed?

Answer—The use of cotton seed meal is very common on home lawns and it will grow a very pretty lawn though the grass is not substantial. That is, it will easily wear away if people walk on it. Cotton seed meal is also the most expensive form of plant food there is.

For your purpose we would recommend your broadcasting 6½ per cent tankage and working it in thoroughly about two weeks before you sow the seed. We would use a thousand pounds tankage per acre if we wanted to make the very best lawn possible, but this amount could be even cut in half and still give very good results. The great point in making a good lawn is to have plenty of organic matter in the soil; then there should be a liberal supply of ammonia and phosphoric acid, and, of course, some potash, though grass needs very little potash application. A few days before planting the grass seeds you should apply mixed fertilizer at the rate of three or four hundred pounds per acre.

Perhaps the following is useless information to you, but we find so many people have difficulty in figuring out the part of an acre a lawn is, we will mention an acre is approximately 210 feet square, so a lawn 100x100 feet would be about a quarter of an acre, of one 50x50 feet about a sixteenth of an acre.

Thrips On Onions

Enclosed are some onions that I think have thrip. The tops turn white and the plants gradually die down.

Answer—The onions enclosed were very far gone, but from what we could see we would describe the tops as brown instead of white, as you mention, and would pronounce it a case of thrip, just as you suggest.

Thrip infestation of onions turns the general appearance of the onion field which should be a rich green in color to a peculiar sickly yellow with brownish tinge. Every puncture on the leaves shows a small yellow dot when the trouble first starts, these dots increasing in number and running together until the effect is as described above.

Use Black Leaf 40, one teaspoonful to each gallon of water in which enough soap has been dissolved to break the hardness.

Comer Crops

Which shall I plant in my young grove as a summer cover crop to build up the soil, velvet beans or cow peas? When should I plant them?

Answer—Velvet beans are great soil improvers, but we do not like them in a young citrus grove, because they are so bad about overrunning the trees. Cow peas are just as good for improving the soil and will not give you this trouble. You should plant these when the summer rains come on.

Castor Pomace

Will castor pomace drive away cut worms?

Answer—Castor pomace tends to drive away soil insects instead of attracting them like stable mnure, fish scraps and cotton seed meal; but you would not be using enough castor pomace as a fertilizer to have any very appreciable effect in a field infested with cut worms. You should poison the cut worms as per recipe enclosed.

The Cold Wave.

Was very fortunate in getting young trees banked before the cold reached here and feel confident have saved the buds at least, however in most cases the bark of the trees is split almost to the bank. Just what can I do toward alleviating this condition? Should I fertilize and if so do you think the trees can use the full two pounds? You will remember they were set last year. All the unprotected young trees in our vicinity are in pretty bad shape apparently but in most cases the people seem to be very optimistic regarding the future.

Answer: You were, indeed, fortunate to get your trees banked before the cold reached you. It was the wisest move you could possibly have made. When the bark on a tree trunk is split it is in a serious condition and one can expect even with the best of treatment to bring through only a percentage of the wood thus affected. However, the more of each tree you can manage to save, the better.

There are two points you want particularly to guard against,—the entrance of the fungi causing rot or disease, and the drying out of the tissue. We would advise the painting of the entire surface with Bordeaux paste (recipe given below) and binding the trunks carefully to hold the bark in place and to prevent drying out. We would not be in too great a harry to do any pruning, but the pruning should be done promptly and thoroughly after the extent of dead wood can be determined. If you had already applied your spring fertilizer, that is sufficient. If you have not, you should apply fertilizer but the trees will not need quite as much as they would with their natural growing capacity.

This cold is indeed a severe blow but we know far better how to meet it than we did in the freeze of 1895, for with the splendid developing of Florida resources and her record of prosperity, no one today can realize the absolute blackness of the future as it appeared to us, who in 1895 were in a new and untried country. Now we know it is only the monetary loss and though this is severe in individual cases, we can go right ahead reasonably secure in what the future will bring us just the same as a person in any kind of business has to do when these occasional drawbacks occur.

Bordeaux Paste.

One pound bluestone dissolved in 1 gallon water; 2 pounds caustic lime slaked in 1-2 gallon water. Stir together when cool, making a mixture about the consistency of whitewash. Apply with a brush or spray pump.

Organic is Chemical Fertilizer.

Just where is the greater advantage if there is an advantage, in using organic fertilizer on sandy soils instead of chemical fertilizers?

Answer: Aside from proper proportion of organic ammoniates allowing steady availability with minimum loss by leaching, organic materials add just so much humus to the soil, and you know the benefits of humus through improving soil texture, retaining moisture, and improving bacterial conditions.

The use of organic fertilizers can easily be over done. The commercial materials needing greatest restriction are cotton seed meal and fish scrap. Stable manure should be used with equal precaution, though often in exhausted land a light application of stable manure is of great help. Cotton seed meal never should be used on dry sandy land because of its heating qualities. A reasonable amount of tankage, sheep manure, and goat manure is beneficial and real blood and bone, Peruvian guano, and tobacco stems can be used freely. The bad effects of organic fertilizers on citrus trees show in development of die back. This is less likely to occur on young trees than in old ones, and in sandy than in heavier soils.

Sulphur Fumes.

What action does lime-sulphur have that kills rust mite? I understand that sulphur is practically insoluble.

Answer: The sulphur disintegrates on the tree and it is the fumes that smother the mites. It is not at all a matter of solution—just clear sulphur dusted on the trees, or sulphur mixed with two parts hydrated lime will kill the adult mite just as well as the lime-sulphur spray, but it has been learned through government research that lime-sulphur spray 1-75 will also kill the eggs and is therefore a much more thorough and far-reaching control. Three or four sprayings a year will control the rust mite proposition while heretofore the grower had to spray every three or four weeks all summer long.

VINCENT ASTOR ON GUARD.

Responds to Call for Militia and Stands Watch on Bridge.

Vincent Astor, an ensign in the naval militia, reported yesterday for duty as promptly as did the lowliest private in his battalion.

He was assigned to one of the bridges, and after standing guard for several hours was relieved. Then he called at naval militia headquarters with Commodore Forshew, to whom he is a junior aid.

It was Vincent Astor who formed the aero squadron of the naval militia. This is the second battalion. Recently, however, he was transferred to the First battalion.

Mr. Astor, when he was asked what his personal plans were in case of war, said: "I have not thought that far ahead." He considers the situation very serious.

"The naval militia," he said, "made an excellent showing. Seventy per cent of the enlistment responded by 10 o'clock Sunday, and the call did not go out until midnight Saturday. I believe that if there is war the people should be told frankly just what is being done by those in power."

Platinum thrown away by early Spanish explorers, ignorant of its value, often is found in excavating foundations for new buildings in Colombia, sometimes in sufficient quantities to pay the cost of a building.

Concrete in a burning building in Philadelphia was little damaged by the changes of temperatures from the intense heat of the fire to that of icy water used by firemen, while granite was practically ruined.

To collect the names of artists and architects living in this state, also Art collectors or dealers carrying stock of pictures of educational value.

To encourage the production of Arts and Crafts by which the standard of taste may be raised in the decoration of our homes.

To hold exhibitions of pictures and decorative Arts in order to bring the work of our artists before the public and create a patronage of the home market.

Civic Art

The committee is anxious to cooperate in any measure for civic beauty. Civic Art may include architecture, landscape gardening and the improvement of streets and highways, picturesque laying out of parks, the abolishment of bill-boards, beautifying of railroad stations and placing public drinking-fountains and wayside benches or rest arbors.

We recommend the appointment in towns and counties, of art commissions to act as advisory boards in public improvements. For the use of clubs, we have prepared a series of lectures, illustrated with groups of pictures, mounted on cards, which will be loaned, on payment of postage, for giving of art programs.

We gratefully acknowledge the gift, through Mrs. Seabrooke and the Jacksonville Woman's Club of a set of over sixty photographs illustrating Art History. Also contributions of many pictures and magazines from Mrs. Albert Dickinson of Orange City.

Our Annual Art Exhibit is the material testimony of our theories. It witnesses that we continually canvass the state and have awakened a friendly spirit of co-operation among artists and laymen.

The list of contributors this year includes:

Cocoanut Grove Sketch Club.
The Cathedral School, Orlando.
Rollins College, Winter Park.

CHAT ABOUT CLUB MATTERS

Titusville Progressive Culture Club, with its husbands and guests, was entertained by the music committee of the club at the Dixie Hotel, January 17th, Mrs. D. B. Pritchard, Mrs. J. W. Ward and Mrs. Trez B. Wilson, hostesses. The parlors and corridors were artistically decorated with trailing vines, roses, ferns and hibiscus. Mrs. Rothart, a violinist of unusual ability, spending the winter in Titusville, contributed several exquisite numbers to the program, which was perfect in every number.

Ocala Woman's Club observed Civics Day, January 2nd, with Mrs. J. A. Hendley, of Dade City, chairman of Civics of the Florida Federation, guest of honor. Mrs. Hendley spoke upon civics in the state, and told of efforts to introduce the study of civics in the schools. This movement has been endorsed by the Federation, and by Supt. Sheats, and it is hoped that the text-book commission at their meeting next August, will endorse it.

On Saturday, February 3rd, Mrs. W. B. Young, treasurer of the General Federation, and Miss Louise Meigs, director for Florida, spoke at the reciprocity meeting in Ocala. Both of these ladies are from Jacksonville. Mrs. Haviland, of Belleview, told of the classes in needlework and basketry, Bible classes and other activities. This town of Belleview, with a population of about 200, has a Woman's Club of seventy members. Mrs. J. W. McCollum brought greetings from the Twentieth Century Club at Gainesville, and spoke of the Girls' [illegible] School soon to be located near Ocala, asking that the Ocala club mother this school as much as possible.

The Ocala City Park has been turned over to the Woman's Club for beautification. They are planting magnolias, red bud, dogwood and oaks, and later will plant hedges of camphor, reed and other shrubbery.

Speaking of Endowment Funds, the Nebraska Club Bulletin mentions a "Dollar March" that occurred at the convention. One can imagine a long row of enthusiastic women, each with a dollar bill waving in her hand, marching down the aisles and to the rostrum, to make the Endowment Fund grow. What an inspiring sight that would be, if the march occurred at Tampa next November, to the tune of Suwannee River, the Federation's official song, with the women of the Florida Federation piling up the dollar bills.

A feature of the recent convention of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs in Macon, was a demonstration of the work of the Girl Scouts. The first Girl Scouts in America were enrolled in Savannah, March, 1912. There are now in Savannah 125 Girl Scout troops, fifteen Scouts captains, and assistants and councilors forming an advisory board.

Tampa is districted for solicitation for advertising, to appear in the coming Endowment Edition of the Tampa Times. One enthusiastic club-woman solicited $500 worth of advertising in one day, in her district. Each solicitor has but one branch of business to solicit.

Section Five is honored by having its vice-president, Mrs. Edgar Lewis, chosen to be editor of the Federation Endowment Edition of the Tampa Times.

SPECIAL REQUEST TO CLUBS

It is necessary properly to compile an article for the forthcoming Federation Endowment Edition of the Tampa Times, to have each individual club send in at once, information about how money was raised during the past year for club activities. One club mentions that they raised $1,000, but does not tell how. Will you please send this information at once, to Miss Ruth Rich, Federation Editor Times-Union, Jacksonville, Fla.

AN EVERY-MEMBER CAMPAIGN FOR GENERAL FEDERATION MAGAZINE

It is very gratifying to be able to report that the clubs are taking up the every member campaign enthusiastically. The idea that we can add to our Endowment Fund with every subscription, 25 cents, and at the same time take nothing fro mthe individual club, seems to be very attractive. The fact is gaining acknowledgment, too, that we are adding to the efficiency of our club with every subscription, and every magazine read. A quotation from a recent letter will be sure to interest every reader: "Your letter of recent date, about every club home needing the magazine, just received, and I say Amen! Amen! That is just what has been stirring in my bonnet ever since I saw the January number. I do not see how any of them can afford to be without it. I think they do really need it—I'm sure my club does—if they read it regularly it would make them broader, they'd be obliged to quit some, at least, of their littlenesses."

The writer is president of her club, and says she is going to do her utmost to get the magazine in each home represented in the club. She has one of those good "club-husbands" we all are so fond of, who says that he will pay for the last five, if she succeeds in getting the rest.

The following quotation from the General Federation Magazine is worth a year's subscription alone, in the uplift it gives: "What a grand thing a woman's club is! It brings a woman out of the peck measure of home, as by a ladder with rungs by which she is invited to ascend. As she ascends step by step she realizes that her vision is widening, that her eyes become focussed on distances. To think in cities is a growth indeed, but to think in states, and from that vantage point high up on the ladder's rungs, to visualize nations! One may stay at home, and still think in worlds! This is the crown of thinking, and the General Federation of Woman's Clubs is our leader, our teacher, our ladder!" This ends the quotation, but we would presume to add to the thought, that the General Federation Magazine is the medium through which one becomes acquainted with the General Federation, and so the necessary introduction of this wonderful ladder.

Since the beginning of the contest, January 1st, subscriptions have been sent in as follows:

Jacksonville Woman's Club.....20
St. Petersburg Town Improvement ment Association 2
Homestead Woman's Club of the Redlands 1
Dade City Woman's Civic Club.... 1
Quincy 1
Haines City 1
St. Andrews Woman's Improvement League 1

Jacksonville Woman's Club is not through with her canvass, but one section of the alphabetical list having reported. In addition to this, Springfield Improvement Association, South Jacksonville, New Springfield and Fairfield Improvement Association have promised every-member canvass.

Press chairman of Leesburg club writes: "The subscription work shall be pushed as vigorously and rapidly as possible with individual members until I can lay the matter before the club at our next regular meeting."

Correspondent of Lake Butler Woman's Club writes, "I shall take pleasure in furthering the plans mentioned, namely, getting the several members of the club to subscribe to the official organ."

Milton writes: "Our club is going to enter the General Federation Magazine campaign, and you will hear from us later, I hope."

Ocala Woman's Club has placed the matter in the hands of a committee, specially appointed, and promises to send in results soon.

Two hundred and fifty dollars is set aside for each class of states, to be divided as follows: First prize, $100; second prize, $75; third prize, $50; fourth prize, $25. Florida is listed in class 2, with from 75 to 150 clubs in Federation, Florida having 138 clubs. The other states in this class are Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Mississippi, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota and Tennessee. If each club adopts the every-member canvass, we are liable to win one of these prizes, and should we fail in this, we would still gain 25 cents from each subscription for the Endowment Fund. Let us hear what your club is doing, for the encouragement of the others.

THE MAN WHO MADE THE KODAK

(B. C. Forbes in Leslie's.)

The story of the birth and the cradling of the kodak has never before been told.

It is a story containing all the elements of poverty and pluck, of plodding and perseverance, of hope and despair. Also these other fitting elements: A widowed mother, broken in health, suddenly plunged into financial misfortunes and a young son determined to overcome the necessity for her keeping a boarding house. The picture gives a glimpse of the youth working all day as a clerk and then working and experimenting in a little improvised workshop all night, snatching an hour's sleep now and again while his chemicals were cooking, for several nights on end his bed knowing him not.

Then came sufficient success to warrant giving up his clerical position and providing a modest home. Fame, even, came to the young inventor. His photographic plates were recognized as the best the world had ever produced. He branched out as a manufacturer. Then black, inexplicable, unfathomable failure. His formula, the sensation of the photographic world, refused to work. Sleepless investigation and experimentation were of no avail.

How defeat did not daunt the young man, how his resourcefulness triumphed, crowns the story, the story of George Eastman, the man who made us all photographers, the man whose ingenuity has made America the fountain head of photographic supplies for every nation on earth.

Now let us tell the story in detail.

Six years after he was born, on July 12, 1854, at Waterville, N. Y., George Eastman's family moved to Rochester, N. Y., where his father died within a year. The father was the originator of the business college idea, and the successful establishment he founded was managed for a time after his death by a brother. But it did not survive its founder many years. George, the only son—there were two sisters—was taken from school when 14 years old and set to work in an insurance office at $3 a week. The mother was a semi-invalid yet she was a woman of unusual ability and resource and played well her part in supporting the little family.

"I then conceived a terror of poverty," Mr. Eastman told me recently. "It haunted me by day and by night. I was so careful of my pennies that, although I clothed myself and helped in a small way at home, I managed to save $37.50 the first year and put it in the bank."

Young as he was, he realized that hard work was the only road leading from the slough of poverty to the hilltop of success. He was soon drawing a salary of $600 a year, the maximum the insurance office could pay; but his employer, realizing young Eastman's worth, recommended him for the position of bookkeeper in a savings bank which paid $1,000 a year.

To a Rochester photographer Eastman paid $5 for instruction in photography, then conducted by the wet plate process. This impressed him as an unsatisfactory way of doing things. His first achievement in the field of photography was the construction of a handy, portable outfit. Then came news from England of the discovery of the gelatine dry plate process. Eastman immediately became interested, and with information picked up in photographic journals, he resumed his experiments. After repeated failure he began to get results—and he grasped the idea that this could be made a manufacturing business—that dry plates could be produced and sold whereas under the old wet process only materials to make the plates could be marketed, the buyer having personally to take these raw materials—nitrate of silver, collodion and a piece of glass—himself in a dark tent, smear the glass with the collodion and dip it in a bath of nitrate of silver.

Intuition and ambition urged him on, and his alert mind, his keen perception, his sound common sense quickly solved the problem. He hired a room as a workshop for a few dollars a month, engaged a young man to look after the routine work during the day, and he himself did all the delicate chemical operations at night. It was not uncommon for young Eastman to toil all night in his little factory without a chance to undress or go to bed, his sleep consisting only of very brief naps while chemicals were working. When Saturday night came he went home to bed and usually slept straight through until Monday morning, aroused only to eat a couple of meals on Sunday.

DIXIE HIGHWAY TRACT

To those residing permanently in Miami and to tourists here for the season

J. A. Gates & Son, have a message.

We have formulated a plan whereby we can greatly reduce the price of real estate to purchasers, cause the business of real estate to be more highly respected, and to be more enjoyable and satisfactory to those engaged in the traffic.

We purpose to sell lots in a tract by employing hired salesmen just as a merchant sells goods in his store by clerks in his employ. Parties visiting our Dixie Highway Tract, now being offered, will be shown over the tract by our salesmen. A tag bearing the lot and block number and price of lot is attached to a stake placed in front of each lot, to be detached by purchaser and presented at office of tract owner, where papers in settlement will be drawn.

We can, we believe, by this method save purchaser 25 per cent or more and complete the transaction most expediciously and satisfactorily.

We especially call attention to location of our Dixie Highway Tract. It adjoins the Charles Deering place on the north and extends from Dixie Highway to Bay View Ave., overlooking the Bay. All inside lots are held at a uniform price of $195 each, corners $300. If in this connection you note the fact that lots in Flander's tract which adjoins the Charles Deering place on the south are held at prices ranging from about $3,000 to $5,000, and are on lower land; you will readily see that lots in Dixie Highway will certainly appreciate rapidly in value with the growth of Miami and that you will make no mistake in buying now. Is it unreasonable to expect an advance of one hundred per cent in values within one year. May we not urge those of our home people thinking to secure a lot while cheap in price and most attractively located to select now. May we not urge tourists seeking a place for building a winter home to visit us; and may we not especially urge builders who want to get a bunch of lots on which to build houses to sell or rent to select now while the selecting is good—the bunches are unbroken.

Dixie Highway Tract has many advantages, such as electric lights, telephones, jitney busses about half hourly, ice, meat, groceries delivered daily, daily mail delivery, high school, churches, literary clubs, fraternities, and other advantages of a happy and cultured community.

ROADS BRING MILLIONS TO THIS STATE

What the Young Dixie Highway Is Worth In A Financial Way

SECRETARY ESTIMATES

That Over $2,760,000 Has Been Brought In During the Present Season

Chattanooga, Feb. 10.—A very conservative estimate places the amount of money scattered along the Dixie highway, along detours while construction work is going on and along the east coast route from the New England states enroute to Florida during the season of 1916-17 in excess of $2,760,000, according to V. D. L. Robinson, secretary of the Dixie Highway association. Approximately 27,600 tourists travelling in 6,900 cars have made this trip over the road from fair to impassable, excepting with mule power, according to weather conditions. They have journeyed southward in the face of warnings sent out by the Dixie Highway association that the road improvements along the Dixie and other main highways of the south had not progressed to the point where winter automobile travel to Florida could be made without encountering miles of new grades yet to be surfaced and very difficult detours. These warnings, as well as accounts of the experiences of those who had made the trip had been given wide publicity through the clubs and touring bureaus of the north and through the leading newspapers.

How Estimate is Made.

The estimate of the volume of tourist travel to Florida is based on the reports made to the association by the proprietors of the ferries at Woodbine, on the eastern division of the Dixie highway between Savannah and Jacksonville, and at the St. Mary's river on the central division of the highway between Macon and Jacksonville. The keeper of Kolar's ferry at the St. Mary's river stated that 2,500 cars, southbound have crossed on this ferry. The proprietor of the Woodbine ferry stated that the average number of cars crossing the river on his ferry enroute to Jacksonville for the past eighty days was thirty cars per day or 2,400 cars for the season. It is safe to estimate the number of cars which entered Florida over the National highway through Cordele and Valdosta, and the western division of the Dixie highway via Macon and Thomasville, as 2,000 cars this season, making a total of 6,900 cars traveling the four main roads into Florida. This estimate does not take into consideration the number of motor tourists who have entered Florida on the various other avenues of travel, the hundreds who have driven part of the way and then shipped their cars to Jacksonville, or the other car owners who have shipped their cars from Savannah and Brunswick to Fernandina or Jacksonville around the Woodbrine and Satilla river ferries.

Down East Coast.

Each car will average four persons to the car or 27,600 tourists, who have traveled to Florida by automobile. It is costing these tourists five dollars per day per person. This is almost the minimum, rather than the average expendiutre. On this basis these tourists have expended $138,000 per day, just for actual expenses which do not include tires and is a very conservative estimate. For a period of twenty days, average time consumed in making the round trip from their homes in the north to Florida, a total or $2,760,000 has been sprinkled along the road. This money is all cash which has never been in circulation before in the south. This estimate does not take into consideration any expenditudes after they reach Florida or any investment which many of them will make in the opportunities which the south has to offer. Of this 6,900 cars it may be taken as a fairly accurate division to say that 4,400 cars went down the east coast from the New England states. In contrast to the warnings given regarding the condition of the Dixie highway, the majority of the automobile journals of the east have recommended this routing as open for through travel this winter although they took occassion to point out that there were some sections which might become difficult in wet weather.

The remaining 2,500 cars traveled the western division of the Dixie highway as far as Nashville. Some of them braved Cumberland mountain enroute to Chattanooga, others came into Chattanooga via Huntsville and still others went from Huntsville through Gadsden and Rome to Atlanta, while the Dixie highway between Nashville and Chattanooga was in course of construction.

Greater Next Season.

If 2,500 car owners will disregard the warnings of friends, the candid statements of touring bureaus and automobile clubs of what they may encounter if they strike wet weather, the repeated announcements sent broadcast through the press and touring bureaus by the Dixie Highway association that the highway is not ready for winter travel this year, it is reasonable to suppose that ten times this number will drive to Florida during the season of 1917, if the Dixie Highway association can announce that at least one division of the highway offers a reasonably comfortable trip from Chicago or Detroit to Florida.

Work Yet to Be Done.

The sections of the Dixie highway yet to be improved, which have stood in the way of through travel this winter like grim barriers to progress, fortunately comprise only a small percentage of the total mileage of the main lines of the highway, as a tremendous amount of construction work has been done during the eighteen months the Dixie Highway association has been in existence. On the western division between Louisville and Nashville, there is less than twenty miles out of 208 to be surfaced. This mileage has not blocked through travel this winter, as it consists of unsurfaced stretches of Telford base which is rough, but can be traveled in any kind of weather. The people along this section have tasted of the profits from the tourist travel and are up on "tip-toe" exerting every energy to close the gaps and begin the construction of permanent roads. Between Nashville and Chattanooga, where the worst part of the western division exists, an entirely new road is in process of construction. Every county is exerting its utmost endeavor to complete the entire division in time for the fall and winter travel, providing a highway which is free of toll and ferries and with a maximum grade over Cumberland Mountain of five per cent. It is all provided for with the exception of one county, which will need additioanl funds to complete about five miles of grading and surfacing of approximately twenty miles.

On the eastern division between Richmond, Ky., and Knoxville, the Kentucky and Tennessee counties are hard at work straining every point to open their division to through travel, by fall of this year. Ample funds are in hand to complete the entire stretch with the exception of five miles of grading and about thirty-six miles of surfacing. Appeals are being made to the state highway department and the citizens of Cincinnati, Lexington and Knoxville are determined to have it opened even if it means digging down in their pockets to furnish outside assistance.

Chattanooga and Atlanta.

Between Chattanooga and Atlanta, both via Dalton and Rome, all of the grading has been completed and the major portion of the surfacing. The funds are in hand and it will unquestionably be ready for through travel this fall. Between Atlanta and Macon, as well as on the other divisions of the highway in Georgia, the counties are united in aiding one another in completing the unsurfaced portions in time for the through travel which is anxious to come south. On the central division between Macon and Jacksonville as an example, the counties have voluntarily forfeited their rights to federal and state aid to other counties less able to take care of the construction of their part of the road.

In addition to the desire of the counties along the route to build their part of the highway, they are spurred on to renewed endeavors to hasten the completion of their sections by the competition which the rich plum of new money expended by tourists has stirred up. As an example, the western division of the highway between Nashville and Chattanooga must open up their division of the highway by fall if they want the bulk of the tourist travel from the north, which Chattanooga's attractions can bring them. The road from Nashville to Huntsville is now travelable and the counties between Huntsville and Rome, Ga., are determined to have their part of this travel. They are hard at work constructing this road. The state department of highways of Georgia has designated as one of the federal aid roads the highway from Rome to the Alabama line, where it will join with the road now building from Huntsville. The same situation obtains on other divisions.

CEMETERY CYNICS

The Houston Post quotes this, from the English paper, Tid-Bits:

Husbands are often unappreciative of their wives' qualities and virtues in life, but it is not often they express their views on the tombstones of the dear departed spouses. Yet instances are extant where this has been done, as thus:

We lived one-and-twenty year
As man and wife together;
I could not hold her longer here,
She's gone I know not whither.
But I suppose she's soared aloft,
For in the late great thunder
Methought I heard her very voice
Rending the clouds asunder!

That is a distinctly nasty one, but it is not the worst of a small but pretty bad set of tombstone rhymes which set out the wife's character in anything but rosy hues. Here is an arithmetical ditty which mournfully shows how the poor husband was "snowed under" in life and cannot regret the departure of the bad weather which made life miserable:

We were not one but surely ten,
I and the wife I sigh for;
My better half supplied the one,
And I supplied the cipher!

But this even must hide its diminished head, douse its glim, before the concentrated malice of the following: It starts so well. One imagines that idyllic life of perfect matrimonial harmony, and then, like a thunderbolt or a "Jack Johnson," crash comes the last fatal line:

Here rests my spouse; no pair through life
So equal lived as we did;
Alike we shared perpetual strife,
I knew no rest till she did.

And lastly there is a punning effort by another undisconsolate husband, who finds it difficult to grieve that he is left alone in this vale of tears:

Here lies my wife,
Who's gone on high,
If I said I was sorry,
I, too, should lie.
